so much has happened in the building—
this year.

we have been crowded, contained in a building bursting at the seams with multitudes it has housed.

we have changed, as a country, a state, a city, a school, and, perhaps most important, as individuals . . .

a host of new people were raised to the position of leaders and we followed . . .

often arguing, but occasionally questioning, protesting, testing rules and authority, we have watched old ideals and laws change to fit a new society.

we are youth and we are uncertain.

we have tested our own physical capaand we have questioned the effect of these changes on tomorrow.

this year we have looked at yesterdays yesterday . . .

we worshipped captain kangaroo and bobby kennedy, we read fairy tales, nancy drew, and children's digest yesterday . . . i looked out the window and a tree was beginning to bud . . .

do you remember?

it's changing you know,
today it is 2000 students, currie, nixon, today we go on a date and cry over our first love we spend our evenings with walden, government, and time magazine today we question the draft . . . and watch new reels from vietnam while simon and while the counselors are counting graduation credits—and we walk by beaming parents—diploma in hand . . .

today by chance i glanced out the window and the tree is covered with large green leaves . . .

tomorrow we'll be clerks, factory workers, students, teachers, mothers, fathers, soldiers . . .
today will be yesterday tomorrow.

these are the future leaders of america.

The Future Teachers worked this year to provide a $100.00 merit scholarship to a girl in their club who showed the greatest promise of success. Their main project this year was to organize an assembly informing the student body of the procedure of teaching deaf children.

The activities of F.B.L.A. at Jefferson promote friendship, fun, and future business careers. This year's club carried on money-making activities, visited local businesses, invited business people to speak at the meetings, and held potlucks and picnics. Also, for the eighth year, the club took its annual tour to Chicago. Through these experiences, the members fulfill the F.B.L.A. objective of building self-confidence and leadership, as well as learning what to expect in the adult business world.

fashion shows are "in"

This years Home Ec club was much like last years Future Homemakers of America. The club's main project was to present a McCall's style show for the student body. They also baked cookies to be sent to Vietnam at Christmas, to American soldiers.

young demos and repos aid in election year

Young Democrats and Young Republicans are the future politicians of our school. This years clubs solicited membership for their individual parties and aided the parties in publicity before the elections this fall. However, activities did not cease after November. Members of both groups then got to work promoting interest in 19 year old vote throughout the state, even approaching Congressman Culver on the subject.

Making decisions isn't all that easy...

... speaking of books ...

This year's Venture staff worked hard at bake sales and dances to help finance the magazine. The staff was also busy judging literary and art works of Jeff students.

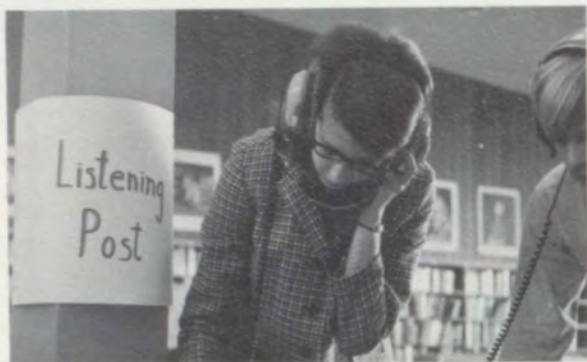

Squeezed between four tiny shelf-lined walls were housed 1000 paperback books and a busy staff. This year's staff worked in close cooperation with the teachers—supplying required books. They also introduced two hundred new titles for students' leisure reading.

Halls lined with Venture posters were year-long interest grabbers.

student librarians keep cmc running

With the addition of many new books, and record players for student use, librarians found student assistants a necessary part of the Cultural Media Center.

student assistants aid other j-hawks

Jeff's Future Nurses club did more than the required work in the nurses office. This year the club also raised enough money to give a gift to the center for mentally retarded.

In a similar capacity to office runners, counselors office aids run passes from the counselors to students, and sometimes back again. At least two girls were in the counselors office each hour to aid in pass deliveries.

Office runners are right-hand aids to the office ladies. Besides delivering messages of every nature to students and teachers, there is also the job of collecting and sorting absence cards and delivering attendance lists to rooms.

chessmen face city rivals

Chess club is a club for everyone—you don't even need to know how to play chess. Mrs. Shackford, advisor, teaches the club members fundamentals and techniques. This years membership increased and the group found itself competing in intra-city meets.

synchro swimmers form dollfinettes

The dollfinettes are hard-working synchronized swimmers. This year's club found itself having fun by initiating the new swimmers, and working on their show: "A Time For. . ." which was presented in April. Director of Dollfinettes this year was Mrs. Wray.

Marcia Andrews, senior, was student director for "A Time For. . ."

Bedecked in uniforms, pep club members formed a pep section at basketball games.

pep club boosts spirit

Pep club, organized this year to help school spirit, has tried to do just that. The club entertained the student body during many pep assemblies by presenting tricycle races, hulla hoop contests, and many other things which kept the student body laughing. The club also bought vests to help promote unity within their organization.

juke box acquired by council

Operating on a policy of: words speak louder than actions this year's student council constantly challenged old rules and ideas in efforts to modernize Jeff. Under the guidance of Denny Gable, president, Max Thomson, vice president, Debbie Brooks, secretary, and Joan Fitzsimmons, treasurer, the council discussed topics such as free study halls and acquired a juke box for the student lounge.

quill and scroll cites journalists

Quill and Scroll, the national honor society for journalists, honors members of Venture, Statesman, and Outlook staffs. Members and inductees include: Front Row: Sheryl Heaton, Jackie Hadenfeldt, Karen McCain, Connie Heaton, Lynn James, Gail Vanous, Linda Hopkins, Diane Fannon. The annual STATESMAN has a definite historical function as it records the activities, the personalities, the triumphs and the excitement of Jefferson High School. It serves as a memory for all—students, faculty, and administration—who have participated in the development of the school. In future years I know the twelve STATESMANS covering the years of my administration will be a pleasant remembrance of things past. Associations with dedicated faculty, students, and parents have made the years meaningful, challenging, and interesting. In the years ahead I hope Jefferson High School will continue to provide the best possible educational opportunities for our youth that they may develop to their fullest capabilities. It is my sincere wish that our school will accept the challenge of each generation and that it will continue to reflect the ideals and judgement that citizens of our community desire and expect.

A sophomore is a conglomeration of new ideas and leftover childish ones. He's another student identification number in the office, and he's another schedule change for the counselor. He's a last name only to one teacher, and he's a first name to another. He's a seat that's taken in the cafeteria, and he's a seat to assign in the library. He's a drenched swimmer for one semester and an expert on hydra and mitosis at the end of the year. He develops from the persecuted underclassman to become almost equal with the seniors. He progresses from noncommitment to total involvement in countless extracurricular activities. He's another fan in the stands and another slow mover in the fire drill. He's just a little bit in and a little bit out, but he's still a J-Hawk.

after two year's at jeff. . .

If he could look behind him and look ahead, a junior would probably choose to stay right where he is. There is nothing outstanding about him. He isn't being oriented and he isn't graduating. He really isn't either coming or going, but he belongs completely. As a junior, he can look back on his sophomore year and see how his responsibility has increased. Likewise, he can observe the seniors and get an idea of what is to come. Basically, he's halfway there—one year tucked neatly away under his belt and one more to tackle.

seniors caught in the

"I think that I shall never see, a thing more lovely than a tree. . ." Posed with one of the many trees given to the school by the class of '69 are class officers treasurer Polly Hedlund, secretary Darla Deal, vice president Gary Martin, president Tom Mullin, and principal Mr. Paxson.

act of being themselves

this is the class of 1969. . .

. . . the anticipation of sophomore orientation—the frightening walk down the whole hall for the first time—the agony of chemistry—the tedious ITED tests—the golden license which doesn't require Mother to be in the car—the fire drills that come at opportune times—the assigned seats in the library—the pink pass signed by the dismissing and receiving teacher—detention for one week—the physical fitness tests—the locker partner—the 35¢ lunches—the morning announcements which are never heard—the off-limits restrooms—the number two pencils—the gum in the drinking fountains—the cross-town rivals—the bitter complaints—the stupid mistakes—the losses—the winning touchdown—the victories—the clockwatcher waiting for 3:00— . . . and it's all over.

Mr. Meeker, technical director, explains the technical aspects of the drama program to parents at an evening reception for Thespians and their parents.

season includes serious and silly

Mr. Geuder, as seen in a typical pose during rehearsal.

Works by Shakespeare, Miller and Koepke, highlighted the drama season this year, under direction of Mr. Robert Geuder, with technical details handled by Mr. Roger Meeker.

The season began with William Shakespeare's "A Comedy of Errors" with additions of the Commedia Del' Art characters, by Mr. Geuder.

Following in close succession came "Pandora's Box" arranged by Mr. Allen Koepke and his wife, presented at Coe for the Children's Theatre. Next was Arthur Miller's "The Crucible", providing a serious drama in sharp contrast to "Comedy of Errors".

The season was completed with the production in conjunction with the music department of Meredith Willson's "The Music Man"

Pinch, a school master played by Russ Green, is accused of being a conjurer by Antipholus of Ephesus.

Once again the team of Shakespeare and Geuder have managed to come up with a successful production for the Jeff stage.

"A Comedy of Errors" by William Shakespeare, concerns a case of mistaken identities arising when a set of twins and their servants who are also twins, separated since childhood, return to the same city, neither knowing the other is there also.

The servants mistake one twin for the other and get their masters mixed up, and the wife of one of the twins become caught up in the confusion.

However, the twins discover each other and their father who is in the same city.

Even their mother, who has since their separation become an abbess, is reunited with her family.

The basic Shakespearean farce is supplemented by the addition of the Commedia Del 'Arte characters which were written in by Mr. Robert Geuder, drama director, and performed comic interludes throughout the production.

The courtesan (Jo Ann Doonan) barter with Antipholus of Syracuse while Pierret (Linda Collier) and Pierot (Charles Osmanski) narrate the story.

Many surprises are to be found behind a door, as illustrated by Columbine (Sandy Farnhan) and Scapino (Steve Mason) to the surprise of Harlequin (Marc Jayne) and all members of the Commedia Del' Artes Troupe.

"Nay then thus: We came into the world like brother and brothers; and now let's go hand in hand, not one before another."

musical myth for children

created by koepke

The sons of the Olympian gods protest the strict rules their fathers set for them.

The gods insist that the rules set down by their fathers are good enough for their sons.

This year's Children's Theatre production "Pandora's Box," was written by Mr. Allen Koepke, Jefferson vocal music director, and his wife.

The musical deals with the rivalry between the Olympian gods and their sons. Hermes tries to get his son to understand his views, but his son, Little Hermie, tries to get him to understand his mischievous ways.

As a test for the children on earth, the gods send a box of evil and warn them not to open it. Pandora, however opens the box and the troubles escape to plague the earth.

All ends happily when Pandora re-opens the box and Hope emerges to soothe the fears of the earth children.

"My mind's made up, I must soon find out, what my generation's all about."

Hope emerges from the box to calm the fears of Pandora and Epemetheus, two of the earth children who are victimized by the troubles of the earth.

The troubles escape from the box to spread disease and sickness over the earth.

Mr. Geuder, director, helps one of the gods make a needed costume adjustment before the show.

"It's just a world of children", is how Hermes describes the earth before the arrival of the troubles.

sophs portray blue birds, red hearts in "fireman's flame"

Jenny (Martha Steele) shows how women are naturally attracted to an honest, hard working fireman like Nozzle (Steve Mineck).

The Notorious Napoleon Markham (Dave Braumann) and sly Vesta Violet (Nancy Kurka) plot to steal the Vanderpool millions from Adolphus Vanderpool (Bob Sebastian) the fox of wall street.

Harry Howard (Craig Wishnewsky) and Daphne (Nancy Yost) are surprised by each other's presence at the soda parlor.

Mose (Dave Miller) and the blue birds lament, "Mother isn't getting any younger."

Mrs. Howard (LuAnn Watson) gives Harry the locket which later proves to be the clue which helps to locate his long-lost father.

The Blue Birds remove one of the Red Hearts who is trying to hide the fire hydrant to prevent the Blue Birds from putting out the fire.

"The Fireman's Flame", this year's sophomore musical presented a typical melodrama of the 1900's with stock gestures and humor.

Harry Howard wants to become a fireman but is rejected by the Red Hearts fire company because he doesn't belong to any social organizations.

However Harry is accepted as a Blue Bird and leads the company to save helpless orphans and fight innumerable fires.

Harry and Napoleon Markham, leader of the Red Hearts, are both supposedly in love with Daphne Vanderpool, but Napoleon is merely after father's money, which he intends to get with the help of Vesta Violet.

crucible provides contrast

John Proctor (Bryan Schloffelt) having decided to go to gallows, says goodbye to his wife Elizabeth (Anne Ludwick).

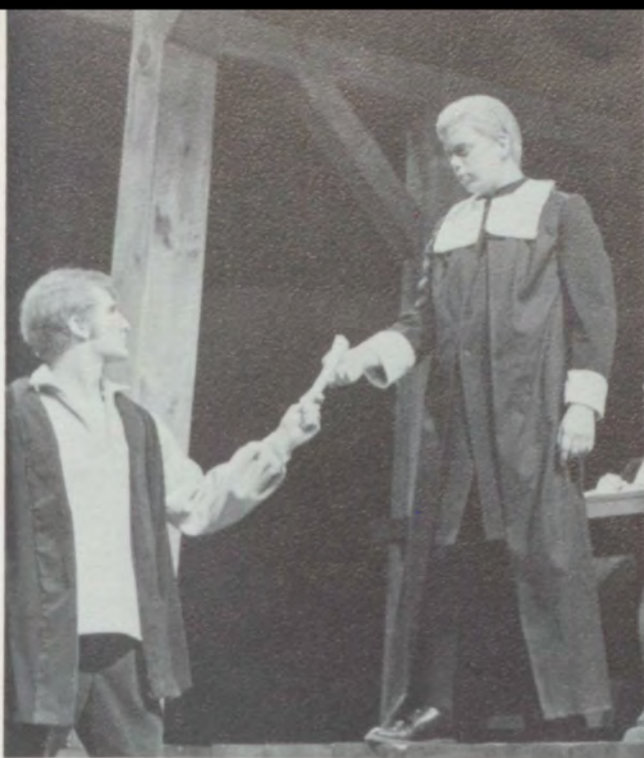

"The Crucible", a chilling drama of the Salem witch trials by Arthur Miller, provides a deep contrast with Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors." The plot revolves around John Proctor who was faced with the dilemma of signing a false confession of witchcraft or facing death with the knowledge that he had told the truth.

After much deliberation and deep thought, Proctor decides that his name is too precious to sign a false paper and goes triumphantly to the gallows.

Reverend Hale talks to the Proctors concerning the accusations of witchcraft which have risen.

Reverend Parris (Steve Arnold), Thomas Putnam (Marc Jayne), and Reverend Hale (Tom Reifschneider) observe as Tituba (Pam Hildebrand) appears to travel in her mind back to her native island of Barbados.

Judge Hawthorne (Steve Borders) delivers the confession to Proctor which he must sign in order to live.

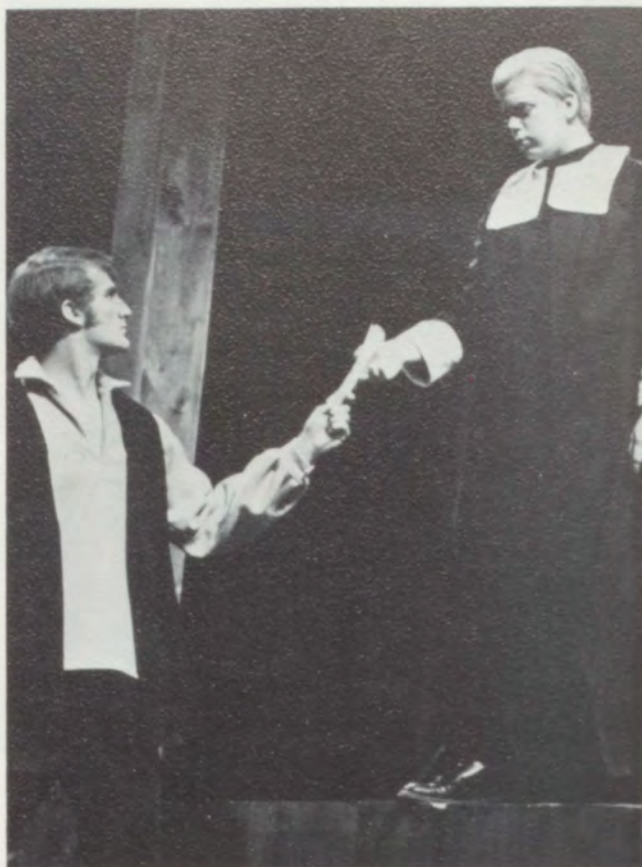

Mary Warren (Cathy Quaid) vows never to send her spirit out again and is comforted by Abigail Williams (Pat Dunn).

During the trials the girl's who have supposedly been plagued by Mary Warren's spirit see a "yellow bird" which tries to scratch and claw them.

Reverend Samuel Parris (Steve Arnold) prays for his daughter Betty (Kristy Carlson) to try and rid her of the strange sickness which has come over her.

John Proctor receives the confession which he must sign if he is allowed to live. He decides to die rather than to sign his name to the false document.

Francis Nurse (Russ Green), an old friend of the Proctors, tries to comfort John Proctor when he learns that his wife has been accused of witchcraft.

gammer gurton presented at wash

Tib (Sandy Bennett) is comforted by Hodge (Chuck Osmanski) who has been thrown out of the house by Gammer Gurton because she couldn't find her needle.

Gammer Gurton (Jo Anne Doonan) accuses Dame Chat (Julie Wescott) of having stolen her needle, but Dame Chat thinks she is being accused of stealing her chicken.

Gammer Gurton's Needle, a medieval comedy, centers around Gammer Gurton who thinks she has lost her needle which she needs for her livelihood.

After several suspicions on both the side of Gammer and Dame Chat the needle is found to be in Hodge's pants where Gammer had left it when she was through mending.

Produced by the Drama Theory and Practice Class, the show was presented at Washington for the Warrior Drama Festival.

Gammer Gurton and Dame Chat decide to settle their differences.

The concert band season had several highlights this year, including the addition of Mr. Howard Ellson to the music staff.

The J-Hawk banders also hosted the all-city instrumental music festival and sent musicians to both the city and state contests, reaping a number of top ratings.

The band visited Newton High School, played a concert at Knoxville and visited West High in Des Moines.

The Westside Delegation holds a jam session with the Young Americans to discuss the true meaning of "young Americans" and what today's youth stand for.

Mr. Geuder, choreographer, rehearses with the Delegation, working out dance steps to accompany the various numbers.

This year marks the addition of a new musical group to the Jeff music department. The Westside Delegation, directed by Mr. Allen Koepke and choreographed by Mr. Robert Geuder, consists of selected Jeff students who were chosen for their ability to sing and dance simultaneously. The Delegation has been active throughout the year, performing state wide and on choir tour, as well as staging an all-school assembly.

The annual spring band carnival proved to be a successful moneymaking project for the band, and a pleasant evening of music and games for the visitors. The band raised a total of $500 at the carnival which will be used to pay expenses for the concert band tour.

Concerts by the three west-side junior high bands as well as the Jeff band, were featured.

Larry Eckert developed his own formula for raising band money by selling balloons, to the delight of most of the younger carnival visitors.

Senior Bryan Schlotfelt picked up the Best Actor award for his performance of John Proctor, in the Crucible.

The Theatre Assistance Guild (TAG) awards outstanding students in drama for their contributions to high school dramatics. By viewing each show throughout the year, the judges decide upon best actor and actress in a musical and a drama, five scholarship winners—students who plan to major in drama, best show of the year, and many honorable mentions. Students from Kennedy, Jeff, Washington and Regis participate.

Jeff's Music Man gained five honorable mentions at the TAG ceremonies: Bryan Worley for his portrayal of Winthrop, Sandi Whitney for her Pick-a-little lady, Mary Mollenhauer for Marian Paroo, Mrs. Kaye Lozier for choreography, and Mr. Geuder for the entire show.

Pat Dunn received one of the TAG scholarships for students who intend to major in drama in college.

winning the big one again eludes the “big blue”

The agony of defeat cannot be put into words.

We can only compare how it was to how it had been dreamed to be. The '68 Wash-Jeff game . . .

explosive offense scores 306 points

Pre-season polls had them picked to end up no better than fourth in the Mississippi Valley Conference.

To the 1968 J-Hawk football team it was their challenge to disprove this prediction.

The J-Hawks opened their '69 campaign in a rather questionable fashion with a 21-7 loss to a surprising Rock Island team. The Rocks used a 21 point fourth quarter to pin the first opening loss on a Jeff grid team since 1961.

The following week saw the J-Hawks rebound from defeat to down East Moline, 40-0. The victory proved to be a costly one as Walt Steggall, explosive open field runner and defensive halfback, suffered a knee injury which later required surgery.

The Jeff eleven continued their winning ways the next two weeks defeating Clinton, 21-0, and Dubuque, 27-7. Then came the big one.

The J-Hawks took the field against cross-town rival Washington with bitter memories of the year before. But it just wasn't the J-Hawks night as Wash riddled the Jeff defense for 48 points, while the Jeff offense could manage but 13. The score was considered by many not to be a true comparison of the strengths of the two clubs.

The next game was Homecoming, and it found the J-Hawks up against another Washington team, only they were from Sioux Falls, South Dakota. It was the first time in over 30 years that a Cedar Rapids team had played the Warriors from South Dakota. Gary Martin led the explosive Jeff offense to tallying 62 points. While the J-Hawk defense "limited" the Sioux Falls team to 32 points.

Entering a game as an underdog is not a familiar thing to a Jefferson team, but it seemed to serve as an inspiration to the J-Hawks as they came up against C. R. Kennedy. Determined not to drop two inter-city contests in one year, the Big Blue gridders overpowered their opponent, 27-6.

It was in the Kennedy game that a 185 pound "runt" first made a significant impression. Senior halfback Rick Fulton picked up 162 yards rushing. The Jeff defense was equally amazing. A radio commentator saw it this way: "The Cougar quarterback is back to pass and Spacek and the Jeff defense is right back there with him."

The following weeks the J-Hawks crushed Iowa City, 52-7, and Davenport West, 55-6. Fulton continued his record-setting ways gaining 186 yards against Iowa City and bursting for 252 yards against the Falcons.

The J-Hawks finished the season in second place in the Valley and ranked 12th in the State. They ranked as the Valley's top offensive club and ranked number 4 on defense.

Juniors played a large role in this year's success. Junior Doug Keown "filled in" for the injured Steggall and was one of the Valley's top rushers. End Gary Dunham caught 21 passes for 315 yards. Junior Dennis Lorenc returned two punts both for touchdowns. Reserve end, Dick Randall, caught two passes, both of them for touchdowns. Many other juniors started in the final games.

"Right here, Bob, this is the end zone."

With a stingy defense which yielded only an average of 175 yards a game and with an explosive offense, the J-Hawks captured second in the Valley race, with a 7-1-1 record.

The young Blues picked up two wins early over Rock Island and East Moline. Next the sophs were tied by Clinton, in a game in which the breaks just didn't go their way. With a dazzling offensive display and an awesom-defense, the J-Hawks came back the following week to outman a Dubuque eleven. With the passing of Brad Trickey, the running of Emmitt Doolin and Greg Gongwer, and the receiving of Doug Holland and Bob Wilson, they amassed more than four hundred yards. The only setback of the season was a cross-town rival Washington. The sophs rebounded the following weeks to defeat Ottumwa, Kennedy, Iowa City, and West Davenport.

Doug Holland proved to be an asset on offense and defense for the young J-Hawks.

jeff tankers finish 6-7, 6th in valley

The '68-'69 swim team, coached by Mr. Jim Voss, placed 6th in the valley, 3rd in district, and 12th in the state. Sparked on by Wayne Melsha—most valuable swimmer, Dennis Barrett—most improved swimmer, and Steve Kriz—voted the hardest worker on the team, they set two new school records, in the 400 free-style relay which placed 3rd in state, and Wayne Melsha in the 200 free-style, which finished 6th in state. Team divers were Andy Kessell and Dan Reardon, who placed 13th and 14th in state. J-Hawk varsity swimmers also included Glenn Prochaska, Larry Chmelicek, Tim Dam, and Darold Groat.

knowledge itself is power

senior awards presented classday

Included in this year's classday activities was the reading of a letter to the class of 1969 from President Richard Nixon. Awards were given to outstanding students in orchestra, band, scholarship, and athletics. The John Daywitt award—given by the faculty—was presented for the first time, to two students: Candi Marsh and Bill Kurth. The class gift was also presented during the ceremonies.

John Meskimen, class of '66, presented the Athlete of the Year award to Tom Mullin.

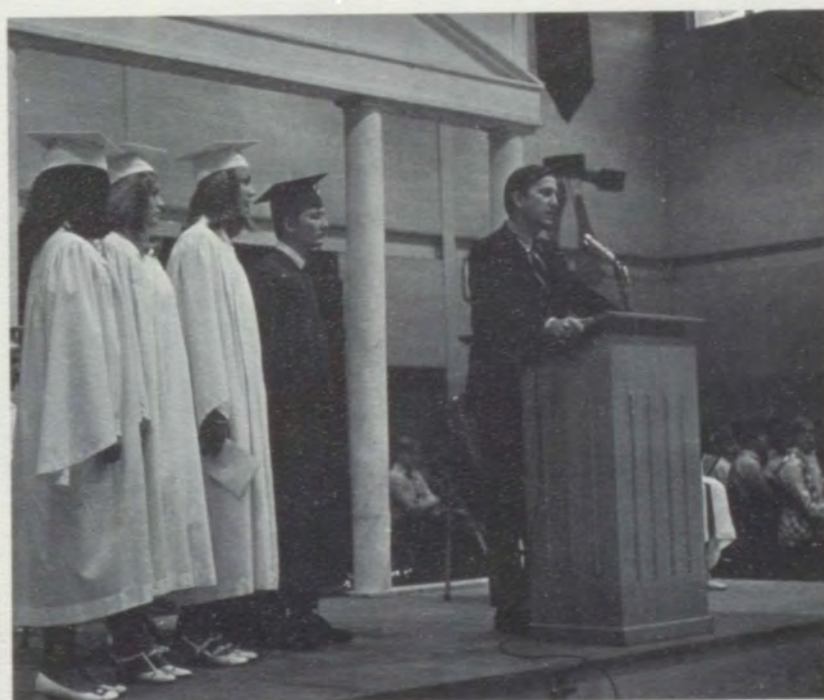

Receiving awards for outstanding contributions to instrumental music were Kelly Steufen—orchestra, and Steve Anders—band.

Valedictorian: Judy Conway
Salutatorian: Bill Kurth

“life muggable but huggable” — rev watters

The Reverend David Watters (left and below) gave his Baccalaureate speech on “The Now and How.” Relating to seniors the need to correlate our actions to events, Reverend Watters closed his remarks with the statement the “life is muggable but huggable.”

Reinette Meeker, Candi Marsh, Janis Ask, Katie Shackford and Max Thomson were given citizenship awards by the Iowa Bar Association.

June 4, 1969 . . . the senior class of Thomas Jefferson High School . . . 548 strong. A warm and breezy night which followed a stormy afternoon . . . six student speakers, a charge to the class by Dr. Currie, the presentation of diplomas. . .

John Fleihler and Tom Mullin joined in the dialogue on the future of a graduate. (right) Dr. Craig Currie, superintendent of public schools gave the charge to the class.

 ZOOK, Carol 87

it is hard to know exactly the right words to end 208 pages of pictures, copy, and headlines. . .being the editor of this book has been a challenge, a riot, at times a headache. . .more than these, it has been a lot of fun, an experience i will never forget. i did not do this book alone—infact, the actual work is the collaborated product of 40 students and one dedicated advisor. . .a million thanks must go to the hundreds of friends and assistants that made the whole thing go a lot easier, especially mr. roger meeker—for his help with cover design and color coordination. . .jackie hadenfeldt—who was much much more than a section editor, but also the cover designer, and a great friend to have around when everything else was going wrong. . .walt pimlott—who waited patiently while the editor climbed walls and rummaged through drawers trying to find everything that needed to be taken home, or brought to school. . .and more than these people, a special thanks this year must go to mr. raleigh magee, who coordinated all of these people and all of the work, remembered to proofread the pages just one last time, who, in his last year at jeff, kept us all going from september to june to get the book finished. . .one hundred million thanks must go to him. . .

i hope that the '69 statesman can be to each of you the memory of a successful year at jeff. for the class of '69—i hope this book will hold pleasant memories of our last year at jeff. . .for the class of '70—i hope it reminds you of events and reminds you that the best is yet to come. . .for the class of '71—remember that the days of swimming class are over, and you are no longer the youngest in the school. once again, a great big thank-you to everyone who helped, if not on the pages, then by sticking their heads in the door and saying hi. thanks for a great year. . .
