Memories as scampering forms hasten by Perhaps their essence will remain eternally.
Tangled masses of litter
cluttering the ground,
As the spirit of life
dances near,
The excited bubbling
of a joyful voice resounds,
A once existing laugh
still rings,
Symbolism of the competition once engaged in,
Humorous signs of what it was like to be alive and carefree.
Sweet melodies of yesterday
Linger in the tangerine colored moments of today.

The sea runs without end
 Sometimes slowly, sometimes swiftly,
 Eternally creating images in the sand.
 Tranquil moments of a smiling face,
 Tense moments of a dramatic scene,
 Add to the spirit we now remember.
 Times of surging enthusiasm,
 Whether it be drenched in rain,
 Or blanketed in happiness.
 And our faces
 Like the sand
 Show what happens in our souls.

Life is like a mobile spinning on its axis of a slender thread.
 Through the monotonous drone
 of the never ceasing rain,
 Which seemed to hang above our heads as doom
 But failed to dampen our souls.
 Still spirit continued to exist.
 The jeweled crown of Homecoming and the royalty it represents,
 Honoring proud fathers,
 Combined efforts of a team to arise to its victory.
 Multi-colored chips turn aimlessly
 Casting moving shadows
 On the patterned walls of time.

Student Life

Steve Burk and his kazoo band help the J-Hawks wish Mr. Peterson a happy birthday.

The pep band ignites the Spirit of '72.

Cheerleaders join the student body in reciting the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. Robert Noonan inspires the crowd with some arousing words.

Fans in the balcony had a bird's-eye view of each pep assembly.

Have you got that spirit? Yeah man! Then let everybody yell it. Go! Go! Go! Go! Go! Sophomores, juniors, and seniors stamped their feet and clapped their hands to the moving beat of the cheerleaders yells to show their spirit. Clever skits included R. J. Noonan dancing around the gym floor imitating a Dubuque Ram, a senior boys kazoo band tooting out happy birthday to Mr. Peterson, and Jeffy J-Hawk teasing a Cougar puddy cat. A busy bunch of J-Hawks hustled during the week smothering the hallways with colorful signs announcing each upcoming game. As each pep assembly began, pounding drums and the J-Hawk fight song ignited enthusiasm throughout the crowd while every anxious fan chanted in lively support of the Spirit of '72.

A fired-up senior section bursts with enthusiasm during a competition cheer.

Queen Lorraine

With the announcement of "Friends" as the theme, Homecoming 1971 officially began. After circling the field riding in Corvettes, the nine finalists were helped from their cars by escorts representing each sport. Tension mounted as the ceremonies opened with the marching band's rendition of "We've Only Just Begun." Then the decisive moment arrived as Student Council President Steve Burk placed the coveted crown atop Lorraine Wood's head. The following evening, Queen Lorraine and her court reigned over the annual Homecoming dance from 8:30-11:30 p.m.

Bob Coopridger dejectedly watches the final minute of a Homecoming defeat.

Lorraine's dream becomes a reality as she is crowned Homecoming queen.

A master of ceremonies, red roses, and a jeweled crown are essential for a coronation.

Kent Clark escorts finalist Barb Angott onto the field.

A touchdown minutes before half time brought happy reactions to two anxious finalists.

An ecstatic queen and her court pose for their first formal portrait following the half time ceremonies. They are: Queen Lorraine Wood, Barb Angott, Janis Kime, Kim Urban, Karen Gable, Jeri Kriz, Debbie Duffield, Pat Dietz, Connie Filling.

Karen Gable, Debbie Duffield, Tracy Smith, Denise Sweeney, Bev Sass, Deb Harvey. Back row: Kim Urban, Jan Kime, Earlene Edwards, Pat Freeman, Barb Angott, Julie Heldt.

Seniors await with interest the announcement of the twenty-five semi-finalists.

After drawing Connie Filling's name, Steve Burk watches as she is escorted to her seat.

Nine chairs . . . nine mums . . . await nine finalists.

Kim Cocciola pins a corsage on finalist Barb Angott.

The crowd displays its approval as Jeri Kriz is named a finalist.

Refreshments were served by Marsha Gray to couples attending the annual dance.

Skill and patience were required to excel in many of the games.

The carnival activities provided entertainment for "kids" of all ages.

Band Queen Connie Filling sits in a Corvette before the start of the parade.

A sad-faced clown stops to sell a balloon to a little girl.

After the concert, Virginia Oujiri carefully returns her saxophone to its case.

Bargain hunters had a profitable time at this year's band carnival as band parent Dick Groat auctioned off gasoline, meals at a local restaurant, and a television. Money raised from the carnival helped purchase much needed uniforms. It also helped finance the band trip to Ames, where the members participated in the Veishea parade. The band made a spring marching appearance at the Eastern Iowa Band Festival, where Connie Filling reigned as this year's band queen.

During practice for the parade, drum major Dan Wullenwaber leads the band in "Cohan Salute."

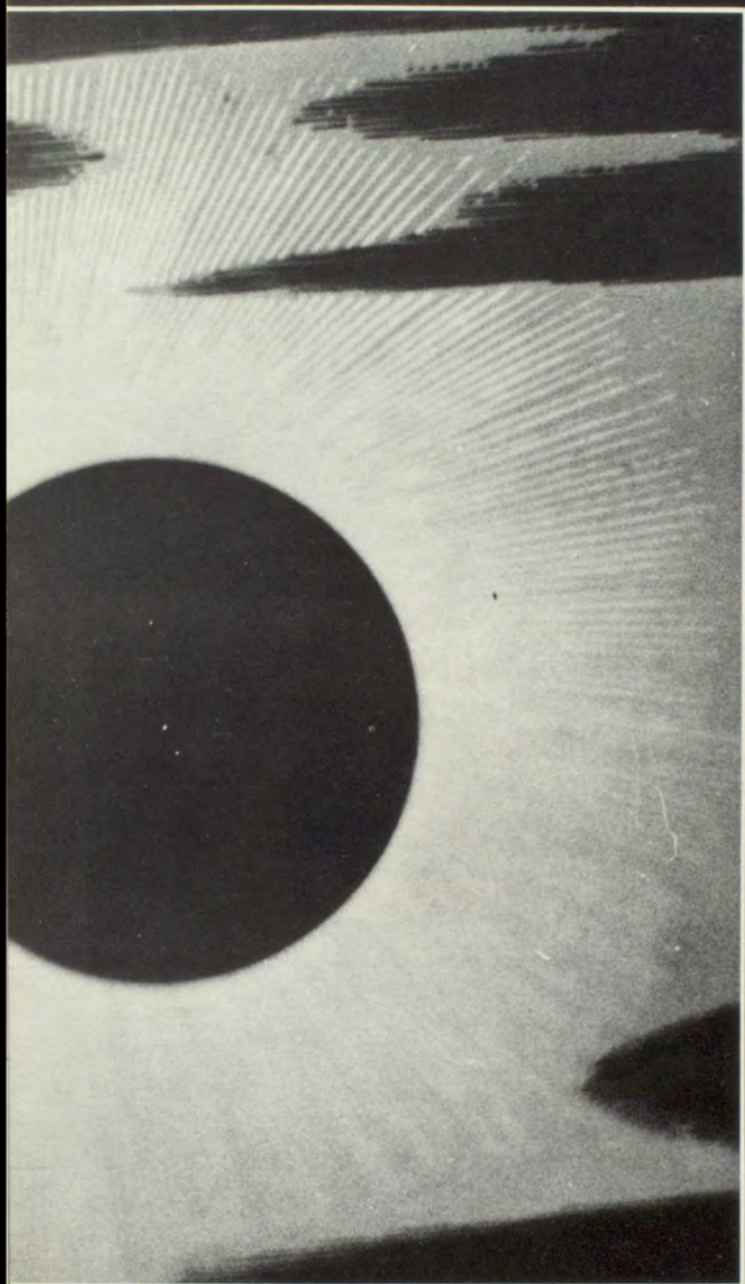

Queen Connie led the Jeff band through the parade in downtown Cedar Rapids.

Mr. Jay Gross, class adviser, found a lively Charleston partner in Karolyn Kaplan.

Stopping to chat with teacher chaperones, Deb Carter and Denny Clift reminisce about high school days.

Cindy Mossburg and Jim Weitenhagen discovered an unusual spot to rest during intermission.

Paisley print halter dresses and suede Edwardian jackets added color to the formal event.

Pastel shades of green, yellow, and blue were used to decorate Armar ballroom for this year's senior prom. Utilizing the theme, "Southern Comfort," members of the decorations committee portrayed scenes from the plantation era around the ballroom. A large showboat decorated one wall, streamers enhanced the dance floor, and junior girls served punch and cookies to the hungry guests. Senior girls donned the popular halter dresses and boys the longer Edwardian coats to dance to the music of "Suede" from 8 p.m. to midnight. Following the prom, couples moved to the basement of the Legion Hall to dance to the music of "Shoe." An early morning breakfast and swim at Lake Macbride capped the evening's festivities. Throughout the year, seniors sponsored pop bottle drives, a rummage sale at Kingston Stadium, a donkey basketball game, and an antique car show to raise money to finance their senior prom.

Gib Ziemer and his date Stacie Danielson are caught in the midst of a magic moment.

Seniors Connie Filling and Tom Newport step out to the lively beat of "Joy to the World."

Southern comfort is exemplified by a tired couple who took time out to relax between dances.

SHARING

Sharing is the big measure of little things, things that people do and are, merely because they're people.

Sharing is watching the Senior Sweethearts spell out "J-Hawks" at a spirited pep assembly.

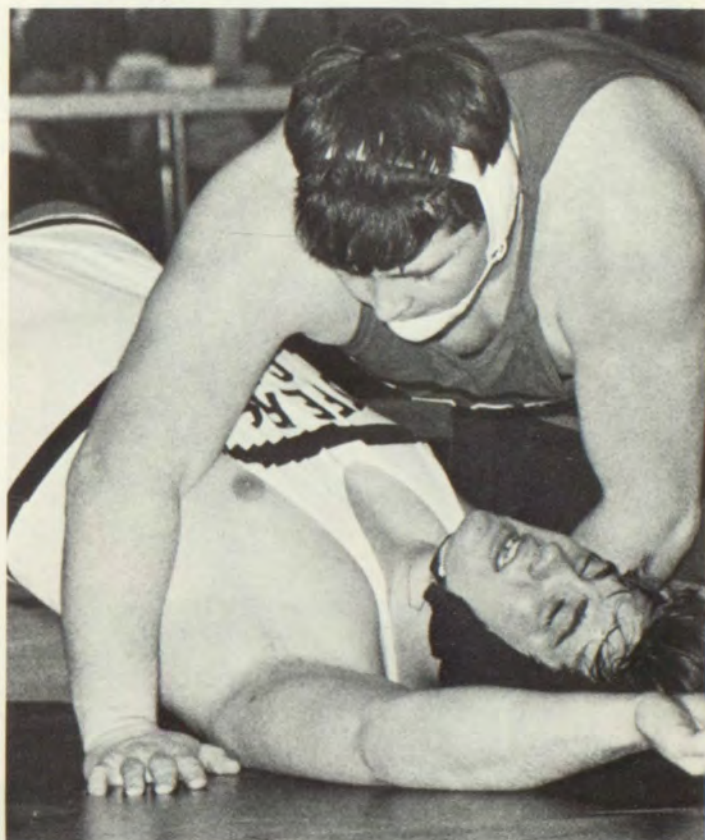

Sharing is having a special girl to help celebrate another swimming victory.

Sharing is enjoying a chat with cast members during intermission of the spring musical.

Sharing is taking the time to cuddle a newborn duck, because you care about others.

Sharing is backing your team—win or lose.

And sharing is making peace not war, for lasting peace can only be found through sharing ideas.

"It's over!" exclaims an exuberant Ray Thorpe upon completing his last semester exam.

Rain-soaked seniors in Mr. Dennis Ellertson's homeroom check in caps and gowns before receiving their diplomas.

Commencement exercises for the 535 members of this year's senior class were held Wednesday, June 7, at Kingston Stadium. Pat Freeman, valedictorian, Kimi Wasson and Craig Murrin, co-salutatorians, and Jeff Kint, representing the senior class, addressed the graduates upon the theme, "Just Imagine." Concert Choir members concluded the message by singing "What The World Needs Now Is Love" and "Where Do I Go?" Steve Burk, Student Council president, and Phil Hesaenius, senior class president, served as masters of ceremonies. The band, under the direction of Mr. Luman Colton, played "King Cotton March," "Paint Your Wagon," and "Battle Hymn of the Republic." One by one the seniors filed across the stage to receive their diplomas from Principal William P. Peterson. Following the recessional, the graduates turned in their caps and gowns to their respective homeroom teachers before officially receiving their diplomas.

The rain began to fall as members of the senior class marched in to "Pomp and Circumstance."

"The World Needs Acceptance" was the theme of Pat Freeman's speech.

Awaiting the signal for the procession to start, seniors lined up in rows outside the stadium.

Jan Birky receives her folder from a school board member while Mrs. Koutny shields remaining folders from the rain with an umbrella.

"I've finally made it," proclaims Cheryl Hamilton upon successfully completing twelve long years of schooling.

Performing Arts

Eighteenth century England was revisited in November when the drama department presented its fall play, "She Stoops to Conquer." The action concerns two gentlemen, Marlow (Dan Long) and Hastings (Jeff Kint), who attempt to win the love of two young ladies, Kate Hardcastle (Teresa David) and Constance Neville (Sherri Hildebrand). Kate and Constance are the daughter and niece of Mr. and Mrs. Hardcastle (Steve Burk and Debby Larson). Tony Lumpkin (Terry Vik) gives the two gentlemen directions to the Hardcastle home, telling them it is an inn where they can spend the night. When the young men arrive at the Hardcastle home, they make a bad impression by mistaking Mr. Hardcastle for a landlord of the inn and Kate as a servant. Meanwhile, Hastings also has romantic problems when he discovers Mrs. Hardcastle has decided Constance should marry Tony. These problems provided comic moments before they are solved in the end.

Two tavern buddies and their lady friend recall happy moments spent with Tony at the inn.

"We never get to go to London," complains Mrs. Hardcastle to her husband.

While Tony and Constance are trying to think of a way out of their predicament, Diggory comes in with a letter for Tony.

Marlow plots with Hastings to win Kate's affections in the Hardcastle parlor.

Acknowledging Kate's newly-acquired gracefulness, Mr. Hardcastle tells of her visitor, Mr. Marlow.

"Perhaps I did call for you after all," Marlow decides upon seeing Kate.

"We'll just see who's the strongest," cries Tony as he threatens his mother with his horsewhip.

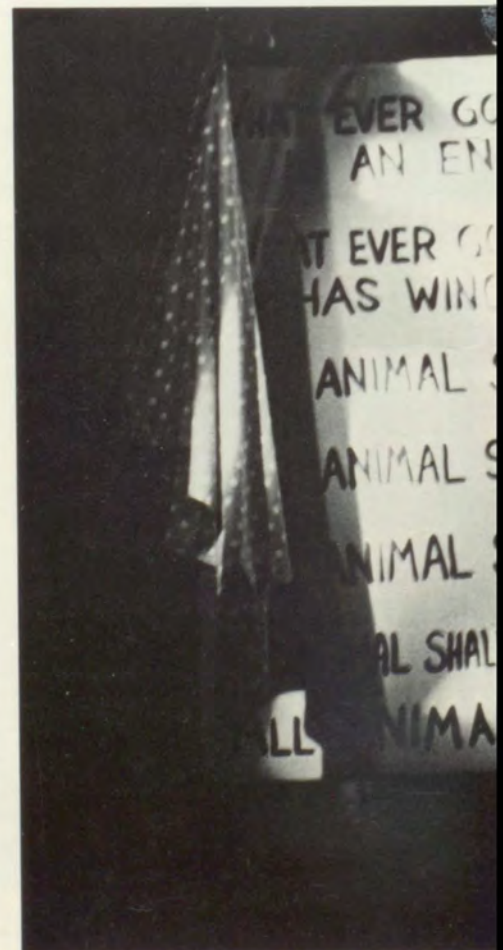

Four traitors of Animal Farm are sentenced to death by their leader Napoleon (Sid Sampson).

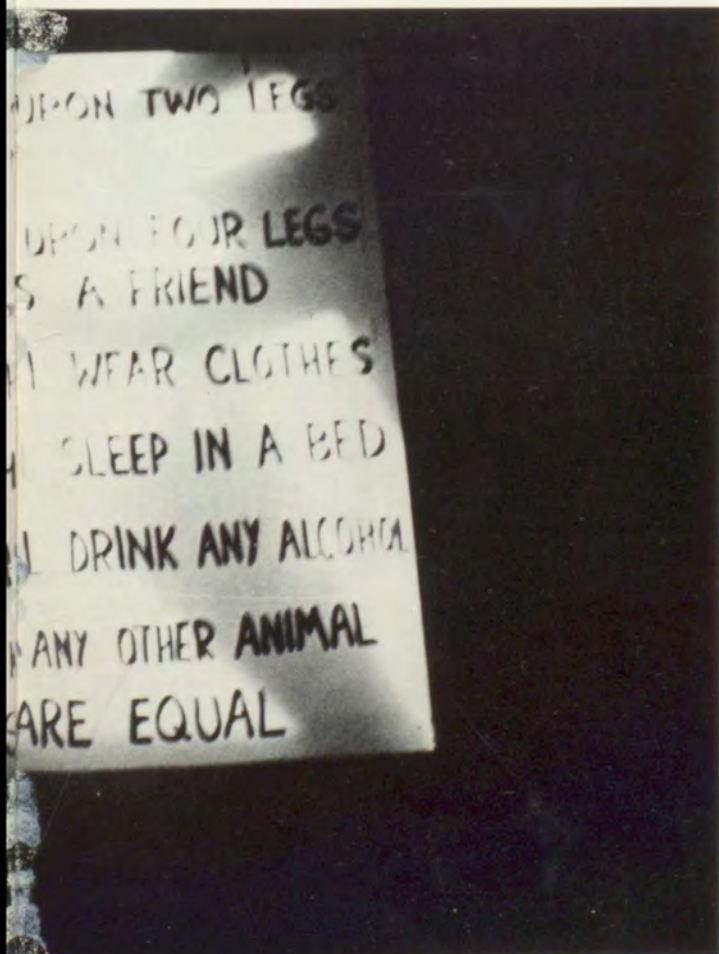

Moses (Randy Raiston) tells of the good life on Sugar Candy Mountain.

"Remembering to do what I'm told—I will always follow Napoleon," sings Boxer (Mike Mortland).

Pigs, horses, cows, and chickens . . . all plotting to revolt? "Golden Future Time," an original musical, came to life in January on the Jefferson stage. The play, based on George Orwell's "Animal Farm," was written by a committee of ASP students, other language arts students, and teachers. The plot deals with animals overruling people and constructing rules of their own under which to live. The Seven Commandments become their basic code with the whole idea the human beings are not good. After a period of time, the pigs become the controlling force, only to break their own rules and conquer all the other animals. The pigs drastically change and begin to take on human characteristics which completely defeats the revolution's purpose. The two major items conveyed to the audience are the political and moral implications. Gib Ziemer and Terry Vik gave Mr. Geuder a break as they took over directing duties completely for the two performances.

The shadow of a windmill on the seven commandments represents the animals' goal to a better way of life.

"Animal Farm will never work," contemplates Benjamin (Stuart Walker).

"We must try to better ourselves," sings Muriel (Lynn Fattig).

Davenport (Mike Pfeffer), Matthew Harrison Brady (Terry Vik), and the townspeople listen intently to a defendant's testimony in the courtroom.

Like the serpent in the garden of Eden, E.K. Hornbeck (Mike James) tempts Rachel (Patti Biederman) with the forbidden fruit—knowledge.

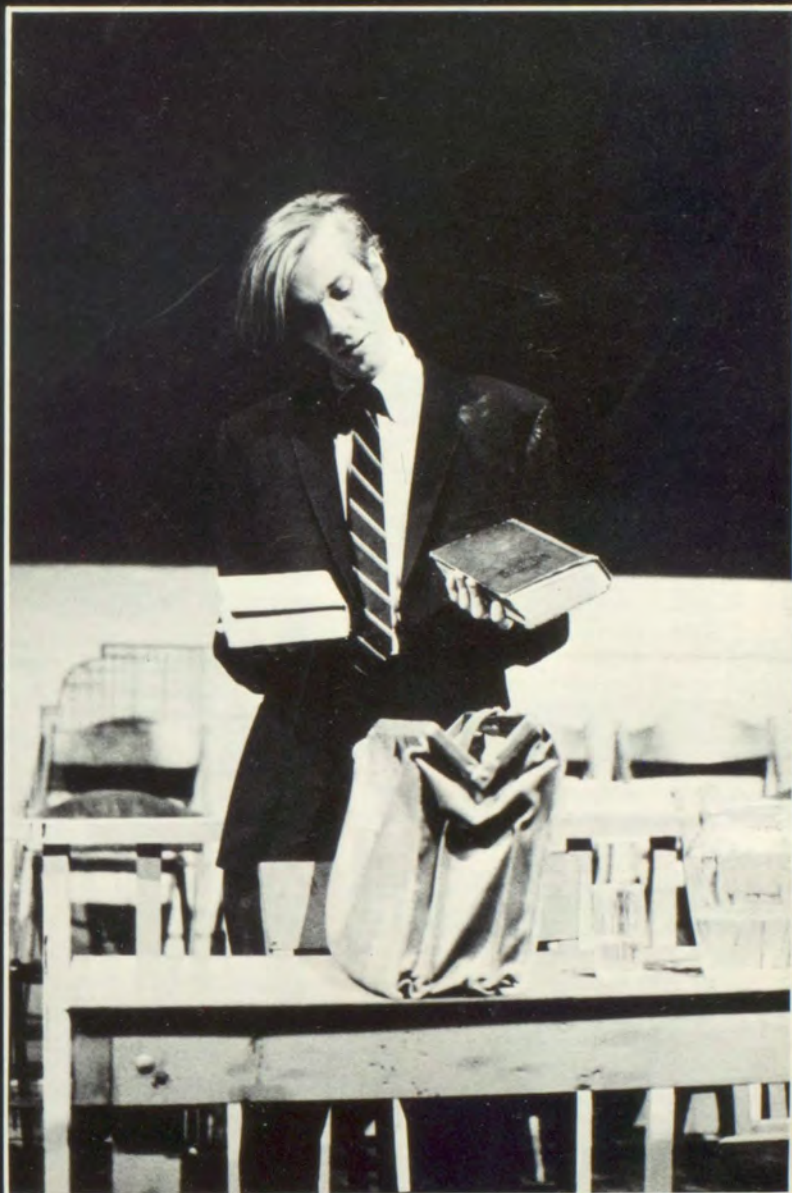

In the midst of a tense revival, Brady attempts to calm the Reverend Jeremiah Brown (Dan Long).

Symbols of evolution and the Bible support the two contrasting viewpoints expressed in "Inherit the Wind," the winter play. Brady (Terry Vik) tried to prove in the trial that the Bible holds all the answers to our existence. Meanwhile, Drummond (David Makinster) supported the right to say and think as an individual by serving as Mr. Cates' (Kirk Tibbetts) attorney. Highlights included a revival meeting and courtroom scenes building to the climactic scene where Drummond gets Brady on the stand and questions his beliefs concerning the Bible. A cast of sixty students was featured as the largest group to perform in a dramatic production on the Jefferson stage, according to Mr. Robert Geuder, director.

Disgraced by the use of profanity in the courtroom, Mrs. Cravitts (Maureen Sullivan) tries to protect a child's mind.

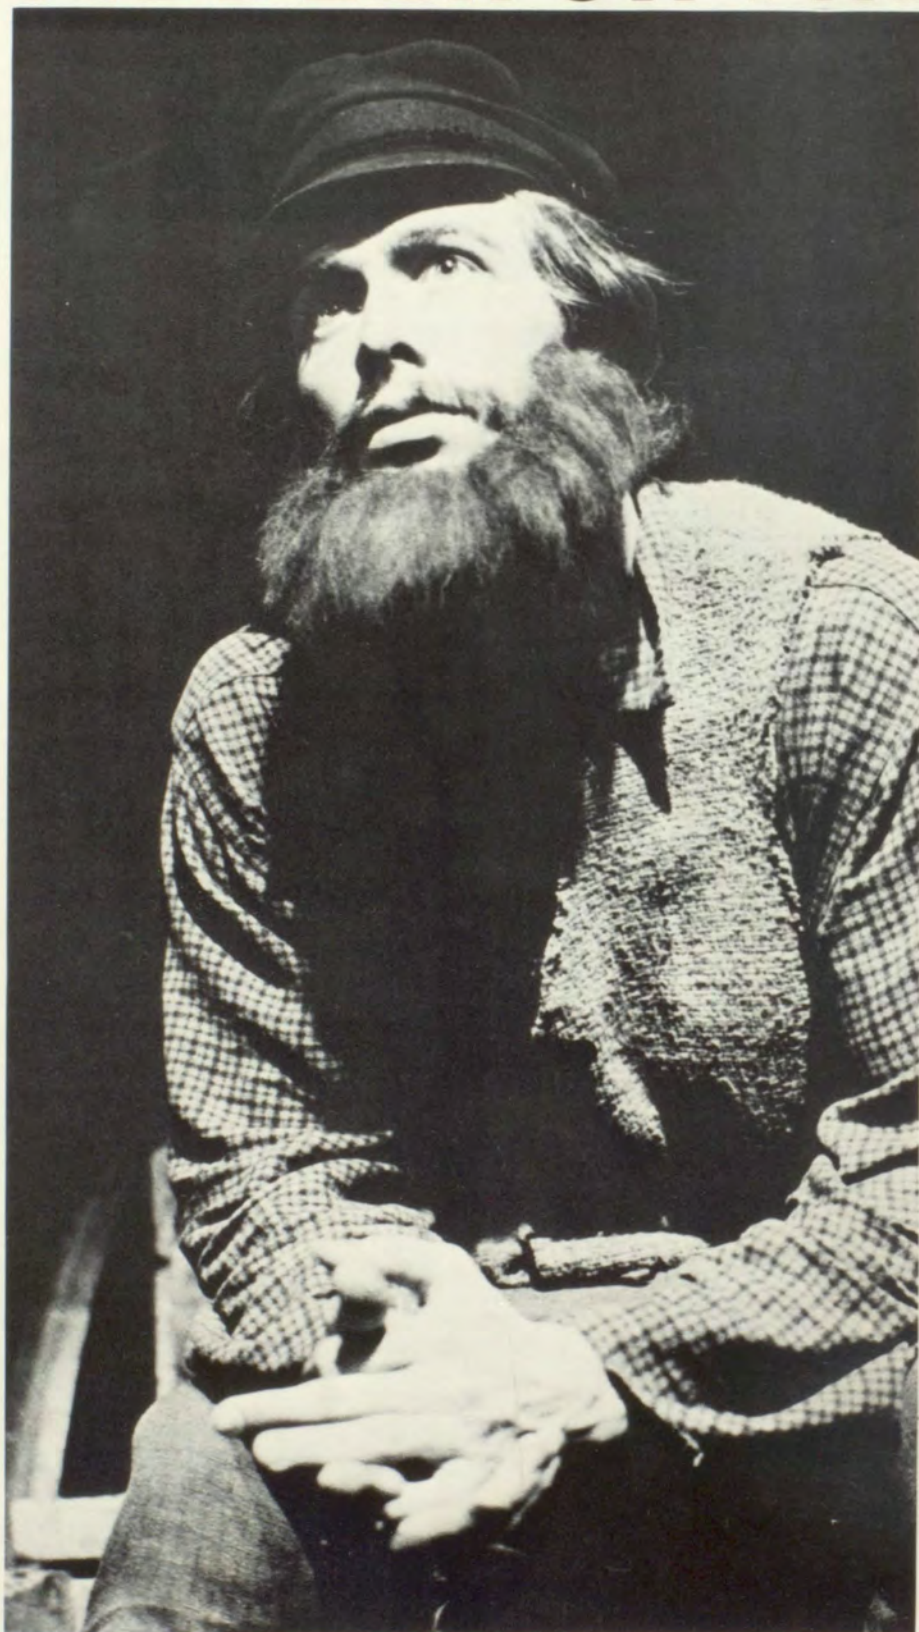

Considering both books to be equal in weight and influence, Henry Drummond (David Makinster) recalls the controversy they caused before stashing them away.

Members of the ladies aid society prepared a luncheon to honor Mr. Brady upon his arrival to Hillsboro.

TRADITION FIDDLER ON THE

Tevye (Bob Brumley) is disturbed upon hearing that his daughter Chava has run off and married a Russian soldier.

ROOF

During a dream, Grandmother Tzeitel returns from the grave.

"A fiddler on the roof? Sounds crazy, no?"

Motel and Tzeitel are married beneath a canopy.

Anatevka, a small Russian village, provided the setting for this year's musical, "Fiddler on the Roof." The show begins with Tevye trying to find husbands for his oldest daughters. His Jewish faith establishes traditions about everything, including marriage. Yente, the matchmaker, finds a match for Tzeitel, the eldest daughter. Lazar Wolf, the butcher, has asked to marry Tzeitel. However, she breaks tradition by marrying Motel, a poor tailor. Hodel also breaks tradition by marrying Perchik, a student from Kiev. The third daughter, Chava, marries a Russian soldier whom Tevye cannot accept.

Motel (Jeff Kint) and his family watch the Rabbi give a proper blessing for the sewing machine.

Perchik (Dan Long) disagrees with the traditions upheld by the Anatevka villagers.

Elated by the announcement of Tevye's approval, the Constable joins in the celebration.

"... and this Joseph of yours wants you to leave your home and family behind?"

Members of the family gather together at sundown to ask God to hear their Sabbath Prayer.

Chairs lined the aisles to accommodate record breaking crowds who packed the audience to see "Fiddler on the Roof" during its six night run. Mrs. JoAnn Holt spent endless hours teaching cast members choreography for the "Tradition" number as well as giving assurance to the four bottle dancers. The musical, which received numerous standing ovations, featured such unusual effects as Grandmother Tzeitel flying across the stage on a pulley, the fiddler climbing to the top of the roof, and Fruma Sarah balancing atop Scott Smith's shoulders during the dream sequence. However, all the hard work paid off as judges for the annual TAG presentation awarded the "Best Production of the Year" plaque to Jefferson for "Fiddler on the Roof" this year.

Many hours of tedious rehearsal were required for Tom Newport and Randy Fields to perfect their bottle dance.

"Here are the two boys I was telling you about," exclaims Yente (Julie Baker) the matchmaker to Golde.

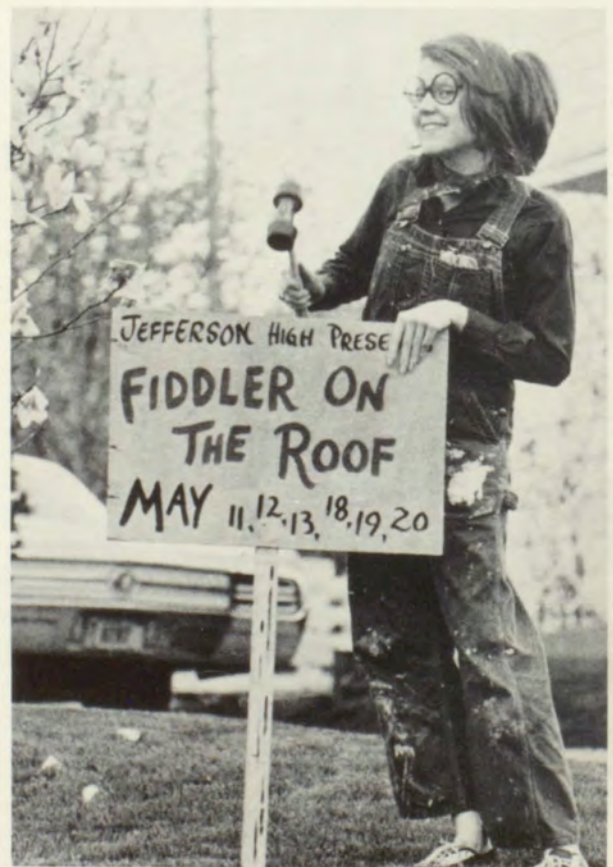

Diane Wilson made endless trips from the prop room to scene shop before every performance of "Fiddler."

Gary Kohl and Kent Miller rehearse light cues with the stage manager before "Inherit the Wind."

Getting a haircut for his role in "Inherit the Wind" helps David Makinster get into character.

Spring weather allowed Sallie Caldwell, publicity crew chairman, to publicize the spring musical with yard signs.

Backstage crews consisted of many drama minded students who worked several hours hunting up props, sewing costumes, hanging lights, and painting yard signs. The prop crew had to find such items as an organ grinder, a live monkey, and a Russian-looking sewing machine. Sewing eighty costumes for the sophomore musical put the crew in a frenzy, but with the help of a sewing machine Santa left under the Christmas tree, the load seemed lighter. Make-up crews were also faced with such unusual tasks as creating several different animal faces and cleaning glue off make-up counters. Mr. Roger Meeker's duties ranged from set construction to giving haircuts. After performances, tired cast members wearily awaited final photographs while shift, prop, and light crews made necessary changes.

Jackie Harris diligently finishes sewing prayer shawls for male cast members.

Ranging from Bach's double choir motet to the more contemporary "Requiem for the Masses," this year's Concert Choir performed a variety of choral music selections. The choir was honored to be chosen to appear as the guest choir at the Dorian Music Festival in Decorah during semester break. Thanks to Old Man Winter, an unexpected snow storm meant an extra day of vacation and an opportunity to see more of the Luther College campus than expected. On April 4, the choir embarked on the annual spring tour to New York City this year. The group presented concerts along the way in Illinois, Indiana, and New Jersey. Rounding out a highly successful year, "Fiddler on the Roof" played to capacity audiences each night of an extended six day run.

Concert Choir members sing "The Creation" at the Junior-Senior High West Side Vocal Festival.

As members stand in double choir formation, Mr. Koepke directs Bach's "Sing Ye."

Jeff Kint gets carried away in the excitement of "Thoroughly Modern Millie."

To the delight of the audience, Gib Ziemer gives his rendition of "The Spanish Flea."

Encouraging the audience to clap along, Mike Pfeffer sings his solo in "Green Green."

Neil Van Slyke and Sue Griggs enjoy dancing to "Pick a Bale," an audience favorite.

Schlottfelt, Sherrie Hildebrand, Patti Biederman, Kirk Tibbetts, Sherri Flagg, and Terry Vik.

'And here they are, the West Side Delegation! Screams split the air as 20 figures dressed in blue and white come rushing out. Variety keynoted this year's program as the group jumped into "Thoroughly Modern Millie," frolicked through "Pick a Bale," and slowed the tempo with songs such as "We've Only Just Begun." Presenting a striking picture for all, the second half kicked off with flashy new vests of patriotic red and blue. The swing group wrapped up its program with a stunning number, a "Patriotic Medley." Taking first place at the Adel Swing Choir Festival and performing at the Dorian Festival were two of the group's highlights this year.

Sherri Hildebrand and Mary Kay Novak snap their fingers to the beat of "Glory."

West Side members concentrate on the tricky choreography of "Pass Me By."

Twice as strong, the Hilltop Singers doubled its membership this year to include 120 girls. "Movin' On" and "Scarborough Fair" were two of the favorites the group sung at appearances. The girls dressed in attractive outfits in pastel shades with multicolored scarfs to enliven their performances. Highlighting the year for members of Mixed Chorus was the sophomore musical, "Animal Farm," presented to large audiences in January. The group also sung at the Junior-Senior High Vocal Festival as well as the West Side Vocal Festival this year.

Following their final selection, Hilltop Singer girls smile approvingly as the audience applauds.

Broadway musicals, Rockefeller Center, and the Empire State Building were three of the many sights enjoyed by Orchestra and Concert Choir members when they joined together to take one spring tour to New York this year. The trip came to an end with a two hour jet ride back home where a welcoming committee was awaiting their arrival. The annual candy and fruit sales were intensified as a larger sum of money was required to finance this trip. Four members, Denise Bassett, Bob Brumley, Theresa David, and Kathleen Novak, were selected to play in the All-State Orchestra which was held at the KRNT Theatre in Des Moines.

To stay together, baritone players must watch Mr. Colton as well as the music.

Concerts kept the band busy this year as they performed at Indianola, Tama, and Ames along with their regularly scheduled home concerts. Two bands were formed from the 130 piece group, one being a smaller more select group to add interest and variety to concerts this year. The band also marched in the Veisha parade at Ames.

Concentrating on the music, the drummers hold the band to a steady tempo during "Colas Bruegnon."

Flags unfurl as the color guard marches onto the field.

Blue flags helped the marching band present more colorful half time performances this year. One of the more memorable productions was the band's half time show with Washington, which consisted mostly of rock tunes and precision drills. The band, directed by Mr. Luman Colton, increased its size from 100 to 130 students this year, and the color guard, instructed by Mr. Roger Meeker, also increased to 15 members. All band members appeared in black uniforms for the first time this year.

Tradition came once again to the pages of the 1972 Statesman as "Spirit of '72" was adopted as the theme of this year's annual. Thirty-two juniors and seniors were enrolled in Publications Design, divided into two classes which met daily the second and fifth hours. Improved communication between the two sections and better picture content helped the staff to create what it feels is the best yearbook published in 15 years at Jefferson. Duotone posterized division pages, a specially designed embossed cover, and the use of many special effects in the opening and closing sections highlight the staff's latest achievement. Mr. Ronald Smrha, adviser, addressed the annual Iowa High School Press Association and spoke at a regional workshop for advisers at Oelwein in April.

Whether it was covering administrative policies, class activities, or an athletic event, members of the Outlook staff continued to provide informative articles. The Outlook staff achieved its fifth consecutive All-American rating from the National Scholastic Press Association in March. Judges praised the staff for its good coverage and sharp news judgment. Highlights of the 15 issues included movie reviews ranging from "The Boyfriend" to "The Godfather" and interpretative features on foreign exchange instructors and other news worthy individuals.

Thespians got off to a good start by traveling to the Guthrie Theatre in Minneapolis and hosting an open house for sophomores in September. The Spirit of '72 was apparent in the wee hours of the morning while finishing a set or blasting the public with radio and television announcements to publicize upcoming productions. Inducting several new members in February helped support the group at its final banquet where present and former Thespians bid Mr. Roger Meeker farewell. Culminating the year was a five day trip to Indiana to attend the Second International Theatre Arts Conference.

Sweeping the stage for pennies, Ray Thorpe helped pull the Thespians out of financial difficulty during the Chili Dinner Theatre.

Practical on-the-job training for a future job as a stenographer is the basic goal of Office Education. Girls attended classes in the morning and worked in the afternoon throughout the year. Supervised by Mrs. Mary Harker, money raising projects included selling candy, reflection Christmas cards, and Valentine messages. An employer appreciation banquet was hosted by the girls at the Roosevelt Hotel.

Sue Graham and LaVona Joyce greet an employer at the door.

Hassocks, mirrors, chimes, and candles were sold this year by the senior data processing class. The girls learned to perform clerical duties such as key punch coding, calculating units, and filing. Members attended morning classes and each afternoon practiced their newly-acquired skills at on-the-job work stations. Annie Duffy and Leslie Cleveland placed first in the state in key punch proficiency at Des Moines.

Striving to improve her key punch proficiency, Chris Jacobsen punches cards for a manual.

To raise funds for the club's treasury, Miss Loraine Bomkamp arranges items for sale in the display case.

Distributive Education and Trade and Industry are work experience programs offered only to seniors. Each program consists of classroom instruction, on-the-job experience, and club activities. Starting off the year for DECA members was the annual trip to Chicago, followed by the state leadership conference to Des Moines in March. A branch of the co-operative work education program, T & I provides on-the-job training at local industrial firms along with applied studies of business and manufacturing. During the year the group also toured business firms around the Cedar Rapids area.

Starting the year with newly elected officers, Student Council stepped forth and began fighting the traditional battle of a lack of enthusiasm. The varied activities sponsored by the Council this year included a student exchange program with other area schools, Homecoming, and many charity drives. Members attempted to organize a Chautauqua Days presentation and all-school mixers, but had to drop these projects eventually because of student apathy. The Council rounded out its year by making arrangements to purchase a metal hawk for the entrance to the gymnasium and electing officers for the coming year under Mr. Hiding's supervision.

Recognition of academic achievement was given to 86 new junior and senior members inducted into the Aristotelian chapter of the National Honor Society May 18. The evening ceremony was conducted in the auditorium. Long hours of hard work and sacrifices paid off as each inductee was permitted to invite six close friends or relatives to witness the occasion. Initiates were notified of their election into National Honor Society a week in advance to allow them enough time to extend their invitations. Dr. Richard Thomas, chaplain and history instructor at Cornell College, was the guest speaker for the program.

Late night and early morning rehearsals were nothing unusual for the Doll-fin-nettes who presented this year's swim show in April. The theme "Etc." was selected because of the variety of numbers the girls decided to perform. Some of the numbers presented were "Summer of '42", a romantic duet, and a comedy routine. Costumes ranged from old-fashioned swim suits of yesteryear to modern attire. Throughout the program, psychedelic lights accented the different sets.

'Beat 'Em, Beat 'Em' shout the 1972 Pep Club members. Events were underway as girls learned cheers and got acquainted at a summer pizza party at Ellis. Under the leadership of Joyce Niebuhr, a year of work and fun was planned. Projects such as tam sales, sponsoring mixers, and holding bake sales were done to help balance the budget. Trips to KLWW, secretly decorating houses, making clever signs, a snake dance, and the all-time favorite spring slumber party in the gym were enjoyed by all.

We're the cheerleaders, we always smile. Got lots of pep and a bouncy style. We like to make noise and have lots of fun. We never stop cheering till the game is won. We backed the J-Hawks the whole year through, with loads of signs, good luck notes too. Through rain, snow, and sleet we're always there—excuse the soggy outfits and our straggly hair. So proud to be at Jefferson with the big white and blue, we love you J-Hawks, we certainly do!

Fifty J-Hawk gridders flew high and mighty on the gridiron this season on their way to compiling an impressive 7-2 record. The campaign kicked-off in high style with two home victories over Davenport West and Dubuque Hempstead. A road trip the next week-end showed the J-Hawks dominating every statistic including the scoreboard, 34-0. Bettendorf was the next victim as Jeff picked the Bulldogs apart, 42-6. The enthusiasm suddenly popped when city-rival Washington handed Jeff its first defeat in a hard fought 32-24 battle. To add insult to injury, Dubuque Senior handed the J-Hawks a 21-14 Homecoming defeat the following week-end. After dropping two games, the gridders jumped back into the win column by downing Iowa City West and Kennedy. The Big Blue Machine ended the season on the right foot by soundly stomping the Muscatine Muskies in the finale.

It's a long hard road from sophomore football games on Saturday mornings to playing on the varsity team at Kingston Stadium. However, according to Coach Gary White, his team will be ready to make that transition next fall. The team's winning 7-2 season record bears out this fact. Although finishing only third in the conference standings, they scored impressive victories over Davenport West and Dubuque Hempstead before bowing to Clinton. The squad bounced back to beat Bettendorf, Washington, Dubuque Senior, and Iowa City High. After losing an inter-city battle to Kennedy, they ended their season by polishing off Muscatine.

Reflecting back over the fall season, Cross Country Coach John Ask described his team as being very young with a lot of promise. The team was also plagued by small numbers as only 12 boys came out this year. Paced by team captain Dan Nekvinda, the squad saw standouts in juniors Rod Adair, Craig Aldrich, and Roger Meeks. "Having quality and not quantity" was the way Coach Larry Nolting described his 8 female harriers this year. In only their second year of competition at Jeff, the sport became interscholastic with the girls competing against some of the top schools around the state. Tracy Smith was the team's only returning letterman.

J-Hawk gymnasts attempted to hold their first place ranking in the state, but dropped to a tie for second place with Kennedy. Coach Tom Novak, a former gymnast himself who specialized on the high bar, paced the 14 man squad including four lettermen — Terry Johnson, Matt Hoffman, Greg Norris, and Mike Doty — to a 7-3 record. During the state meet at Kennedy, teammates Johnson, Hoffman, Doty, and Bill Kahler worked hard during the morning preliminaries to make it to the finals that night where they compiled 60 points for the J-Hawks.

took to the water this year as a fall sport. This change to fall competition came about primarily to alleviate the congestion of girls athletics during the third quarter, according to Coach Jim Taylor. Along with this change, the girls enjoyed a longer campaign that ran for thirteen weeks instead of the usual eight. Six lettermen returned to aid the squad in compiling its 4-6 record.

One of Assistant Coach Joann Gerdes' many duties was to time swimmers during practice sessions.

Two bright green frog mascots and red, white, and blue suits greeted spectators at swim meets this season. At every home and away meet the bugged-eyed frogs were placed on the end of the diving board to cheer swimmers to victory. The new patriotic suits were purchased by individual swimmers and provided more incentive, according to Coach Jim Voss. The team also brought home a first place trophy at the J-Hawk Relays—the first time in four years that they have won their own relays. Eight returning lettermen on a squad of 40 aided the team as they finished the season with an 8-7 record. One record fell this season when senior Rick Forrester broke the old standard time of 1:08.2 by swimming the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:07.6. Six seniors were honored during this year's Senior Day, when the tankers played host to West Waterloo.

Reeling off 10 wins in their last 13 outings, the J-Hawk basketball squad finished the season with a 10-4 record in conference action. During the season a rat race developed for the Valley crown with the Big Blue Machine settling for third place behind city rivals Washington and Kennedy. The squad split a pair of matches with Kennedy while they lost both games to Washington. The J-Hawks were ready for district competition as they dumped Regis, 78-63, and then went on to oust Prairie from the district circuit. Their state bid ended when Kennedy handed the J-Hawks a 78-63 setback in first round of substate action. Co-captains this year were Rusty Hamilton and Jim Alberts.

Good team work plus lots of hustle to make up for their size was the way Coach Bob Becker described his sophomore cagers. The squad started out slowly but kept right in there as they won six straight games. They finished 6-8 in Mississippi Valley play and were 9-9 overall. "We had our ups and downs this season," explained Coach Becker. "What we lacked in height we made up for in hustle when we were playing our best. However, we just couldn't put it all together consistently." At the season's close, Guy Stoecker was voted the most valuable player. Steve Jones received the best defensive player award, Rick Bouzek was named honorary team captain, Jeff Doonan was voted most improved, and Bruce Barber was cited for contributing the most during practice.

Steamrolling their way to a perfect wrestling record were the J-Hawk grapplers. With two meets yet to go on their roster, the squad clinched the Mississippi Valley Conference mat title and finished the season with a 9-0 league mark. During sectional competition the team pulled 11 matmen through to districts. These 11 men earned 108 points to win the team a first place award. The next step was taken during district competition as five grapplers qualified for state berths and amassed a total of 59 points to win the AAA district mat title. Gary Bentrin, Kent Miller, Brad Suma, Mike Gallagher, and Steve Reiss earned trips to the state tourney while Suma and Gallagher brought home individual state titles to end a perfect season. The team finished second in the state.

Determination and desire are two of the vital qualities that are developed in sophomore wrestlers. The squad started out the season in style with victories over Dubuque Hempstead, 30-21, and Muscatine, 45-6. Then the team ran into trouble as they tried to defeat city rivals Kennedy and Wash. A close battle ensued between Jeff and Wash but the Warriors came out on top, 29-24. At the sophomore quadrangular, the J-Hawks placed second with 77½ points behind West Waterloo's 88. The team finished the season with a 6-4 record. At the season's end, Paul Viktora was voted the most outstanding sophomore wrestler.

"We have a good chance at districts and should send three or four girls to state," predicted Coach Tom Novak in a newspaper interview. That's exactly what happened as Sheri Abney, Jo Kelley, and Jeri Kriz all earned the right to compete at the state meet. Their efforts, with help from the rest of the team, landed them a third place berth at the district level. In only their second year of competition, the girls track team qualified four girls to compete in the state meet. Sherry Jones, Denise McCallum, Tracy Smith, and Debbie Zitek all qualified to run in the state meet.

Under the strain of close competition, Debbie Zitek grimaces as she crosses the finish line.

Scoring in nearly every event, the J-Hawk cindermen grabbed the Mississippi Valley indoor track title and placed second behind C. R. Washington in outdoor competition. With an outstanding 58 foot throw of the discus at the state indoor meet, Rick Marsh placed at the top during competitive meets while Neil Van Slyke handled the shot put chores. In the high jump category, Rick Tallman was a standout, according to Coach John Ask. Leading the 440 yard relay was Jim Dulin while Mike Mortland, one of the top sprinters, contributed much to the 440 and 880 yard relay teams. Despite the rainy weather, the squad hosted the J-Hawks Relays, Mississippi Valley Conference, and state meet at Kingston Stadium.

Finishing their season with an impressive 10-3 record, the girls tennis squad completed their campaign with an enlarged roster of 45 girls. Senior Linda Harney paced the team as she held down the number one singles spot. Meanwhile, May 26 and 27 culminated the three month tennis campaign for the boys squad as the state meet was held in Des Moines. Junior Rick Jorgenson, the number one singles player, paced the netters to a 7-7 season.

Hard practices and uncooperative weather plagued the boys and girls golf teams. Practice outdoors had to be curtailed somewhat this year because of the rainy weather. "This year the girls team had an eighteen meet roster," explained Coach Dennis Ferreter. Six girls returned from last year's team to help compile a season record of 4 wins and 12 losses. Twenty-one boys comprised the boys golf team under Coach Wally Horn. The team practiced at Ellis Park where they played all of their home meets. Senior Bruce Wilson, the only returning letterman, paced the squad to its 3-8 mark in Mississippi Valley action.

Filling the shoes of last year's Mississippi Valley Conference champions was a difficult task that faced the glovemen this year. Starting off the year with new uniforms and equipment helped give the team a new look. Hurling for the J-Hawks were Kent Clark, Don Stepanek, and Craig Wilford, with Steve Schamberger handling the catching chores. The team began the year with a winning streak, only to be stopped by a strong Regis squad. In district competition, Jeff sent Kennedy and Regis to the sidelines before losing to Washington, 1-0.

Positive concern

toward students has brought about efforts to humanize the educational system in recent years. Jefferson is no exception as many changes in the operational procedures were enacted by the administration this year. They include scheduling homeroom only when necessary, keeping more accurate attendance records, conducting a new type of registration for classes in January, and introducing the pass-fail system of grading during the second semester. With hopes of obtaining a closer working relationship between teachers and students, a new student-advisee program was initiated. Under this program each teacher met with his twenty advisees once every nine weeks to render personal assistance.

Weekly attendance meetings and cafeteria patrol were additional duties the five counselors undertook this year. To aid students in selecting future occupations, counselors made arrangements for guest speakers to conduct vocational seminars throughout the year. Since there were over 1,000 schedule changes made in the fall, a new system of registration known as "card bin" was introduced for the spring semester. Aides and associates helped ease the burden for some teachers by typing and correcting tests, supervising student structured time, and helping with classroom instruction.

Striving to meet the needs of more students the CMC continued its campaign to modernize its facilities. A new feature this year was a checkout system whereby students wanting to obtain books had to present their ID cards. The primary reason behind this new method was to alleviate illegible handwriting and have a tighter control over outgoing material. An abundance of new statues to checkout, added reference volumes, and staying open Mondays and Thursdays from 7-9 p.m. were services available to all CMC patrons.

Gaining first hand information for a research paper on pollution, a student observes an example in our own environment.

Activities ranging from a Rabbi speaking on Jewish customs to writing childrens stories were experienced by Miss Eveadell Brink's two ASP classes. Students in Mrs. Diane Swanson's writing lab classes wore out pencils and had writers cramp after completing descriptive, expository, and narrative themes. Meanwhile, students in the required sophomore classes examined a broad spectrum of literary fields including novels, mass media, poetry, drama, and individualized reading.

Informality helps students acquire a more thorough knowledge of their friends and teachers. Employing this philosophy, Mrs. Bettye Cleveland arranged her classroom chairs in a circle and based her World Literature class upon the principles outlined by Dr. Leo Buscaglia's speech entitled, "Love in the Classroom." To comprehend the problems illustrated in "The Miracle Worker," students in Miss Darlene Bigger's sophomore class pretended to be blind. In October, Mr. Robert Geuder's Reader's Theatre class was invited by the public library staff to present a program for elementary children.

Snails, omelets, and onion soup were some of the dishes French IV students whipped up in class to acquaint themselves with French cuisine. Spanish games were played each Friday by Mrs. Donna Green's students to increase their knowledge of the language. Mr. Adalberto Rodriguez had his students do projects written in Spanish on different South American countries. Commuting between Washington and Jefferson proved to be very hectic for German instructor Mr. Gilbert Maas, who taught three classes during his first year at Jeff.

A special effect is given to Mr. Rodriguez's Spanish III class with a fish eye lens.

Pollution, wars, and over-population were realities faced by Mr. Russell Daniels' American Studies classes. Sophomores in Mr. Jim Taylor's and Mrs. Jaroslava Wheatley's classes participated in mock panel discussions and simulation projects. "If two lines intersect, they intersect in exactly one point." This is the first theorem that geometry students encountered upon opening their books in September. As the year progressed so did the difficulty of the theorems. For those students who were not college bound, a new type of geometry course was added. In this class, the mechanics of using a slide rule were discussed. Students in advanced algebra and trigonometry were taught math by a new method. These classes used the packet system, whereby each student worked individually according to his own speed.

Music Survey I was added to the curriculum and Music Horizons was renamed Music Survey II. To broaden students creativity in art, Mr. Augustine Brembah, an exchange teacher from Ghana, Africa, taught sculpturing and weaving. The Home Economics department broadened its spectrum by offering classes in child development and advanced foods and nutrition.

Distributive Education members were kept busy selling candy and conducting bake sales to raise funds for a trip to Chicago besides performing the essential task of measuring seniors for caps and gowns. Informative occupational speeches by Kirkwood officials, a policeman, and a grocery store owner highlighted the year. Meanwhile, Senior Stenography students visited the IBM Corporation and an insurance company with their instructor, Miss Jeanette Williams. The annual employer's tea and banquet were held by Mrs. Mary Harker's Office Education class to honor their employers. Frustration was the typical expression displayed on the faces of driver's education students who found that they would have to take the final driving test. According to a new state law, only those students whose birthdays fall on the first, thirteenth, and twenty-fourth of each month must now take the test. The physical education program took on a co-ed look with Mr. Ron Schirm teaching girls football and volleyball classes. Much to the dismay of many students, sophomore swimming and junior medical self help classes were continued.

"Sometimes it's easy to lose yourself in a crowd of 2,000 students. You see the others every day and know them by their faces and the things they do, but in your isolation you never get to know what they are really like on the inside, and they never get to know you. But it isn't always this way. When you take the time to discover a person, you find there are things to share. You experience understanding, the seal of friendship. There's great diversification in a population of 2,000. The others here reflect our society, what you are and often, what you would like to be. It's like looking in a mirror, all you see are the images."

Craig Cocciola informs the animals of the coming Golden Future Time.

"I'm never quite sure when I wake up in the morning what's going to greet me when I venture into the day. It can be so confusing to be a person. My feelings are always getting mixed up; it's often impossible to sort them out at all. Love gets tangled up with hurt and doubt, happiness is so easily shattered and youth is lost with each passing minute. But hope somehow lightens the blackness and knowing someone cares can keep me going. Someday I'll reach Cloud Nine. I think I've made it to number six and a half already! So I'll keep trying, maybe tomorrow . . . Captured in a word, a picture, an idea are my reflections."

"Suddenly the future isn't just the future; it is tomorrow. Thirteen years of going to school are ending, and there are many decisions to make. Being a senior didn't mean our days were always happy and carefree. Many days brought insecurity, confusion, and fear. We looked to a future of college or jobs or the war. And then we awakened to find our high school days a thing of the past. The task of being a senior and deciding our future was not an easy one, but we tried and one day we will realize we have succeeded."

Another year . . .
 comes to a close
 Yet time continues,
 never ceasing.
 A spirit contained within each soul
 Conveys memories
 of happiness and sorrow.
 Echoes of silent silhouettes
 in the foyer,
 Ecstatic cheering
 of a state champion,
 Quiet undetected moments
 in a classroom.
 Time passes onward,
 Formulating one year, then many.
 We look back to yesterday
 But strive for tomorrow.

Reflections of spirit . . .
 Still come to mind occasionally.
 Moments of silent meditation,
 Running confidently onward
 To score the winning touchdown,
 The heralding of a trumpet
 To open a football game's festivities,
 The triumphant cries
 of reaching one's goal.
 Light hearted touches of growing friendships.
 Unfortunately, only too soon
 A dead leaf falls quietly to the ground
 And a quick gay step
 Turns it to dust,
 Only to be reborn again.

Once a reality,

now a memory, our lives fly by like summer winds. Another year has passed and with it the completion of another Statesman. Staff members will remember the many near catastrophies, heated discussions, and the frenzied hours before an important deadline. The completion of this 240 page book will last a lifetime as a record of Jeff in '72. To the entire staff, I would like to extend my appreciation, especially to Kris Bard for her superb job of counting the number of pictures in the junior section endlessly, to Connie Filling for her fine coverage of the drama department, and to Jeff Buck and Pam Volz for their arguments about the space given to sports compared to drama. Special appreciation goes to Marsha Gray for her help in the opening and closing sections. Photography was excellent with the skill shown by Mike McInerney, which helped make this the best annual in J-Hawk history. I would like to extend my deepest appreciation to Inter-Collegiate Press for their assistance throughout the book. Finally, I would like to thank Mr. Ronald Smrha, our adviser, for his patience and assistance. A candle flickers, and a quick gust of wind extinguishes it. As the year comes to a close I wish you peace and happiness and sincerely hope that these pages will bring back fond memories of the "Spirit of 72" in the future.
