IDEALLY, the 1974 Statesman will portray personalities and events as they really were at Jefferson instead of how they could have been. It was with this idea in mind that the Statesman staff chose "We're all in this together" as its theme. More than ever before, students found themselves caught up in affairs of the country such as the Watergate scandal, the energy crisis, and rising inflation. Concerned views over national problems, however, were not the only ones expressed. Ranging from familiarizing themselves with a completely new administration, and with them their briefcases full of innovative policies, to suffering through the worst season of J-Hawk football in 12 years, Jeff students went through it together. Freezing classrooms resulting from the energy crisis, phone calls to parents in the aftermath of the new attendance policy, and a general wave of apathy among students were all common occurrences as, once again, J-Hawk students underwent another year aimed at the completion of high school.

WE'RE ALL IN THIS TOGETHER

Impressions are ideas or sensations implanted into the brain as the result of an experience. Walking through the halls of Jefferson is indeed an experience, which leaves its impressions upon the minds of the students who spend their days in varied activities. As the students are different, so are their impressions. Whether school is remembered as a time of really living and enjoying or a time of painful drudgery depends upon the individual. Just as each individual has his own unique fingerprints, Jefferson has left its own impressions for all of us to recall.

IMPRESSIONS ARE...

ESCAPE

DEFINING

school and its true purpose is becoming increasingly more difficult. A recent attempt at relevance by the faculty through the addition of more practical classes, such as Child Development, Auto Mechanics, and Office Education, has left many students wondering if school, as we know it, will ultimately be of some consequence. At least there has been a halting attempt on the school's part to allow a small margin for freedom of thought. The amazing result has been that this responsibility has been accepted by students and applied to that formerly obscure concept known as . . . everyday life.

A Slice of Life

Indian summer added the final touch to a perfect setting in Ellis Park for the nine finalists. They are: Debbie Lamb, Stephanie Siefken, Sue Johnson, Barb Kuenzi, Sara Steele, Carrie Fulton, Debbie Boyd, Linda Reardon, and Colleen Murray.

Queen Debbie assumes her role as drum majorette following half time ceremonies.

Clutching a miniature football, attendant Stephanie Siefken and her escort, Scott Fleming, leave the field before the start of the second half.

Tears of joy and excitement characterized Debbie Lamb as she began her reign as Jefferson's Homecoming queen. Tradition was shattered during the Homecoming festivities when Bev Stary, last year's queen, had the honor of crowning Queen Debbie. In previous years, the queen had been crowned by the Student Council president. However, this year's president, David Gaskill, was also a member of the J-Hawk football team and was unable to leave the locker room during the half time ceremonies. A fitting setting for the Homecoming crowning was a convincing J-Hawk victory over the Bettendorf Bulldogs, 34-14, and the theme "You've Got A Friend" enhanced the mood of the evening.

As half time approaches, driver Doug Hladek opens the door of his Corvette for finalist Linda Reardon.

At the game's end, queen Debbie Lamb leaves for a victory celebration at the band director's home.

Seated in the stands, members of the Homecoming court watch the 34-14 routing of Bettendorf.

As the beat slowed, couples dance to this year's theme song, "You've Got A Friend."

Don Nance proudly shares in the excitement of Lynn Fattig's selection as a semi-finalist.

Surprised but nonetheless elated, Debbie Lamb is crowned queen during half time of the Bettendorf game.

Friends applaud as finalist Sue Johnson is reannounced to the crowd.

Student Council member Patti Novak serves punch to thirsty couples.

Kuenzi, Dixie Van Gamplere, Mary Goracy, Lynn Fattig, Vicki Lane, Sara Steele. Back row: Diane Perkins, Stephanie Siefken, Sharon Hess, Jacki King, Vicki Clark, Colette Waychoff, Linda Reardon, Peggy Cooper, Barb Folkers.

Carrie Fulton embraces her mother after being announced as one of the nine finalists.

Controversy, cries, and complaints dimmed the Homecoming spirit as the student body divided on the event. More than ever, negative connotations were associated with the traditional event, indicating some disapproval on the student body's part. Much ado resulted when senior Shelly Benford's provoking editorial appeared in the Jefferson Outlook. Shelly felt that, "Students should come to realize that the only class in Homecoming was in the Corvettes and the only beauty in the roses." This year's festivities were planned and sponsored by Student Council, under the direction of Homecoming committee chairman Janet Scott. The cafeteria was decorated with crepe paper, posters, and balloons. Entertainment was provided by "Wildwood."

WE'RE ALL IN THIS TOGETHER

Graffiti marking an unknown past.

The heat of an important contest. Togetherness of friends. The loneliness of an outcast. These are facets of student life. The year began with the hope of success in athletics, the arts, and student fellowship. New policies entered our lives, and we were reluctant to adopt them. It appeared as if the only important matter concerning students was that of absolute freedom. Homecoming wasn't as glamorous as in preceding years and it became mandatory to attend assemblies. Cheerleaders attempted to do their job, but school spirit remained as dead as a brick wall. The general attitude of the student body was one of discontentment. Each of us will have our own lasting opinions of the past year. Whether favorable or otherwise, we should remember that we were all in this together.

With the assistance of the faculty band, Mr. Noonan belts out the fight song at a memorable pep assembly.

Shortlegged mini-people invaded the gymnasium in hopes of arousing school spirit.

Executing perfect form, the cheerleaders persuade the crowd to yell for the Big Blue.

Portraying the coach's girlfriend, Jacki King gives a pep talk to the Washington team.

Enthusiasm and "I'm bored—let's get back to third hour" were contrasting expressions in evidence during this year's reduced schedule of pep assemblies.

N-O-T-H-I-N-G — that's what pep assemblies mean to me. Pep assemblies started out bad and got worse. Days of planning, early morning practices, and endless searching for props were rewarded by dead stares from uninterested audiences. There were bright spots, however, such as the Chinese ping pong players exhibition, an interview with defeated Wash football players, an old jalopy with a flat tire, the crowning of three WPA kings, and the honoring of state champion wrestlers. Third hour assemblies increased student attendance, although participation remained at a minimal level. Even though the crowd wasn't as fired up as some would have liked it to be, those that did cheer were sincere.

Performing first and second hours for packed audiences, students of the Iowa School of Goju Karate demonstrate different karate maneuvers.

Even though attendance was not taken, about half of Jefferson's student body attended Chautauqua Day this year. It was held on Tuesday, February 5, and the five months of planning was conducted by the Student Council. Speakers ranged from musicians to morticians to magicians. Other presentations were given concerning scuba diving and karate. The U.S. Revolution Band proved to be most popular with West Side Delegation and Jarona the Magician close behind. Principal William C. Jacobson summed up his impressions of the day by saying that the student body conducted itself well. He added that it would be kept to one day in future years so there would be no problem of making each year better by having it held two to three days.

Drawing the largest crowd of the day, the U.S. Revolution Band tunes up to play another song.

Volunteers from the audience help Jarona the Magician with one of his tricks.

Steve Thompson, a member of the Hawkeye Scuba Club, explains techniques and equipment used in scuba diving.

Watching a karate demonstration brings a smile to Jeff Neal's face.

Student Council adviser Dennis Ellertson smiles at the end of another successful day.

Singing and dancing to a variety of songs, Jefferson's WSD tries to communicate its own message to the audience.

CENSORED

WE FINISH TO BEGIN...

The best way out is always through . . . and for seniors it is all over. We've made it through thirteen years of teachers, classes, cramming for tests, and finding new ways to skip P.E. We've been through many changes during our three years at Jefferson. We've been left to find our place between the rules of a lenient old administration and a stricter new one. We've had the hassel of fighting speed bumps in the parking lots, and have been given the freedom of choosing our own classes. We've seen the political tangle of Watergate and the light heartedness of streaking. Now we are thrust out on our own, left with the memories of what we have done, and the dreams of what is to come. Yesterday is over . . . but we still have tomorrow.

Added speed bumps, locked bathrooms, and a stricter attendance policy were only a handful of many revisions students faced during the school year. Under the new attendance policy, each time a student was absent from class, an annoying, yet informative phone call was placed to respective parents. This new system was enacted six hours a day and proved to be very unpopular with students. Another initial happening during the year was Student Structured Time (SST), which was developed for students with 15 or more unexcused absences or one or more failing grades. Refusing to attend SST resulted in suspension from school and a student could not return until his parents held a conference with Mr. Jacobson. But to those who did attend regularly, a mere six weeks of SST and a conference with a member of the administration readmitted the student to a regular study hall. One other program added this year was Career Opportunities. Under this program, students could receive 1 to 5 credit hours for attending meetings pertaining to careers varying from veterinary medicine to interior decorating.

"We have a bigger student staff than ever before and with the addition of Room 219 as a storage and viewing area, we're meeting the needs of students even better than ever." Investigative phone calls were an added burden for office secretaries as they continued in their unending quest to track down students absent from class. "The majority of parents are glad we're calling," remarked Mrs. Carolee Wilford, "although a few have complained. I think it's made some kids think twice about skipping but there are others who just don't care."

Two changes included the addition of juniors on the Outlook staff and the content of ASP was modified since a different instructor was teaching it. Various courses were offered ranging from theatre experience to college preparatory courses and attendance proved Ethnic Literature, Directed Individualized Reading, and Personalized Writing as the more popular courses. As one student concluded, "Personalized Writing gives the students a chance to express himself through his own free writing styles."

Instructor Jack Fisk was pleased upon hearing that he had been chosen to coach the North squad for the Shrine All-Star game.

Social Psychology, American Government, and Black Studies were the classes most in demand as J-Hawks sought to fulfill their social studies requirements. Social Psychology proved to be the most popular class offered. Under Mr. Pilling, many students learned to deal with problems of both the present and the future. Psych II was highlighted by a trip to the men's reformatory in Anamosa. Aside from taking American Government to fill their requirement, students took advantage of this class to help them understand just how our government is being run and how the recent Watergate scandals have affected it. Knowing how it feels to be black is just one objective of the popular Black Studies elective. Through movies, charts, graphs, and original artifacts from Africa, students investigated the problems affecting blacks today.

Teachers hoped to start a new computer programming class. "The math department is very good as it adequately prepares students for college," commented Mr. Jones, department chairman. Science lab activity ranged from dissecting mice and rats to blood typing. "Interested students will gain experience as they work in the greenhouse planting and raising vegetables and flowers," related Mr. Mork. Each trimester was divided into six week blocks, giving students a chance to explore more varied topics.

Developing Opportunities for Employment teaches the fundamentals of employer-employee relations, preparation for employment, applying for a job, and interviewing for a job. "This course was designed to meet the needs of all students by preparing them for successful employment," explained Mr. Dinger, creator and teacher of the course. Typing IV is a continuance course to improve speed and proficiency. "We encourage males to take business courses because of the large per cent of males going into business," stated Miss Dalamaggas. In the opening game with Davenport West, the 60-man Jeff squad spills onto the field to prepare for the kickoff.

Leading scorer Bruce Feuerhelm rambles for one of his eight touchdowns of the season.

Following in the footsteps of Iowa's first legitimate state football champs wasn't easy by any means. Especially when Coach Jack Fisk lost 21 starters to graduation and welcomed back but seven or eight juniors with any experience at all. The varsity football campaign began with high hopes of a second consecutive state football title and another undefeated season. However, it did not end with the joy and fanfare of past J-Hawk seasons. "We were beaten badly only once; but if we would have gotten a few breaks in the Washington and Dubuque Senior games, we may have been in the play-offs again," Fisk reflected. After dropping the opening contest to a powerful Davenport West club, Jeff reeled off two straight victories over Mississippi Valley Conference foes Iowa City West and Kennedy. Following losses to lowly Senior and city rival Wash, the J-Hawks claimed three of their last four games to finish the year at 5-4. Although it was a winning percentage, the won-lost mark was one of the worst in J-Hawk history.

Showing his ability to run after catching a pass, Randy Jacobson outmaneuvers two opponents.

First team all-stater Guy Stoecker tightly clutches the football in hopes of another gain.

A referee's clipping call registers a look of displeasure on Coach Jack Fisk's face as the J-Hawk gridders battle against Davenport West.

Although there could not possibly be as many honors and awards presented to a team that has a 5-4 record compared to an undefeated squad, a few varsity gridders were given much earned recognition at the season's end. Perhaps most outstanding of all accomplishments was one received by senior wide receiver Guy Stoecker. The Iowa Daily Press Association named him to a first team all-state berth. Stoecker, along with fellow J-Hawks Gene Maudsley and Wayne Walkner, received all-Mississippi Valley Conference first team honors. All-Metro awards were claimed by Stoecker, Walkner, and Rick Bouzek. At the team's annual post-season banquet, seniors Bouzek and Walkner were selected as honorary co-captains for the year. Walkner was also voted Most Valuable Player and recipient of the Head Hunter award while quarterback Dave Gaskill received the Ken Stewart award for spirit and hustle. Vaude Wilford and Steve Jones were named outstanding lineman and back, respectively. Standout defensive back went to Wayne Stewart while Maudsley was outstanding defensive lineman. One peculiar similarity that the J-Hawks relished through the season was the fact that each of the five wins came against a school with green and gold colors.

Bursting through the hoop, senior Steve Jones leads the gridders onto the field for warm-up exercises.

Demonstrating a tenacious defense and a powerful offense, the Jeff sophomores finished with an impressive 7-2 record for the fifth consecutive season. Behind the pass-catch combination of Rick Samek and Dean Uthoff, the 1973 edition of soph football opened its campaign by ripping Davenport West, Iowa City West, city rival Kennedy, and Dubuque Senior before stumbling against arch rival Washington. The sophs then stormed past Dubuque Hempstead and Bettendorf. With the young J-Hawks tied for the top spot in the Mississippi Valley Conference, they traveled to Clinton. However, the River Kings proved too powerful and ruined any hopes of a conference crown by upsetting Jeff, 21-8. In the finale, the J-Hawks ripped Muscatine 48-0. Samek was named honorary captain while Jeff Cirkl took Most Valuable Player honors. "With just a few more breaks, we could have been undefeated," concluded Head Coach Gary White.

Pain and agony are two familiar companions of cross country running. "You don't run your guts out to win, that's only temporary. You run for your own personal satisfaction," expressed standout Mark Mueller. Leading each team respectively, Mueller and Barb Lodge both captured eighth place at the state meet. "It was do or die," stressed Barb, "especially since this was my last year." Freshmen were recruited for the first time this year, but each team only secured one. "Cross country was an experience that I'm sure I can use," commented freshman Sandy Walkner. Coach Ask explained that he tried to individualize the workouts as much as possible with the team running 10-15 miles per day. Mueller was the only returning varsity letterman, while Coach Nolting welcomed back Vicki Engel, Barb Lodge, and Debbie Strehle.

Second place in the state meet and flooded locker rooms were events that highlighted the 1973 boys gymnastics campaign at Jefferson. Senior co-captain Doug Berggren commented, "It was a fantabulous year. This season everybody worked together and we did very good at the state meet." "We showed better team effort toward our goals," added senior Scott Fleming. Unlike other years at Jeff, freshmen were allowed to participate at the varsity level. The 21-man squad finished the season with a 9-2 record, being defeated only by city rival and eventual state champ Washington. The J-Hawk gymnasts were led to a second place finish at the state meet by Fleming, who took second on the horse and fifth on the parallel bars. Sophomore Tom Chapman placed second on the rings while freshman Mark Johnson placed sixth in all-around competition.

Building momentum for his upcoming routine, Mike Mercer prepares to spring into action.

"The most important opponent is yourself," stresses Coach Taylor during the pep talk before a meet.

Inexperience was evident as the J-Hawk girls swim team hit the water in mid-August. Led by only five returning lettermen, the squad consisted mainly of underclassmen. Responding to the addition of ninth graders, Coach Jim Taylor remarked, "The change was great! The girls progressed rapidly throughout the season and out of six freshmen, five earned their varsity letter." The upperclassmen, however, had mixed emotions. Junior Teresa Bascom commented, "The freshmen were dedicated and weren't afraid to work hard, but they thought they should be the best in their first year." The season concluded at the state meet as senior Barb Kuenzi finished eighth in the backstroke while sophomore Linda Frazier claimed twelfth in diving.

Waiting to activate the automatic timer, Kerry Hansen and Karl Bard watch attentively for the last leg of the race.

Swimming 8,000 yards a day, the J-Hawk tankers started practice in early November with high hopes of a successful season. The squad witnessed two changes — a Frosh-Soph team in place of a JV team and having a new coaching staff. Coach Jim Taylor replied that he liked the idea of a Frosh-Soph team since it added a lot to the team overall. "Birds the Word" was a familiar saying throughout the season and paced the swimmers to an even 6-6 season record. At the banquet, team members elected Steve Reeves, most improved; Jerry Kadlec, most valuable; and Jon Klein, hardest working. Jon and Karl Bard were announced as the team's captains. "This has been the best swim team since I've been here at Jefferson," concluded Coach Taylor. "We were a more united team, and we swam as a team and not like individuals."

Executing a back dive from the layout position, Jeff Rowray displays near-perfect form.

Swimming the butterfly leg of the individual medley, Steve Reeves strains for an early lead.

Driving the lane for a lay-up, Terry Earnest scores the first two points in the Bettendorf game.

Many individuals were honored for their performances on this year's basketball team. Senior Guy Stoecker was tabbed Honorary Team Captain while Al Selinger, junior, received Most Valuable honors. Gigantic sophomore Dean Uthoff grabbed the distinction of being named Most Improved and Leading Rebounder with 284 rebounds. Junior Dave Alberts was tagged Best Defensive Player. Junior forward Terry Earnest had the Best Free Throw Percentage with a 67 per cent norm. Uthoff was named to the All-Metro second team and received honorable mention All-Mississippi Valley. Selinger grabbed an honorable mention All-Metro and All-Mississippi Valley selection. "We'll have a good basketball team next year," promised Coach Williams.

To the astonishment of his Cougar opponents, Al Selinger hauls down a rebound.

Beginning his assault on the career rebounding mark, sophomore Dean Uthoff pulls in another rebound.

Underclassmen played a key role in the 1973-74 version of the J-Hawk basketball team. Enthusiastic first year Head Coach Colin Williams took the helm as the cagers registered a dismal 3-16 record. Despite their poor showing the cagers offered fans great excitement and thrills. "Our won-loss record didn't really reflect the true talent of this year's team," stated Coach Williams. "We came up on the short end of some very close hard fought games." Behind the much used term "rebuilding", Coach Williams did practice what he preached. By starting four underclassmen throughout the season, the cagers should be a much improved team next year.

Under the eye of a watchful referee, guard Rick Gaskill attempts a field goal in the third quarter.

Despite losing two of their best players to the varsity, the sophomore basketball team registered a respectable 6-12 record. The lack of height as well as some inconsistencies were some of the major downfalls of the 1973-74 sophomore squad. "We had our ups and downs this season," commented Head Coach Bob Becker. "We lost some close heartbreaking games." Dave Hittenmiller was named Honorary Team Captain while Rick Samek was voted most Valuable Player and Best Offensive Player. Steve Carter grabbed Best Defensive Player honors and Brian Pomeroy received the Contributed Most to Practice award. "I'm pleased with all of the players," concluded Coach Becker. "They did everything we asked of them."

Deb Buchheim demonstrates her outstanding jump shot during the closing minutes of the Kennedy game.

Lack of coaching instruction, the tendency to play as individuals, and the poor crowd attendance combined to form a dismal 5-14 won-lost record for the girls' cage squad. Many discouraging performances were evident but a few above average contests were turned in. Most Valuable Player Erin Shanahan shattered the school's single game scoring mark when she pumped in 42 points in the girls best game, a 62-60 win over Cedar Rapids Prairie. In that same game, forward Shelly Benford collected a school record of ten assists. The J-Hawks seemed to be the king of Dubuque as they won twice against Hempstead and once over Senior while the other victory came at Washington, Iowa. At the season's end, guard Barb Lodge gained a berth on the All Metro second team while Erin and Shelly were both named to the honorable mention list. But, all in all, the girls second year was nearly as disastrous as the initial campaign of 0-10.

FAME

Runner-up Don Hittenmiller looks on in disbelief as Coach McNeil explains his disappointing final match defeat.

The tense expressions on the faces of Coaches Cameron and McNiel reveal apprehension during the final night of the state meet.

Paul Viktora applies maximum leverage toward a pin in a match for a third place finish.

After recapturing the state title, team members pose proudly with their newly-acquired award.

Grimacing with determination, Cassim Ingram strains to gain a reversal in his final match.

When people think about winning a state title and then succeed, it must instill a great feeling of satisfaction. But, when a team does this two straight seasons, it is without a doubt a delight. The J-Hawks traveled to the state tourney in Des Moines as favorites along with West Des Moines Valley and East Waterloo. Valley and Jeff both took seven grapplers but East had only four. However, East advanced three to the finals; Jeff's Paul Viktora was upset in the semis; and Coach Bill McNiel's contingent had but two competitors in the final round. One individual was 185-pound Cassim Ingram, who knocked off two unbeaten's and had obviously surprised onlookers. The other was veteran 105-pound Don Hittenmiller, who placed fourth the previous year at 98. Hittenmiller tumbled in his finale by 3-2 and Ingram's fortunes ran out too, but all three of East's finalists lost also to hand the J-Hawks the championship by two points.

Meeting his opponent head on, Dick Briggs seeks to gain control of his match with a tough Iowa City High grappler.

Domination is the word used by many onlookers when they speak of the fine wrestling tradition of the J-Hawks. The 1973-74 edition of J-Hawk wrestling carried on that tradition going undefeated in dual competition with a 11-0 mark and extended their winning streak to 43 consecutive victories. The grapplers third straight undefeated season was under the direction of Coach Bill McNiel. Many individual honors were bestowed to the 1974 state champions. Seniors Don Hittenmiller, Paul Viktora, and Dick Briggs, along with juniors Jed Brown and Tom Sadler, were named first team All-Mississippi Valley selections. At the annual team banquet, Viktora received the Most Valuable Wrestler award.

After a close contest, a look of approval is evident on Coach Bill McNiel's face.

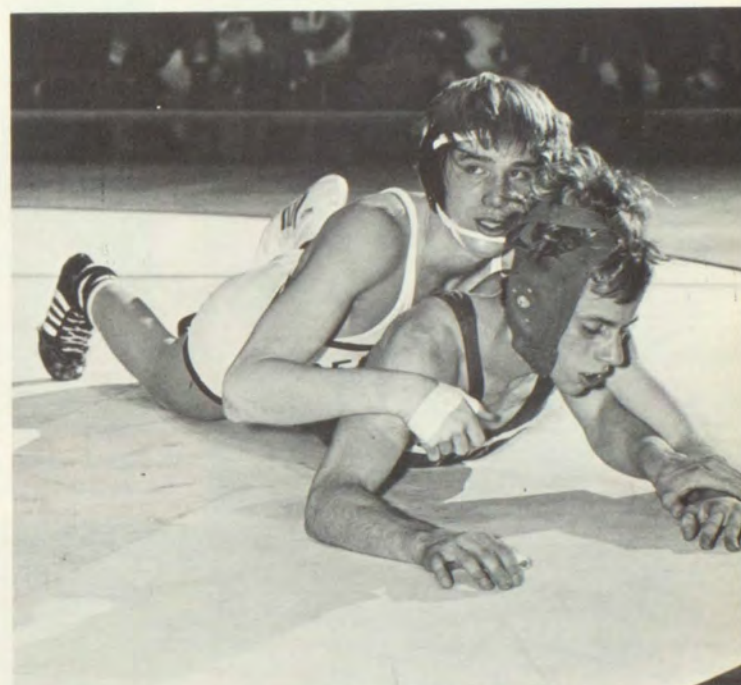

Attempting to release himself from the grasp of his Washington opponent, Jim Comreid executes an escape.

Applying a tight headlock, Don Hittenmiller is rewarded with a first-period fall.

Dave Zimmerman expresses little emotion after another satisfying victory.

Once again the sophomore grapplers proved they could live up to the fine tradition of Jefferson wrestling. Valuable experience was gained through work-outs with the varsity squad, as the soph wrestlers sported an 8-1 record and finished second in the Mississippi Valley Conference. Their only loss of the season came early to Kennedy, 25-22. "The future for these guys could be super if they will be willing to work for it," commented Coach John Weld. At the close of the season, Tom Chapman was voted the team's Most Valuable Wrestler. Summing up the long campaign, Coach Weld added, "No one wrestler could be called the most improved as the entire team worked very hard. I was very pleased with their overall record as well as their second place finish in the Valley race." And Kevin Christensen remarked, "It was a fantastic year. I think that next season we'll definitely take state again."

John Humphreys struggles to regain advantage over his Iowa City opponent.

Stand-outs Debbie Strehle and Barb Lodge jog down after another strenuous practice at Kingston Stadium.

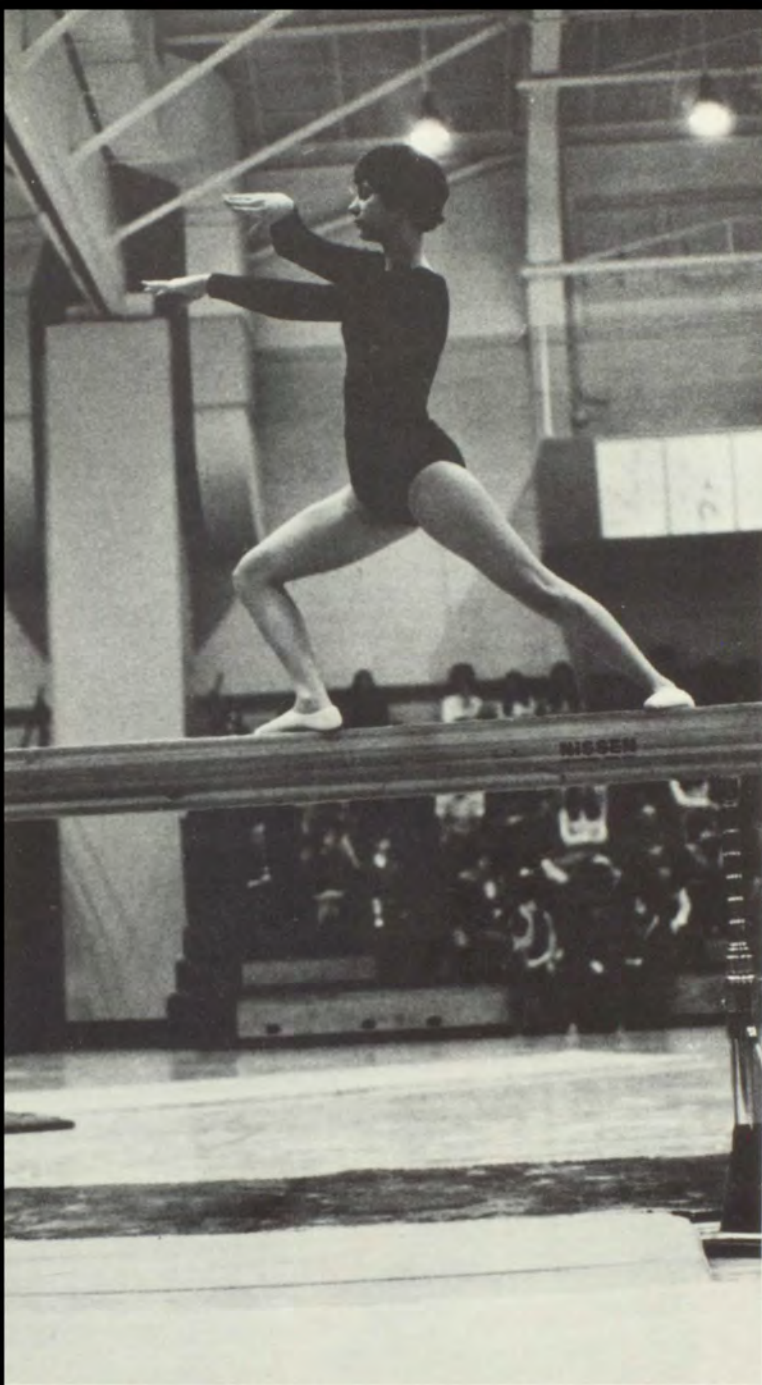

Underclassmen dominated both track and gymnastics squads as each team appeared to be "building for next year." However, senior Barb Lodge sparked the dismal track season with over fifteen individual firsts. After qualifying for the state meet in Des Moines, Barb placed seventh in the 880 and fifth in the mile run. Also qualifying for the state meet was the distance medley relay team consisting of Kathy Doty, Jorie Jones, Debbie Strehle, and Barb Lodge. Freshman Christa Barker and junior Kathy Casey paraded the girls' gymnastic squad as the season ended with an 8-4 record. The team placed second in the Metro meet and third in district competition. Kathy was the only team qualifier for the state meet, capturing tenth place for her balance beam routine. Coach Novak commented at the close of the season, "The girls worked hard and well together, improving right up to the end of the season."

Added incentive was given to this year's cindermen when they realized that this was to be head coach John Ask's final season. "After being here since the beginning of Jefferson, it sure would be nice to finish out my career with a state championship," suggested the J-Hawk head mentor. However, this year's team did not possess the depth to bring home that championship, but did have several outstanding individuals. Seven individuals were cited by Ask as being the core of this year's squad. Each of these seven individuals qualified for the Drake Relays and proceeded to qualify for state competition. "Mike Mortland and Randy Jones are the two brightest stars on this year's team," commented Coach Ask. "The fact is, Mike may be the best track star to ever graduate from Jeff." Most individuals were satisfied with their efforts. "Overall, the 1974 edition of J-Hawk track is one of the hardest working groups that I have coached. They have a great attitude and have been a very fine group to work with," concluded the retiring coach.

Success was evident as the boys' golf squad changed its Mississippi Valley Conference competition to the fall, playing only six dual meets and state tournament action in the spring. The team, coached by Mr. Wally Horn, landed second place in the MVC race this fall. Mr. Gary White, sophomore football coach and consequently unable to coach fall golf, saw his spring squad to a 6-0 dual meet mark. In tournament action the boys grabbed second place in sectional competition and advanced to the state meet after finishing first in district action. The large squad was paced by senior medalists Ron Carney and Steve Malloy. The J-V squad also completed a successful spring season with a 6-0 record. Girls' coach Dennis Ferreter commented that his team experienced one of its better seasons. The six member squad, led by sophomore Barb Feckley, finished with a 4-8 dual meet record. The squad, composed entirely of underclassmen, took second place in the city meet, defeating Washington for the first time ever in the team's history.

Playing baseline to baseline is how Debbie Buchheim maintains winning form in holding down the No. 2 spot.

In anticipation of his opponent's mighty serve, Jeff Vandercook leaps into position.

Apathetic as many students were toward other organizations, the J-Hawk netters were well-represented on the courts this year. Making a one year stand with the female version of J-Hawk tennis was Mr. Donald Farley, physical education instructor. Led by senior letterman Barb Kuenzi, the number one singles player, the team compiled a disappointing 4-10 record, and was ousted at districts by Dubuque Wahlert. Talent, along with plenty of depth, aided the boys' team as they racked up a mediocre 8-7 season record. "We were better than our record indicated," emphasized Coach Denny Ellertson. "One of our biggest downfalls was the nervousness of our players at districts. That is one thing a good team doesn't have . . . butterflies."

Catcher David Gaskill awaits a possible throw to home plate during the 6-0 victory over Regis.

With the bases loaded, Gary Kohl digs in and prepares himself for the next pitch.

Inconsistencies played a key role in the outcome of the 1974 spring baseball campaign. Without any returning starters, the perennial Mississippi Valley Conference champs found the going tough as they opened the season looking for their fifth consecutive conference title. Rainy weather plagued the gloveman all season. Three games were washed out. "It's been rough for us this spring," stated mound ace Bruce Barber. "We could have been tough if we had gotten some game experience under our belts." Poor hitting and the lack of depth, especially on the pitching staff, hindered the sophomore squad as they opened their campaign with hopes of repeating as Metro champs.

Happiness, anticipation, and relief are three emotions expressed by cheerleaders at the state wrestling tournament.

A new adviser, three new administrators, and the usual student apathy were major problems cheerleaders had to contend with this year. The squad, consisting of six seniors and four juniors, was led by senior co-captains Carrie Fulton and Jacki King. They immediately started to build up the treasury for camp and new uniforms by painting a house, washing cars, having pop bottle drives, and bake sales. Early morning and late night practices paid off as the Jeff squad won the coveted Coke Award at camp. Planning pep assemblies and making umpteen locker decorations accompanied the usual cheering. The year ended in triumph as the ten girls cheered the wrestlers on to their second straight state title. Reviewing the highlights of the past year, first year cheerleader Barb Kuenzi stated, "Cheerleading was a very enjoyable experience for me. Before becoming a cheerleader I had my opinions, but now that I was actively involved I realize that people really don't know how much time and effort a girl puts into being a cheerleader."

crowned by President Janet Scott; and sophomore Dave Hittenmiller, crowned by Carol Blood.

Enthusiasm and spirit were almost nonexistent in the current version of Pep Club. Under president Janet Scott and new adviser, Miss Charlotte Regenold, the group got off to a good start with a summer pizza party and a Clobber Kennedy Week during football season, which included the decoration of player's homes. In lieu of less paperwork and time, the point system of membership was disbanded, also hoping more members would paint signs and attend activities. This goal was not attained, as the group remained inactive for most of the sports campaign. A WPA (Women Pay All) week was organized during the basketball season, but came under fire by students, for the selection of the WPA King candidates. The annual slumber party held in the gym closed out the year.

Trying to arouse school spirit, a lonely Pep Club member, Vickie Tiedtke, posts one of the few signs painted this year.

Upon being escorted to his seat, treasurer Sherri Cernin pins a boutonniere on senior W.P.A. king candidate Guy Stoecker.

Loyal Pep Club members take to the ground to cheer for the Big Blue during the Iowa City High football game.

Support of athletics was a basic purpose of both Mat Maids and JJ Club in their second year of organization. The Mat Maids lent their support to the wrestling squad, printing and handing out programs, keeping score of matches, and videotaping the grapplers' meets. For a unified look, the girls purchased matching navy blue sweaters and sewed "MM" on them. Meanwhile, JJ Club pushed to obtain a girls' trophy case and eventually was given one by the Activities Committee. Other club accomplishments during the year included acquiring chevrons and J's for their sweaters, and installing a vending machine in the girls' lockerroom. Even though the club seemed to get a lot done, some girls complained that the group wasn't active enough. Any girl winning a varsity letter was invited to become a member of the club at one of the initiations during the year.

Keren Fisher, Cindy Lash, Sue Decker, Barb Funke, Barb Taylor, Carol Kirchmann, Lynn Klein.

Walt Disney's cartoon characters came to life as the Doll-fin-nettes presented this year's show, "Disney on Parade." A group of band members started the show a rollin' by playing the Mickey Mouse Theme Song led by Mickey Mouse himself. The routines performed were selections from such movies as Mary Poppins, Song of the South, Peter Pan, Lady and the Tramp, Snow White, and Winnie the Pooh. Helping the Doll-fin-nettes along was Miss Charlotte Regenold, the group's new sponsor. The girls worked hard on costumes, scenery, and their own water routines since January to put together a successful show.

Underwater lights give an eerie effect to Doll-fin-nette members as they complete a difficult formation.

Plunging into the pool, Tim Rischer portrays a prince during the comedy skit.

Portraying Winnie the Pooh, Cindy Walton floats in her innertube as part of her routine.

After the show, Barb Taylor satisfies her appetite with pizza and lemonade.

Money-raising projects such as selling candy, stationery items, and bulletin boards enabled Future Business Leaders of America members to finance their annual trip to St. Louis. At the monthly meetings held by the group, guest speakers presented informative talks and activities ranged from a tour of the Iowa Electric Tower to a speaker on hair styles and fashion. In preparation for the annual State Leadership Conference in Cedar Falls, the girls spent many hours perfecting their business skills, such as shorthand and typing. A community service project, designed to raise money for needy people at Easter, was also promoted by the group noted Mrs. Miriam Shipman, the group's sponsor.

Student interest in business groups increased this year, as enrollment in Data Processing and Trade and Industry classes more than doubled. Members attended classes in the mornings and worked at their jobs during the afternoons. Office Education girls hosted the annual tea for their employers at Jefferson in October, as well as sold candy and Christmas candles as money-raising projects. Data Processing girls were taught keypunch duties, while Trade and Industry students applied their knowledge and skills at local industrial firms. Under Mr. Dinger's instruction, Distributive Education students attended zero-hour sessions at 7:20 a.m. as well as regularly scheduled classes to prepare them for their afternoon jobs.

While enjoying their refreshments, two employers relax a moment and talk with Wendy Carpenter at the annual Office Education tea.

Tedious duties, such as shelving books, filing magazines, and sitting at the check-out desk, were faithfully performed throughout the year by the media assistants. In hopes of giving the assistants a broader view of library facilities, Mrs. Anne Larson, media specialist, required many work sheets on reference materials to be completed during the course of the year. "I found that there were a lot of helpful facilities that I could have used in my sophomore and junior years that I didn't know about," remarked senior Carol Oster. Cultural units were also presented in the form of ballet and classical music. In addition, assistants attended the Nutcracker Suite Ballet performed by the Dieman Bennett Dance Theatre. "Working in the library has taught me about its organization," commented senior Gail Wade. "I also never realized all of the work involved!"

Cancelled reservations for the Guthrie Theatre due to a broken bus highlighted the annual Thespian trip to Minneapolis. Although the year started off on the wrong foot, the bad luck stayed with the announcement that the winter play selection, "Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee", was not available for production. Bringing back memories of Vaudeville was the theme of this winter's Chili Dinner Theatre as Thespians produced their own variety show entitled "Why Vaudeville Died." For the first time, Playtime Poppy was performed at Jefferson as the Troupe produced "Androcles and the Lion." Junior Sherri Tierney portrayed the "happy little ear of corn" that cheered the youngsters into singing the Playtime Poppy theme song.

Interest in Health Careers was revived this year as members toured St. Lukes Hospital and invited speakers to attend their monthly meetings. However, a new adviser will have to be found next year as the group bids goodbye to Miss Ethel Gregg, school nurse, who is retiring. Automatic touchpads failed to put Tic-Chicks out of business as they were always on hand at swim meets in case of a breakdown of the new equipment. Ushers were also seen throughout the year, struggling through embarrassing moments in the dark aisles during plays and concerts.

'Like nowsville' and "the cats meow" were a couple of expressions that Senior Senate brought back as it held a 50's day, complete with costume, basketball game, and sock-hop. The project was "the most successful project in the history of Jefferson, netting the most money," commented senior Janet Scott. Other money-making projects for the senior prom included delivering fliers for a local business and the annual Pancake Supper. While Senior Senate was busy earning money and making plans, the Student Council worked on the events of Homecoming, Chautauqua Day, student exchanges, and carpeting the Council room. Council members agreed that the organization had come a long way since last year, but firmly believe that it has a long way to go before it becomes truly effective at Jefferson.

"You guys, I can't believe I made it," exclaimed Teresa Dvorak as she received a letter notifying her of her acceptance into the National Honor Society. Intelligence, leadership, service, and character are qualities considered for induction into National Honor Society. Twenty-seven juniors and forty-seven seniors were inducted into the Aristotelian Chapter of National Honor Society on April 30. Higher grade points made admission more difficult, as juniors were required to have a 3.6 and seniors a 3.4 grade average. According to President Diane Wilson, "The pins that were purchased last year were less expensive than the traditional torch pins, and many of them did not work. As a result, the authentic pins were purchased again this year for the new inductees."

Is it a pig pen? Is it Old McDonald's farm?

No, it's just the aroma filtering from room 116, the science lab room. This is home for all of Jefferson's lab assistants. It houses mice, rats, guinea pigs, chemicals, and supplies. For the more ingenious students, there were opportunities to participate in Bookstore and Venture. The Bookstore was run by students with Sue Skalsky as manager. It was directed by the Language Arts department and the teachers took turns supervising it. This year's Venture staff suffered from non-involvement on the student's part. Students worked after school on the magazine which contained creative work written by students. Individuals could also have an opportunity to work for the office as runners—taking passes and notes, picking up attendance cards, and performing other related office activities.

Nine roses and a gleaming plaque signify a ninth consecutive All-American rating achieved by the first-term staff.

From the first day Mr. Ron Smrha undertook the task of instructing students on how to put out a bi-weekly newspaper, he has received numerous awards. Perhaps, the highest honor a high school publication can attain is that of an All-American rating, and the 1973-74 fall term staff marked the ninth consecutive occasion in which Mr. Smrha's writers have earned that distinction. As news editor Shelly Benford pointed out, "I don't think we could have made it without Mr. Smrha, he stayed with us through some tough times." A different comment came from editor-in-chief Mark Dukes as he explained, "I thought last year's staff had a better chance on the basis of story ideas, but we really had the writers this term." Varied and controversial topics dotted each of the issues and some brought criticism from teachers and administrators. Steps such as galley reading, writing headlines, selling ads, taking pictures, preparing layouts, and, in general, organizing the paper earned the staff its highest mark in the history of the All-American string, just 50 points shy of a perfect rating.

Differences of opinion were overcome in the creation of the 1974 Statesman. Heated arguments, deadlines, joking, and laughter were all part of the Statesman Staff's experience in putting out the '74 yearbook. Perhaps with this experience in mind, the staff chose as the theme of this year's annual, "We're All in This Together." To become acquainted with new yearbook techniques, publication design students attended a yearbook clinic held at the University of Iowa in November. Inexperienced staff members quickly learned to draw layouts through Mr. Smrha's comparison of a layout to a pygmy village. Yearbook selling procedures were slightly modified this year, as partial payments were no longer accepted and a week long sales campaign was added at the end of the second term. The '74 Statesman was improved with the addition of sixteen extra pages of which seven pages were printed in full color.

The Show Must Go On

Pleading the importance of life, Terri Stoltenberg returns from the dead to relive her twelfth birthday with her parents, Bill Koningsmark and Debbie Lamb.

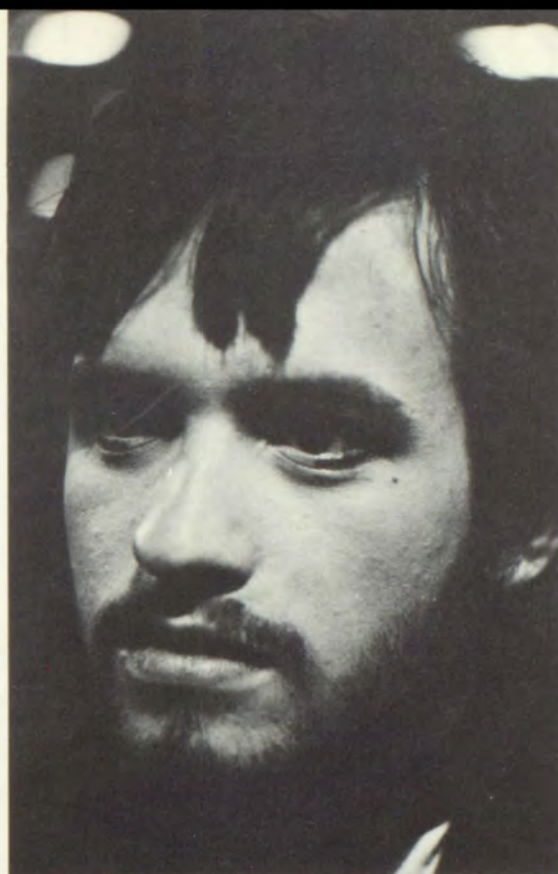

A rainy and facial gloom emphasizes the tragedy of Terri's young death.

John Hegarty's childhood friends mock him during his wedding.

Revival of Thornton Wilder's 1939 classic, "Our Town," which featured a cast of 30, was the basis for this year's fall play. A stage manager (Len Frondle) was utilized as the narrator, telling the audience the entire story of the town and its people. In addition, flashbacks and forward jumps in time helped keep intensity throughout the production. The use of a completely bare stage, which was the traditional manner of presentation, was not used. Instead, simple costuming and a basic set of different levels to represent the difference between the scenes was employed. "Our Town" takes place in a small New England town in the year 1901, and extends over a period of nine years. Two families, the Gibbs' and the Webbs', are the main characters throughout the play. 'Our Town' is a moving drama which captures life in its essence, building up the story of young love, marriage, and premature death," explained Mr. Robert Geuder, drama director.

In the graveyard, Sean McDonough's facial expression personifies death.

The soda shop is the setting when John asks for Terri's hand in marriage.

The joy of young love is reflected through John's marriage to Terri.

During the staged protest, sheriff Gary Baumgartner and his deputy, Bob Harrelson, get harassed by hippie leaders Kimm Birkicht and Dawn Berchenbriter.

Bill Koningsmark briefs the audience while Kitty Reynolds nonchalantly hangs out her wash.

Combine yesteryear's melodrama and today's ecological problems and you've got an interesting ready-made plot for this year's sophomore musical, "The Perils of Purity." With a cast consisting of everything from a villain to a hero and today's uprising Indians to hippies, "Perils" proved to be a totally new theatrical experience when compared to the many shows of the past. Hero Steve Belay summed up his feelings as a sophomore after his first major role on the Jefferson stage by saying, "It was a challenge and a rewarding experience to work with all the people I had heard so much about in junior high."

Villain Dennis Hruby gives last minute instructions concerning the abduction of Purity to his cohorts, Tim Rischer and Ron Harrelson.

The Ihockawatch family is reunited when Gary Moss returns from college with his social worker fiancée, Julie Johnson.

"I love you," admits Lois Baker as Mike Wicke shyly reacts.

Bunny, Len Bonar, returns Steve Belay's "Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval", much to heroine Sue Zvacek's delight.

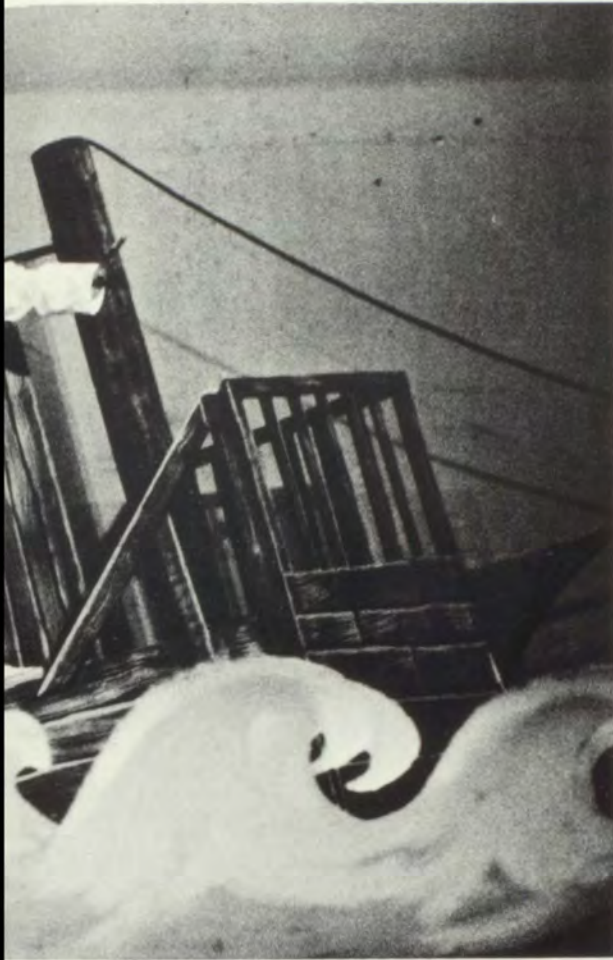

Francis Payne dramatizes a scene between a mannequin villain and seemingly helpless woman.

While filming a dramatic ship scene, Robyn Loss is about to be shot by villain Steve Belay.

As Mark Williams explains to Dana Baughman that a bowlegged man is necessary for the next scene, Francis demonstrates he's perfect for the part.

A struggling young country boy, determined to become a famous movie actor, provided the plot for this year's winter play, "Merton of the Movies." "Merton" was chosen on the basis of its humor and varied interesting character roles, stated Mr. Robert Geuder, drama director. The plot centers on Merton Gill who decides to become an actor in serious Hollywood films, after taking a correspondence course in acting. He finally gets his big break when a struggling young actress, known as the Montague Girl, gets him the main part in a comedy, portraying Harold Parmalee, after noticing that he bears a striking resemblance to him. The show proves to be a success, much to the dismay of Merton who is ashamed of having appeared in a comedy. Various technical stagings were planned to add to the movement of the production, such as constant changing of the various sets and utilizing the shift crew as silent film stars working under a strobe light to give the flickering effect of silent film days. Mr. Geuder explained that the success of the show depended upon the cast's ability to portray an era never before captured on the Jefferson stage — the era of silent movies.

Dave McCauley and Len Frondle stare in disbelief at Merton's western get-up.

Len Frondle reminds the Montague girl that Merton is a nice kid.

Late night rehearsals paid off as tap dancers stopped the show with their snappy rendition of "I Want To Be Happy."

Upon returning from another shopping spree, Sherri Tierney gains assistance from her maid, Lori McLellan.

Capturing the color and excitement of the Roaring 20's, the combined efforts of the music and drama departments did justice to the Broadway smash, "No, No Nanette." Before the footlights, the product of hours of labor on costumes, scenery, and characters appeared much to the delight of the audience. For a few minutes, the 1920's seemed to be held captive on the Jefferson stage for all to see. Dance rages like the Charleston and the Tap took the place of their modern successors. In the dark of the auditorium, with only the footlights focused on the characters, a spectator could almost feel transported through time. However, as abruptly as the era itself ended, the Jefferson version of "No, No Nanette" ended, stirring memories in its wake, and leaving its audience with a rare feeling in these trying times.

With starry eyes, Mark Williams reveals his affection for Lynn Fattig in song.

Harassment was one of the vices used by the three happies as they attempted to blackmail Len Frondle.

While awaiting the arrival of Nanette, dancers strike their final pose in "Peach on the Beach."

"You can dance with any girl at all" is Sherri Tierney's advice to Randy Ralston.

Endless lines confronted choir members as they wait their turn for the King Arthur Carousel at Disneyland.

Debating whether or not to jump into the icy Pacific, tour members wait for the first brave soul.

Fruit sales during the truck strike, candy sales during the uprising price of chocolate, and plane reservations which couldn't be guaranteed because of the gas shortage all attributed to the big question of whether the combined Concert Choirs of Jefferson and Kennedy would be going to L.A. or not. After nine months of deliberation, the trip finally became a reality instead of a dream. Concerning his thoughts about going on a trip to Los Angeles at the time of an energy crisis, Randy Hunt, choir president, remarked, "Even though we had so many problems with transportation, we just 'Kept on Truckin'" and I feel we had a fine year. Everyone worked hard for a successful year and we surpassed that goal."

Straw hats and walking canes added to the excitement of the Roaring 20's medley.

Technician Randy Hunt and Mr. Koepke listen attentively for the correct balance of sound during a performance.

Sparkling red, white, and blue vests along with canes and hats added a new dimension to the second half of the West Side Delegation program. Singing to the hits of the 20's, the group brought many of its audiences back to their high school days when vaudeville and flapper music was popular. "I really liked the canes because they were something different. They were sort of hard to coordinate at first because we tried to make the group look un-informed, but after hard work we came as close to perfection as possible," commented alto Sara Steele.

Six Flags over Mid-America was the highlight of the Hilltop Singers trip to St. Louis. The money raised from the girls candy sale helped finance the four day tour. "I thoroughly enjoyed the trip, and was pleased with the responses from our performances," commented Colleen Murray. Putting in many hours for the musical, "Perils of Purity", the Mixed Chorus presented the audience with a cornball melodrama. "I thought the play was funny, and since it was a change of pace, I really enjoyed being part of it," stated Mike Wicke.

At the quarter, band members enthusiastically support their team by playing the Hardee's song.

Drummers take their place in line and prepare to march in another pre-game show.

Combating the rays of the sun during a morning rehearsal, Jay Duenow and Bob Manson pause for a brief talk.

Winning a Division I rating at the state marching contest for the second straight year was the main highlight of the band's eight consecutive weeks of performance. The marching J-Hawks combined exploding circles with word and picture formations to provide a varying repertoire of half time displays. To prepare for six home games and a guest performance at Clinton, the band rehearsed each morning, trudging through mud with rolled-up pant legs. The 115-piece J-Hawk band was led by senior Drum Major Debbie Lamb, colorguard commander Diane Wilson, and solo baton twirler Patty Groat. "This is the best marching season the Jeff band has ever had," commented Mr. Luman Colton, director.

Exploding circles highlighted this year's contest routine as the band marched to a number one rating.

Engrossed in the music, Dave Stefl plays the "Fight Song" following a touchdown.

During her half time performance, Patty Groat demonstrates her ability with the fire batons.

Back row: Debbie Novak, Jim Boland, Ron Johnson, Dave Prignitz, Vicky Novak, Ron Meyer, Kirk Hoepfner, Jim Axline, Barb Hahn, Holly Snelson, Keith Jensen, Evan Guyer, Mr. Colton.

The Symphonic Band was selected to perform at the Iowa Music Educators Association Convention in Des Moines.

With help from Bob Manson, Mr. Colton attempts to revive his skating ability during the band trip.

Although band members were split into two concert groups, it wasn't hard to share the load. Again the band carnival was held in the gym area, but it was decided to chuck tradition and dress carnival style. The usual obligation to play at junior highs was also divided between Concert and Symphonic Bands. "It was a good year," Vice-President Randy Ralston said. The Symphonic group was pulled from the ranks of many other bands to perform at the Iowa Music Educators Association convention in Des Moines. After hours of detailed individual and group work, both bands played for instrumentalists at Grinnell High School before arriving in the capital city. The two-day trip left plenty of time for sightseeing. "The only regret of the whole trip," joked Mr. Luman Colton, director, "was that the kids didn't get to miss any school!"

Band queen Ninette June manages to smile at the crowds along the parade route despite the drenching rain.

Saxophones proved to be a vital part of the big stage band sound at the Chautauqua Day program.

Taking time out from rehearsal, Mr. Hoffman consults Bill Gretten and Tom Bennington about a difficult part.

Extremely long and tedious hours confronted orchestra members as they prepared for the spring musical, "No, No, Nanette." Old and familiar songs were played which brought delight to many who attended. St. Louis was chosen as the destination for their annual trip as orchestra members sold fruit to finance it once again. A highlight of the trip was eating dinner and seeing a melodrama on a showboat. As the season came to an end, orchestra members partook in their final concert "La Musique Alamode." A variety of songs were played including selections from "Oliver." Mr. Hoffman commented, "It's been a very fast year and I think when the kids look back on it, they will realize we have played some difficult music. I'm happy with the way we have been playing."

Playing his clarinet in the woodwind section, Terry Smejkal follows the music closely.

The big bass sound was readily heard by the audience attending the spring musical.

What is a sophomore? It's full schedules, and a lot of little put-downs. It's getting an upset stomach the night before registration. It's having to take the upperclassmen's teasing. It's being lost in a crowd of 1,600 students. It's not knowing the words to the Jefferson fight song. It's that rare breed of student who thinks that high school is great! It's going from the top spot in junior high to the bottom of the totem pole over the summer. It's wanting to skip a sixth hour class but chickening out at the last minute because you're afraid you'll get caught. It's cheering your heart out during the two bits cheer. It's similar to being a fish that's out of water. It's being an outsider. That's what being a sophomore is all about.

Len Frondle nervously awaits the moment to make his campaign speech for the junior class presidency.

What is a junior? It's that time in your life when you feel like a piece of cheese between two slices of ham in a sandwich. It's giving the sophomores a rough time like you were given only last year. It's being a big man to the sophomores but still only a little man in the eyes of the seniors. It's taking ACT and PSAT tests and starting to plan for the career after graduation. It's that time in your three years at Jefferson that goes the fastest. It's playing a key role on a varsity athletic team. It's no longer being a peon, but still one spot from the king pin position. It's being old enough to get your official driver's license. It's really not a whole lot. It's starting to officially date and continually worrying about becoming of age.

"This punch sure doesn't have any zing," remarks a tired Ron Earnest during a short break from fast dancing.

Arriving at the prom, Barb Kuenzi signs her name and her escorts in the guest book.

During a fast set, Mike Trosky swings out to "Sweet Little 16."

What seemed like years of planning and money-raising terminated quickly as seniors made plans to attend the senior prom. The majority of the class chose "We may never pass this way again" as its theme, and Senior Senate provided the hard earned $1,100 for entertainment and decorations. It was held at the IBEW Building, which was transformed into something short of an outside garden, complete with a wishing well, park benches, and many fresh flowers. Forte Enterprises from Nebraska provided the music. Because of the number of proms held on the same night, there was trouble renting tuxes and securing dinner reservations.

Terry Smejkal checks his ticket stub to see if he has the lucky number for one of the many door prizes.

Adding the final touch to a perfect evening, Sid Sampson kisses Sara Steele beneath the trellis.

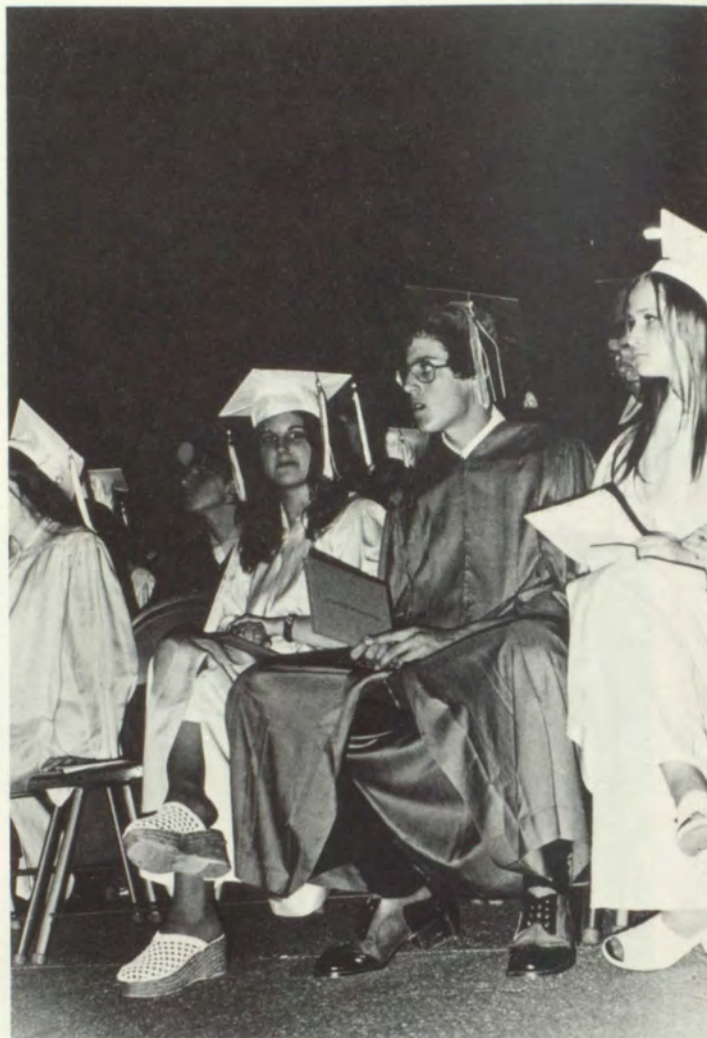

Don Nance and his date, Ann Blue, enjoy dancing to the variety of sounds provided by Forte Enterprises.

Seniors anxiously wait to line up before the graduation ceremony begins.

Front row graduates observe fellow seniors receiving their diplomas.

Ron Elgas climbs into his TPed car heading home to a joyous graduation party.

After thirteen years of formal education Pam Sandersfeld receives her diploma from a board member.

Jackie Harris and Laurie Graham wait to receive their diplomas after turning in their gowns.

Skies threatened to move 1974 commencement exercises to the gym, but luckily the rain and hail held off during the May 28 ceremony at Kingston Stadium. The band accompanied 459 seniors as they filed in to the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance." Senior Lori McLellan led the audience in singing the "Star Spangled Banner" followed by the invocation. Valedictorians Sharon Cross, Jackie King, and Kevin Opheim, and Salutatorians Diane Wilson and Sheryl Zacek addressed the senior class relating to Voltaire's quote "Cultivate Your Garden." These five seniors were chosen for this top honor because of the small difference in their grade point average. Following the speeches Concert Choir sang the Jefferson loyalty song and "We May Never Pass This Way Again." One by one seniors officially graduated receiving their diplomas from school board members. After the benediction seniors recessed to "Days of Glory." Thus endth another graduation—unique in its own way.

Pep Club vice-president Debbie Tschopp relaxes atop a table during a weekly planning session.

What is a senior? It's the jock who thinks he's got it made until the entire coaching staff conspires against him. It's that feeling of superiority! It's thoroughly enjoying today and not worrying about tomorrow. It's being told that you're young and you've got a lot to learn. It's wishing that high school were over and yet not wanting it to end. It's realizing that graduation means the end of several friendships. It's finding out that being a senior really isn't what it's cracked up to be. It's a year of lasts . . . last football game, last concert, last play, last Outlook . . . but it is also a time of beginnings. It's a person with a lot of pressure - - - college, jobs, music, drama, and athletics - - - just how much more can a person take?

ENCORE

Nostalgia's the word for this year.

The 50's day held in March proved this far beyond a doubt. More and more everyone wore blue jeans rolled up with their white socks showing. It wasn't uncommon to see boys dressed in high-waisted jeans, white socks, loafers, with cigarettes rolled up in their T-shirts. Meanwhile, girls wore high pony tails and red lipstick. Full bike racks stressed the point that gas was short besides being expensive. While the student body froze in classes, the administration enjoyed the comfort of its good old portable heater. There was talk of a smoking lounge but all that got accomplished was bolted shut windows in the restrooms which held the clouds of smoke in. But in the end it all balanced out and most of the students were proud to be known as J-Hawks.

Many changes have taken place during the past year. Namely, a new administration, stricter attendance rules, more speed bumps were added, door handles were taken off, and fewer assemblies were scheduled. Students lacked the spirit and enthusiasm which greatly affected the workings of many of the organizations. As always there were ringing fire alarms, graduation requirements to be met, confused sophomores, and crowded, noisy halls. Improvements made this year included carpeting in the student lounge, new display cases, and telephones moved to different areas of the building. The words cafeteria, restroom, and room numbers were painted on the walls. Waiting for the year to end, underclassmen were confronted with ITED tests. Now that it's over we can say we've lived through it all together!

THAT'S ALL!

Preparing for the future has been a lifetime pastime. Ironically, the days and weeks of the 1973-74 school year spent in the Publications Office have been centered on just the opposite . . . remembering the past. The book in your hands is a product of many hours of designing layouts, writing copyblocks, and continual disagreements. Although there were personality conflicts present, they didn't stand in the way of putting out another Jefferson Statesman, a book I hope you will enjoy, as well as treasure, for the rest of your life.

—Shelly Benford
