Visions...

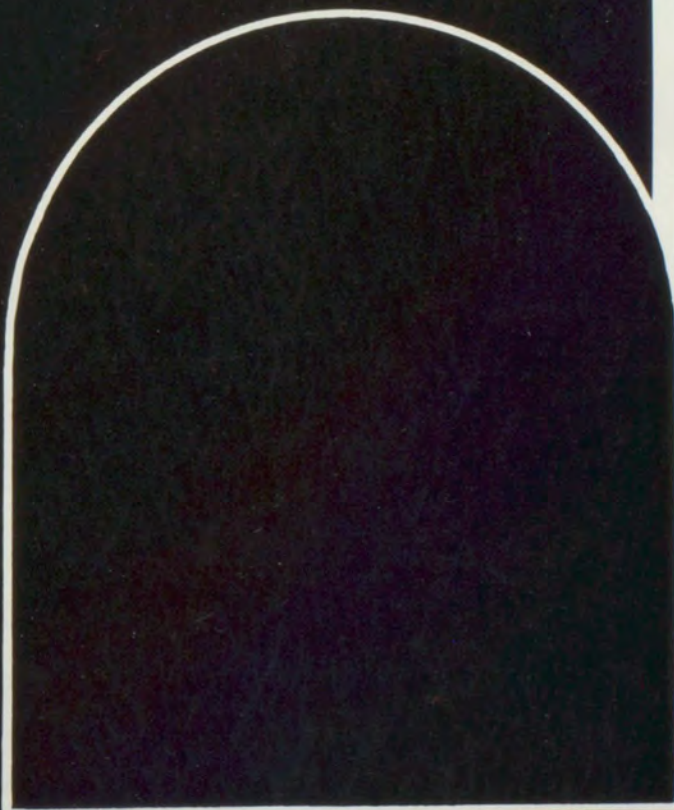

With the opening of a new school year, students began to experience growing pains. Whether they were advancing from junior high, from lonely sophomores to middle class juniors, or whether they were seniors at the top of the totem pole, they had goals which included making this year at Jeff the best possible. Although many heroic and egotistical aspirations accompanied this growing process, our main goal was to prove that the West was No. 1, that we were unbeatable, untouchable, and unable to be compared with anyone. It was our responsibility to fulfill this annual dream and to accomplish feats that would always be remembered. The overwhelming consensus here at Jeff is that we are No. 1, we're proud of our school, and we're willing to sacrifice to make this dream a reality.

Opportunities...

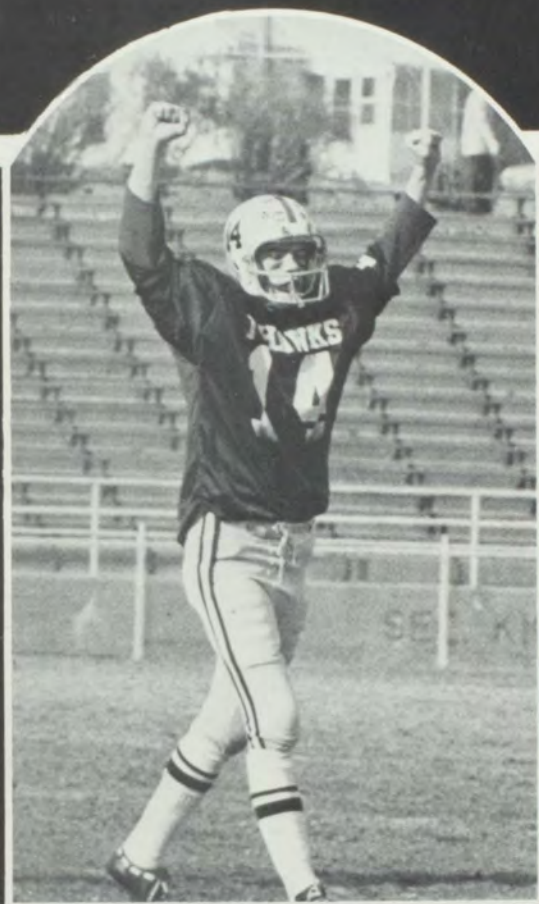

With the hassles and frustrations of registration a memory of the past, students began to settle down and concentrate on the classes they had obtained. With a staff of over 80 teachers available, and more than 105 courses and 15 various gym classes from which to choose, students were reminded that Jeff is a very advanced educational institution. Allowing students to arrange their own schedules as well as deciding what time they wish to start and end their days are just two of Jeff's positive aspects. With its well balanced curriculum and variety of course offerings, Jefferson was re-enforcing the claim that, as a school, it was truly rated No. 1.

Going Strong...

'We've got it, we've got it, we've got it, yeal' This familiar chant, which was often heard during the fall term pep assemblies, summarizes how every loyal J-Hawk supporter felt. After witnessing the football team advance to the second round of the state play-offs, seeing the volleyball team capture third place in the Metro, and concluding the season with a second place finish in the boys state gymnastics meet, word spread that Jefferson was a top contender in all areas, and that what we had was talent. The fall play, "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty", was a huge success, and Senior Senate sponsored a Pancake Supper that supplied a relaxing breather to an otherwise hectic term. After the Outlook received an All-American rating for the 14th consecutive time and the Statesman was displayed at a national convention in San Antonio, Texas, we could finally grasp what the cheerleaders had been saying all along. What did we have? We had the school spirit and the cooperation to make this year the best ever. It was our constant hope to prove that the West really was No. 1.

Highlights

Following the wrap-up of the exciting football season, many students discovered that Friday and Saturday nights could be very dull and boring if they didn't have the identification to get in where they wanted to go. Although pizza spots were still popular, many students also found Oscar's and Buggy's very enjoyable. For the adventurous students who got out of school before 1 p.m., afternoons also supplied plenty of free time. Playing foosball and talking on the telephone were a few of the indoor activities, while the nature lovers were frequently seen riding bicycles, horses, or motorcycles. Student life was definitely a vital part of our attempt to prove that "The West is No. 1."

Sophomores Andy Fiala and Mary Lester give it their all at the W.P.A. dance.

Because of a successful football campaign, school spirit was at a fever pitch. The ever abundant fall pep assembly was an outlet to release pent up energy. The most memorable assembly, of course, was before the Washington game. It featured a fired-up student body, an "I've Got It" cheer done by the football players, and the infamous poem by Randy Shaver. However, as the fall turned to winter and the football season ended, so did the pep assemblies, and school spirit silently slipped into hibernation. One bright spot during the dreary winter season was the reintroduction of the Women Pay All week. Included among the week's activities were three kings being chosen, one from each class, the showing of "The Other Side of the Mountain," and a semiformal dance. From the kings to the dance, all activities were designed to recreate the Homecoming atmosphere.

Enthusiastic seniors fire-up the crowd and as a result win the spirit stick.

Inspired by the music, junior Kendra Gevock exuberantly moves to the beat at an after-game mixer.

Boogie'n down to their favorite hot spot on a Friday night was a frequent way for most students to escape from the pressures and headaches of school and enjoy the freedom of a two day breather. For those with large appetites and a lot of time on their hands, pizza places were a big hit. After bowling a few frames or catching the latest flick, many students stopped to grab a bite to eat or just get together with the gang and have a good time. For sophomores, the frequent trips up and down the avenue proved to be only stalling tactics while they were getting up their nerve to buy some refreshments at one of the many Quick-Trips they had passed ten or fifteen times. If you were one of the students who was short on funds, the best place to be was back at school watching one of the many varied athletic activities or dancing at one of the mixers.

Stopping at McDonald's, seniors Rick Cole and Lee Selinger pause to munch out during an exciting night on the town.

Back row: Cindy Lanz, Karen Strong, Karen Popelka, Jill Schaefer, Robin Smittkamp, Janice Goodman, Ann Stolbe, Cyndi Hess, Lori Lee.

Homecoming began earlier this year, or at least this was the belief expressed by many Jefferson students. Editorials and numerous cartoons appeared in the school newspaper criticizing the girls for starting their smile campaign so early. The girls were thought to be out getting votes when they were actually only being themselves, or at least most of them. Twenty-five senior girls were selected by popular vote of the senior class. The students then went on to choose the nine finalists, and finally the coveted position of Jefferson's 1976 Homecoming queen was decided. One change that took place this year was the dropping of the speeches usually made by the nine finalists. This sparked a small controversy because this meant that many juniors and sophomores voted for a queen on mere sight alone.

Senior Jill Cocciola clutches escort Mike Ilten's arm after being named as one of the 25 semi-finalists.

As the finalists and their escorts dance to the theme, "If You Leave Me Now," bystanders gather around to watch.

Candidates Sue Jorgensen and Karen Popelka find a moment to talk after the assembly announcing the 25 semi-finalists.

Jody Doyle radiates an expression of joy and surprise seconds after receiving her crown.

During halftime activities, drum major Dave Ellis shows Mona Meiner and escort Kevin Tomasek to their place on the field.

Homecoming has such different meanings to many people. To the spectators it meant drama and excitement, to the nine finalists, thrills and many pleasant memories. To the alumni and football team it meant the first Homecoming victory in three seasons, a 29-7 trouncing at the expense of Iowa City High. The voting was opened by the senior class who selected the first 25. The juniors then joined the upperclass in "electing" the finalists. And now, it's all history as Jody Doyle was crowned Jefferson's twenty-first Homecoming queen. The dance was held in the cafeteria on the eve of Halloween with the theme, "If You Leave Me Now."

Cakes, model cars, and a pet racoon keep Terri Covington, Dave Kurka, and Sue Burk busy outside of school.

Boredom can be conquered by having a hobby! This fact is supported by the many Jefferson students who pursue hobbies in their spare time. No, we don't mean the run-of-the-mill hobbies such as eating, sleeping, or watching television, but pastimes like crafts, pets, and various collections. Hobbies run the limit, from beer cans and baseball cards to unusual items like the Mickey Mouses and Panda Bears that sisters Ruth and Janice Goodman spend their spare time hunting up. Senior Dave Kurka enjoys putting model cars together in his spare time, and said of his craft, "It takes up my spare time and helps me in my future interests, because I plan to be an auto body man." Sue Burk, junior, disclosed her numerous pets are "something to go home to after school . . . besides homework!" Whatever the reason for having a hobby, it seems the students who do have an activity to fill up those empty hours seldom get bored.

After showing off his novel display of beer cans, junior Jeff Nechanicky finds a minute to clown around.

Senior Sue Jorgensen enthusiastically claps to the beat of the music played by "Skyhook."

With arms flying and hips swinging, senior Tim Jones boogies down with the beat at a mixer.

Crepe paper streamers, new outfits, and flowers provide a special touch to the Homecoming dance.

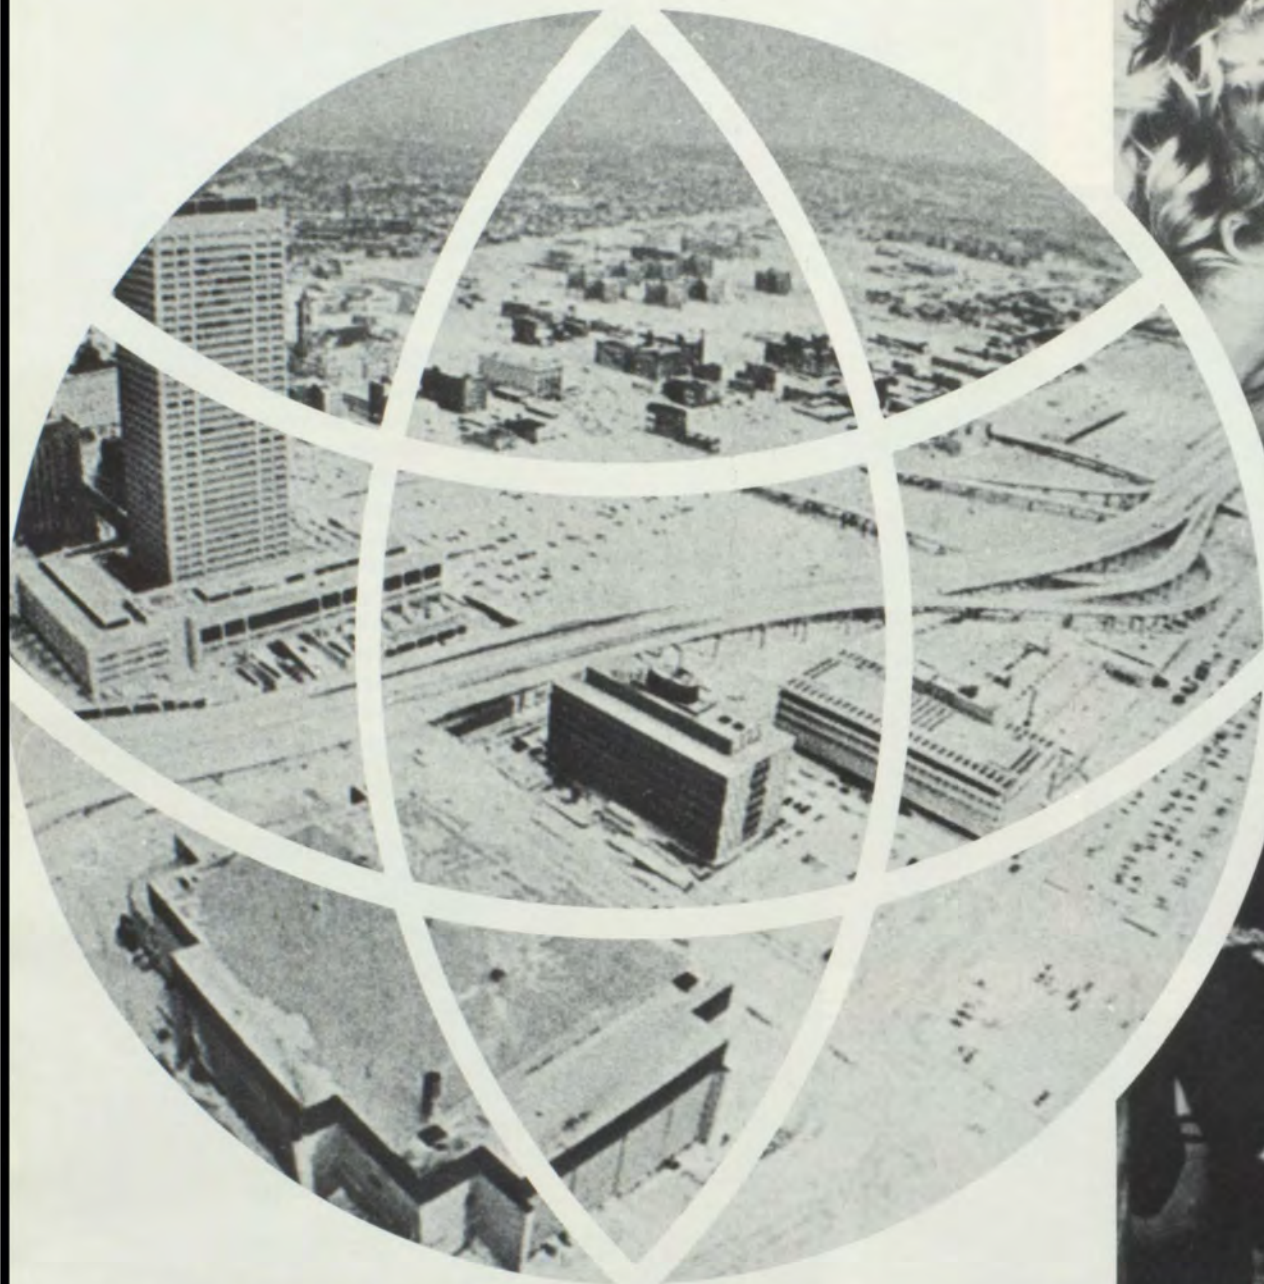

Get up and boogie, get down tonight, and shake your booties were some of the more popular phrases heard at this year's mixers and dances. The traditional Back to School Dance and Homecoming Dance were well attended as student interest in mixers rapidly increased. Bands ranged from the "bubble man" Lawrence Welk to the best of the Eagles and Peter Frampton. In the spring, a new twist was added during Women Pay All (WPA) week, when the girls were given the opportunity to hustle their favorite guy or guys and take them to the WPA dance. Overall, students seemed pleased with the outcome of the mixers and dances this year.

Soft music and slow dancing are two of the more enjoyable aspects of attending the annual Homecoming dance.

Couples, enjoying the company of their friends, dance to the music of "Fanfare" at a mixer.

World-wide happenings and events may seem relatively unimportant in the everyday lives of busy high school students, but they do have definite long range consequences. The school year 76-77 had its share of significant news events to remember. With the election of Jimmy Carter as the 39th President, there was much controversy over which candidate could best lead our country on to greater prosperity. There were even some seniors who were able to actively support their candidate by voting in their first presidential election. "Is capital punishment morally right?" was the question that was discussed in Mr. Jack Fisk's government classes, as Gary Gilmore shocked the country by demanding his own death sentence. Farrah Fawcett-Majors and her famous swim suit poster prompted envious remarks from the girls but strong approval from the guys at Jefferson, including various teachers. The bitter cold winter, and a plea from Washington, brought temperatures to even lower extremes as school thermostats were lowered to a frigid 65 degrees. Senior Diane Davis commented, "The really cold weather bothered me most when my car wouldn't start in the morning!" Our country had experienced the coldest winter in several decades. On the movie scene, "Rocky" won the Academy Award for Picture of the Year, while "Evergreen" was named Song of the Year. Receiving seven perfect scores for her Olympic performances, Nadia Comanecia, the fourteen year old gymnast from Romania, was the undisputed queen of the 1976 Olympic games in Montreal. These are a few of the more memorable events that made the 76-77 school year distinguishable from any other year.

—Jody Doyle

In an effort to raise money for their particular organization, students sold everything from candy and fruit, to socks, calendars, and Lemon Rex cleaner. Senior Senate, Distributive Education, and Concert Choir were just a few of the many groups that contributed to the stream of smiling salesmen wandering the halls in search of prospective customers and the almighty buck. Mike Ilten, a member of D.E., commented, "It seemed that we were always selling things all year long. It wasn't so bad, though, since it gave us something to do during the year." The issue of student sales came under close scrutiny this year. In a report filed by the NCA evaluation team, it was stated that there was too much of an emphasis placed upon fund raising at Jefferson. "We echo that concern," replied Mr. William C. Jacobson, principal.

Forty-one seniors were welcomed into the Aristotilean Chapter of the National Honor Society during the annual induction ceremony Tuesday, April 19, in the auditorium. The Honor Society was devised to stress the importance of academic scholarship and to recognize those students who have excelled in their studies. The students must have displayed qualities of leadership, scholarship, service, and dependability. The year 1977 marked the twentieth year of sponsorship for Mrs. Jaraslava Wheatley and the induction ceremony and program were dedicated to her. Other seniors were honored and awarded on Senior Recognition Night, May 23, in the auditorium. Honors such as Dollars for Scholars, Male and Female Athletes of the Year, Civic Awards, Brink Essay, and Language Arts scholarship recipients were honored during the evening.

Senior Judy Carlson clowns around with juniors Bobbi Ash and Louri Vosmek on Halloween night at Burger King.

Pumping gas at Derby provides senior Doug Barnes with extra spending money.

Money, money, and more money! It's hard to tell what reformatory a high schooler would be in if he didn't have any money to spend. It's the driving force in every student's life because it's such a necessity. And nearly all high schoolers at one time or another find it necessary to have a job to support themselves. Whether it's working at a gas station, food store, restaurant, or a tooth pick factory, it doesn't seem to matter. As long as the checks keep coming, the students can keep going to places like Bugsys, Pizza Hut, Armstrong's, Bob Zimmerman Ford, Texaco, and McDonald's to spend those hard-earned bucks for things that bring happiness and satisfaction. "Making money and then spending it is really important to me" sighed senior Mary Quijano. "I mean you can't have any fun these days unless you have the bucks to spend." And, of course, there's always birthdays, anniversaries, Christmas, and thousands of more occasions that seem to steal that money away. So, for the high school student, getting a job, keeping it, and making money to "live" on is as vital as Roloids after a school lunch.

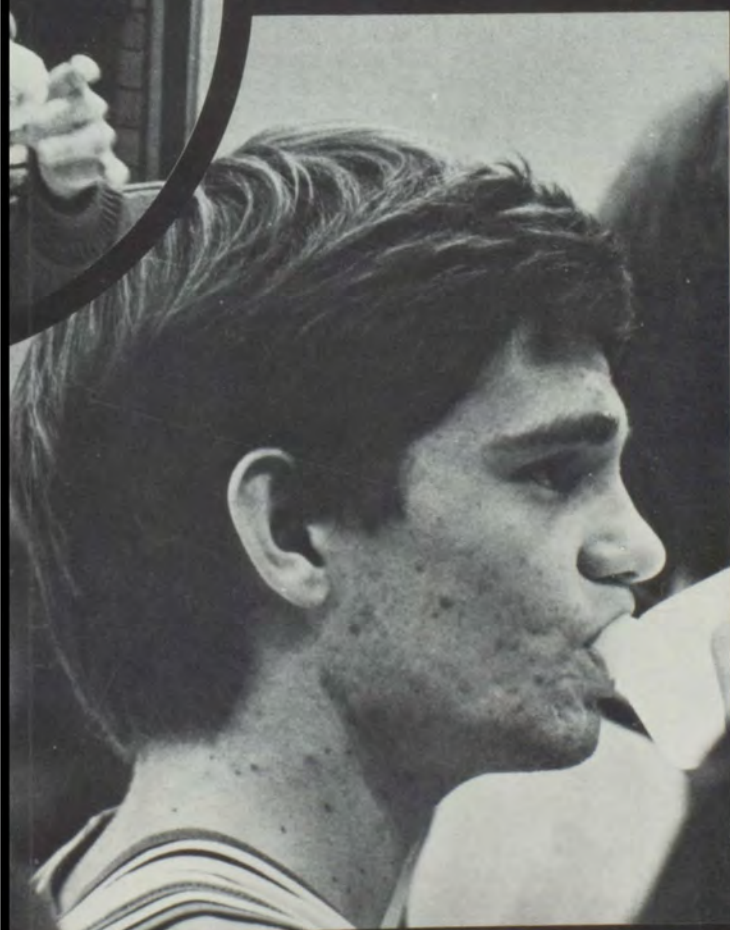

Selling tickets to Shaun Kelsey and Lori Kraft is just part of junior Chris Prusek's job at Stage 4.

Off Guard

Whether they were walking down the hall, practicing on the field, performing on stage, competing in a contest, or studying in the classroom, students could be seen putting forth the effort that makes them proud that they are J-Hawks. Long hours of hard work were put into plays, in the training for the long hard road to that state tournament, or finally passing a class. While concentrating or just enjoying themselves, kids were seen when they least suspected with unguarded expressions. It could have been anytime, anyplace, anywhere when people were caught OFF GUARD!

Clubs

Dedicated workers and responsible leaders were scarce, so conscientious club members were forced to work overtime, for which they received little recognition, to establish worthwhile groups which would reflect "How the West is No. 1." Since Jefferson sponsors over thirty organized clubs, the key to our school's success was dependent on the number of students who were willing to actively participate. Continuing the Outlook's All-American rating and surpassing last year's award winning Statesman were the goals of the publications' staffs. This confidence and pride spread to other groups who were determined to make Jefferson No. 1 in all activities and organizations.

WPA kings, Dave Koolbeck, Ed Uthoff and Gary Sweeny are crowned at an all school dance.

Thrilling times were for the most part limited to other groups. However, Junior and Senior Senates did their best to recruit members though they became virtually non-existent toward the end of the year. It might have been caused in part by the sudden interest aroused in Student Council. However, Senior Senate pulled through by raising enough money to present the prom "of all times" at the Sheraton Inn May 7. As Keely Mooney, secretary, put it, "The most satisfying accomplishment Senior Senate made this year was to change the prom location from the IBEW Hall to the Sheraton." While Homecoming is usually Student Council's "biggie" for the year, it was challenged by Women Pay All Week in April. Meanwhile, Junior Senate sat back in the shadows planning film festivals, Tupperware parties, and various sales campaigns.

Receiving credit for working is one of the advantages students involved in work programs enjoyed this year. Jefferson's four work programs, Distributive Education, Trade and Industry, Office Education, and Data Processing, begin each morning by holding classes in which the students are taught more about their respective field. The people involved in the work programs have a chance to take on the added responsibilities of having a job. Many times these jobs help the students decide whether they will go on to college or stay on at their job full time. This year the work programs helped the community by providing needy families with gifts at Christmas, promoting free enterprise throughout the city, and by holding a mixer to earn money to buy gifts for the underprivileged. During the winter, all four work programs got together with parents and employers and hosted a banquet in the dining room. This was a good opportunity for the four work programs to unify and collectively carry out a project.

One of senior lab assistant Tim Astor's many duties is caring for the rats in the science lab.

Throughout the school year students have an opportunity to take a credit course in which they help teachers and assist fellow students. Two programs with this objective in mind are Lab Assistants and CMC helpers. Lab Assistants clean and feed experimental rats, clean lab materials, and grade papers. "Being a lab assistant for Mr. Becker was really great," commented senior Randy Shaver. "I had a lot of fun and even learned a few things." Helping out in the CMC is also a specialized activity. Refiling books along with checking them out are some of the duties performed by these students. Meanwhile, delivering equipment and films to requested rooms along with repairing audio visual equipment are the deeds carried out by the audio visual helpers. Building trades is an off-campus activity in which students actually design and build a house. A total of 12 students participated in this program. Senior Lee Selinger hopes this course will help save him costly commercial repairs.

echoed in the gym hall as the fall cheerleaders spent many long hours fulfilling their responsibility to pep up the student body. Arousing J-Hawk spirit required hard work from the 23 cheerleaders. Changes were implemented to cut back the time that was needed to cheer at so many sporting events. Instead of the former blue and white squads, there were five squads of cheerleaders. Each squad cheered for only one fall sport, both varsity and JV. The fact that the new program let many more girls have a chance to become a cheerleader and become involved in a school activity was favorable. However, the few pep assemblies that were held for the fall sports did not follow through with the traditional J-Hawk spirit. Many girls felt pressure from the student body because they were expected to instantly drum up enthusiasm throughout the crowd. "Although the cheerleaders start and head the cheers, it's up to the fans to provide the support needed to back them up," explained Kathy Sullivan, football cheerleader.

Screaming on for victory no matter how far behind their team was, this year's group of winter cheerleaders proved to be far superior to those of the past. Decorating the halls and lockerrooms with "Wish You Luck" signs, this new breed of cheerleaders did far more than what was expected of them. Practicing in the halls after school for hours and holding pre-game parties for the athletes, the winter cheerleaders provided that much needed spirit during the long cold winter. No one can really say what it was that made this year's cheerleaders so enthused, excited, and dedicated about the winter sports events. Maybe we've finally produced a group of cheerleaders that really cared about school spirit and winning, instead of their own popularity. This could begin a new tradition for all cheerleading squads which might even foster continued support throughout the coming years.

Lack of dedication was quite apparent in many of the clubs at Jefferson. Promoting school spirit was the original intention of the members of Pep Club. The year got off to a good start with the usual Beat Wash week. Pep pals were chosen and a special breakfast was held for the football team. However, this turned out to be the only major activity the girls planned. "After the Washington week, everything went down hill," commented junior Sue Bohlken. Another group that was less dedicated than it should have been was the Mat Maids. Many of the nine girls who belonged to the club seemed uninterested in any of the activities. Among the duties carried out by the more responsible individuals were video taping, timing, and keeping score. Fund raising projects were held to collect money for the special events sponsored by the Mat Maids. Some of these included the wrestling programs that were distributed at each home meet, a special breakfast for the wrestlers, and the end of the year banquet. The biggest event that the Mat Maids hosted was the steak dinner that concluded the year.

Working together is the name of the game whether you are a member of the Aquatic Arts, Timers Club, or JJ Club. Many hours of cooperation and practice resulted in a successful aquatic arts show March 29. Each number had a color in the title to help carry out the theme of a "Colorful World." The Timers Club included swimmers in their off season and others interested in the sport. Fifteen regular Timers, plus those who helped out occasionally, sacrificed many hours of their own to help the swim meets run smoothly by recording official times. At the end of the swim season both the swimmers and the Timers were honored at a banquet. JJ Club members had planned several fund raising projects including a car wash and the sale of Homecoming buttons. The profits were used to purchase a gift for the school's athletic department.

'I promise to uphold the aims and ideals of the International Thespians Society. As a Thespian, I pledge my best efforts in all assignments given to me as a member of the Theatre Arts department of my school." The formal initiation ceremony was where it all began as members took the Thespian pledge. The assignments enthusiastically tackled during the year included, "Rags to Riches", "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty", "The Truth About Cinderella", "A Stage Door Canteen", "A Gap in Generations", and "Mack and Mabel". But these shows weren't merely thrown together. Scenery had to be built, tickets and posters printed, lights were hung, props and costumes had to be made, and then there were the endless rehearsals to attend.

Original oratory, television expository, and humorous acting are just a few of the many categories in which this year's forensic team excelled. A total of twelve trophies were brought home by the forty-two member team, along with other awards and honors. This year's forensic students participated in over twenty tournaments, including two over-night debate and individual event contests. Countless hours of writing, practicing, and organizing were put in by the dedicated team members. In addition, many students sacrificed nearly every Saturday to attend meets and even those students who were unable to attend more than a few meets gave their all and made a significant contribution to the team. One advantage of forensics is that there is something for everyone. Whether your thing is writing, debating, book reviewing, demonstrating wrestling holds, or dramatic acting, forensics has something to offer every Jefferson student.

Money, gag gifts, and lots of fun were all a part of this year's annual Outlook staff Christmas party as staff members exchanged gifts and took a much needed break from their production of an all-American newspaper. This year's staff was expanded to include 21 dedicated writers who gave up many a weekend in order to get their stories in for the next deadline. The job was completed and the staff succeeded in putting out 15 issues of the paper. An innovation came through in April as the first 8-page Outlook using magazine layout design was published. The staff did suffer a slight bruised ego as NCA evaluators released reports stating that Jefferson newspaper tended to be somewhat negative, but this didn't hamper the Outlook as it again ranked high in the state among high school newspapers.

Thanks to 95 super Statesman workers and continued threats from adviser Ron Smrha, this year's Statesman is undoubtedly the best in Jeff's history. In building a book of this caliber, high reaching goals have to be set, and this year's staff had two. One was to top last year's book (which they did with ease) and number two was to earn Mr. Smrha a trip to Texas . . . one way of course . . . so that he could attend a national yearbook convention and bask in the glory of our book. But in the shadows of all the limelight was a lot of time spent on layout design, copy writing, and picture selection. And some individuals stood out in these areas to help ease the burden for those who weren't too creative. Staffers like Beth "goddess of layout design" Matejcek, the dynamic duo of Stark and Quijano, and Nola "index" Schroeder were just a few of the people who made this book so successful. But for the yearbook to really be a success, it had to be sold, and most kids bought their copy with confidence.

Studies

Forfeiting many leisure hours and sacrificing their ever precious week-ends were only two of the unpleasant consequences many students had to cope with as they heroically stayed home to complete overdo assignments. Ambitious sophomores with hectic schedules, juniors trying to catch up on credits, and lazy seniors taking the minimum number of classes needed to graduate all played an important part in the student body's attempt to make Jefferson the best school possible. Although procedures were constantly changing, registration was still a hassle for the inexperienced sophomores, the indifferent juniors, and the relieved yet sentimental seniors who had registered for the last time as J-Hawks.

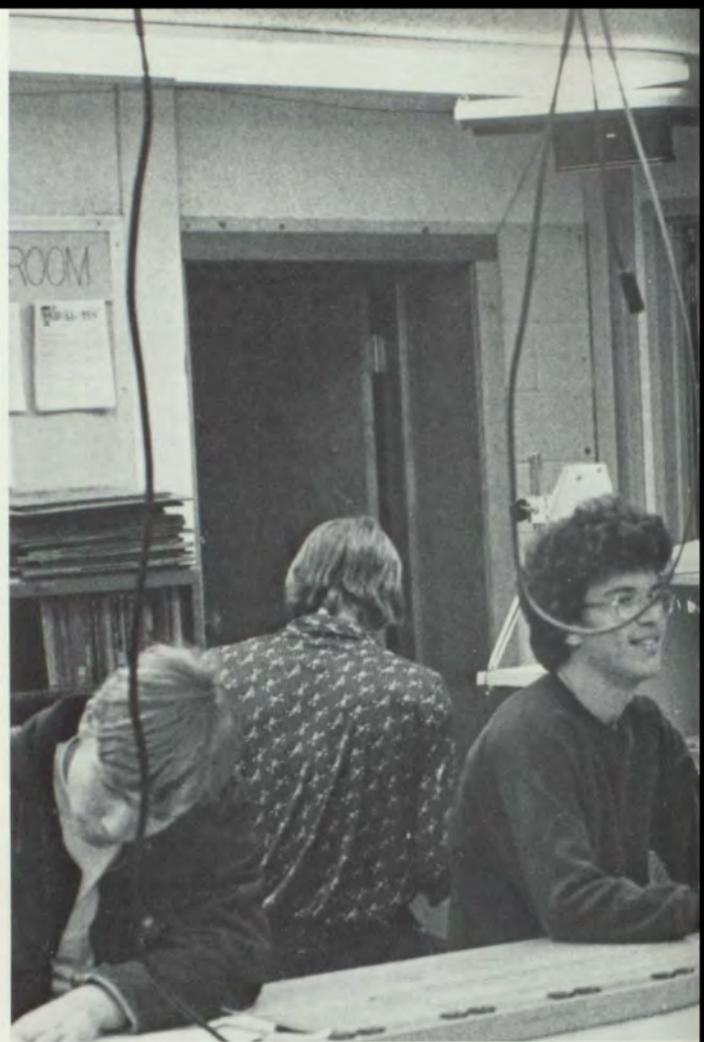

As the end of the term draws near, grades are discussed individually in Mr. Hartman's electronics class.

Family decision making requires perfection and that is where Home Economics and Industrial Arts provide the vital training ground. Future mothers attended classes ranging from Child Development to Foods. This is the case with junior Terri Johnson who commented, "Taking these classes helps prepare me for the future and will hopefully make me a better mother and wife." Meanwhile, senior Tom Hughes revealed, "The reason I took Auto Mechanics was to help me save money on my own repairs." More students seem to be turning to the Home Ec. and Industrial Arts departments for instruction in skills that will help them later.

Students gather around as Miss Dickey demonstrates how to mix ingredients for a cake.

While sampling the unique foods of France, students confer with Miss Maitland during the French party.

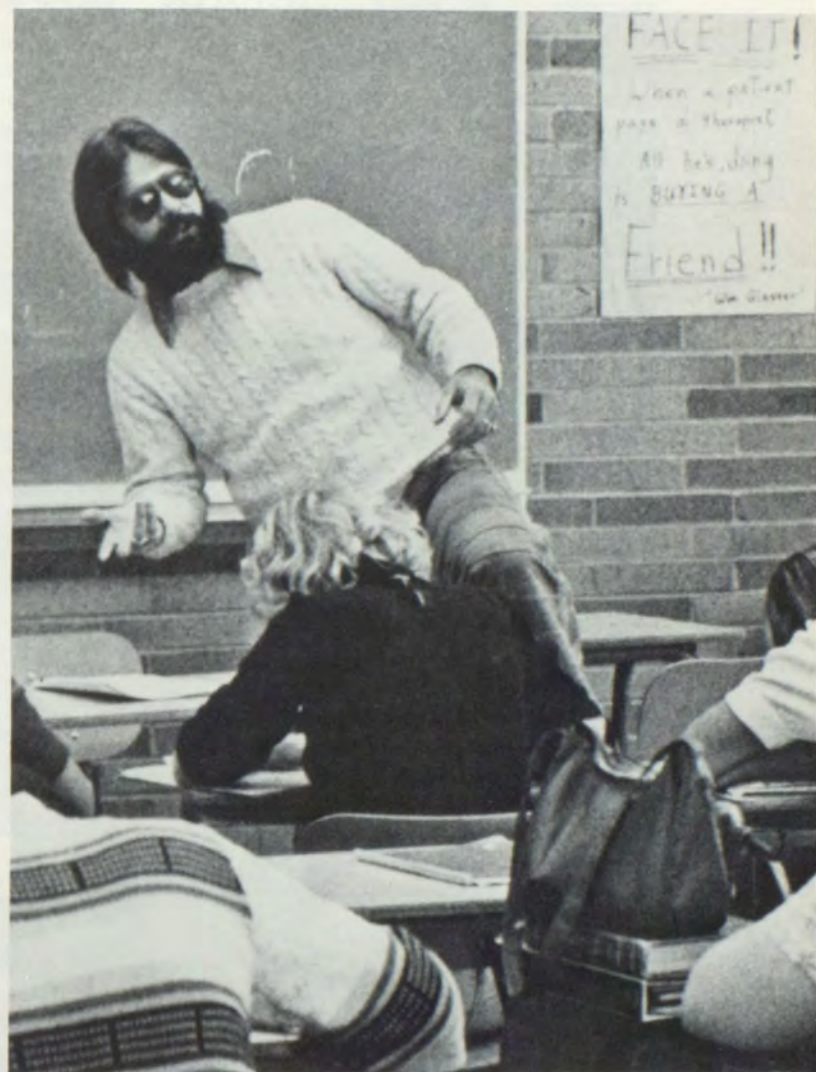

Making a pinata is just one of the experiences sophomores Joe Schreder and Debbie Smith undertake in Spanish I.

Friends laugh as they munch on goodies at the hour 4's French party.

Explaining the hardships following the depression, Mr. Ask holds the attention of his sophomore students.

Students take notes as Mr. Pilling lectures on the techniques of propaganda in his Social Psych I class.

Disgusted was the comment expressed by upset juniors who attempted to sign up for American Government on registration day and were turned away. In past years, interested students were able to fulfill this requirement anytime during their junior or senior year. But this year, seniors were the only ones permitted to register for the course. Classes for students in social studies ranged from Black Studies to the stock market. With three foreign languages being offered, a lot of varied activities were packed into one year including an all-city foreign language picnic, Christmas parties, and trips. French teacher Miss Barbra Maitland stated, "New books are starting to be used to replace the old and outdated ones."

Instructor Mr. Brown explains simulator safety rules to his sophomore class.

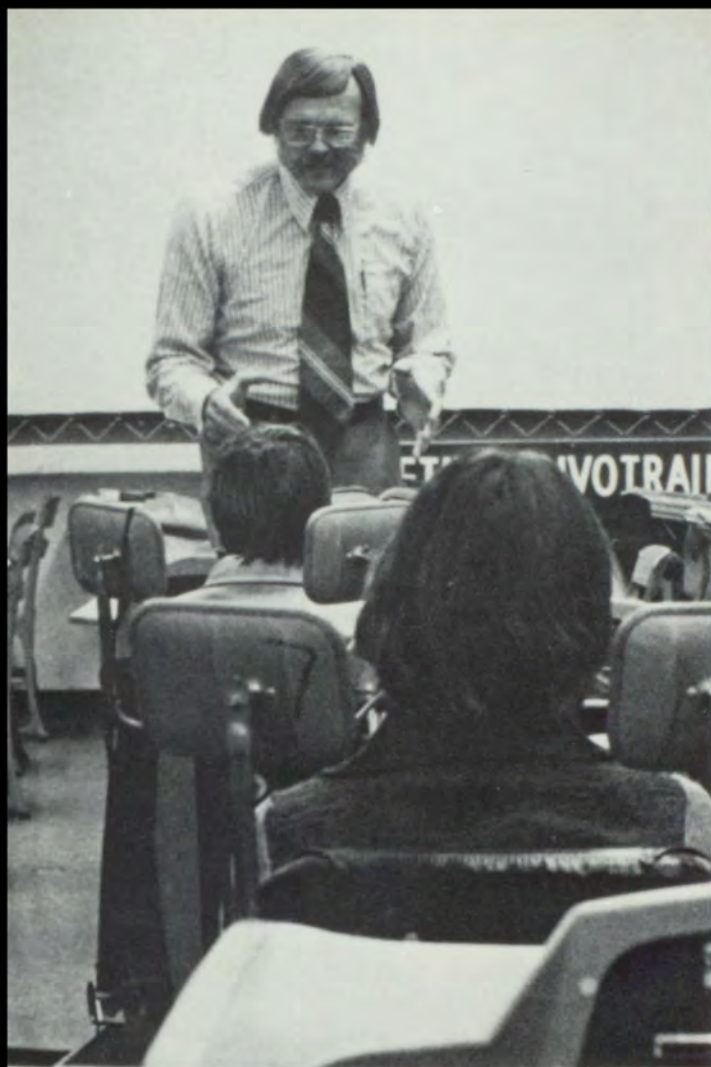

Two competitive volleyball teams watch as one member prepares for the set during gym class.

A sophomore swimmer loses his balance while standing on an inner tube.

Donna Smith and Nevada Engberg study their driver's ed manuals before beginning their simulated drive.

Final driving tests, slippery roads, and off-campus recreational activities played a major part in this year's physical education and driver's ed programs. In gym classes, individuals may get an opportunity to leave the school and either go bowling or roller skating. "I like the off-campus classes because I can get out of the building and then coming back to the classroom isn't so difficult," commented senior Mike McCain. Another class that offers off-campus activities on a regular basis is the driver's ed program. This sophomore dominated course is required before one may obtain a driver's license. Students participate in classroom situations, actual out on the road driving sessions, and simulated driving practice on the range at Kingston Stadium. The two most trying times in the driver's ed program are the first time a student drives and the final driving examination.

With the hassle of registration behind them, this group of junior guys takes a well deserved break.

While students fight the turmoil of a rough schedule, many find that science classes can be fun and relaxing. "Most of the time I enter science class looking forward to class activities, not dreading them like all the other classes I have," revealed Jon Oyler, senior. Science classes include biology, a sophomore dominated area, and chemistry and physics which are geared to the college-bound juniors and seniors. Needing 15 credits in mathematics to graduate, most students find the areas of geometry and algebra suitable for their needs, although many students take more advanced courses. "I have taken all the math I can, because I feel I might as well get the classes at Jefferson while they're still free," stated senior Doug Wilson. Then again there are those few students who look for an easy way out in both math and science, and take the more lenient teachers or the easier classes like Basic Math or Consumer Math. What ever students feel their needs are, Jefferson seems to have classes to fill those needs. With a trend back to the basic skills, both departments expect to see their enrollments increase significantly in the coming year.

Mr. Bredeson reads the answers to the day's assignments for his math students.

On a field trip, Shelly Schultz, Sherry Briney, Janelle Mullen, and Brent David search for insects.

While at Palisades Park, Mr. Sondrol leads his biology class on a scavenger hunt.

Mr. Becker gives some helpful hints to his biology students over a lab experiment.

Orchestra members display their Christmas spirit by playing carols for students before school in the main foyer.

In ceramics class, Darwin Bosier shapes his clay pot.

An encouraging smile brightens the face of Bev Epperson as Mr. Ball checks the position of her pencil in drawing class.

'Creative project' was the phrase Mr. William Ball, art chairman, used when starting to describe the goals for his classes. Mr. Ball has been at Jefferson for the past six years and still feels that he has hardly scratched the surface in comparison to achieving the goals which he would like to accomplish. When questioned as to what his feelings for the purpose of having an art department were, Mr. Ball explained. "The art department is interested in helping a student complete any project that that student may desire. I feel that every student accomplished the goal of completing a project that was meaningful to not only one person but to many people." Heading this year's music department was Mr. Luman Colton. He directs Jefferson's marching, concert, and stage bands. Mr. Colton stated, "The band director's purpose is to maintain the band program and to strengthen its weak points. My goal for this year was to help the students gain a broader spectrum of music in the musical world." The annual band carnival in February and marching in the Eastern Iowa Band Festival rounded out the year.

Concert Choir members inspire the audience with a special arrangement of "Silent Night".

Mr. Koepke rechecks a student's sales figures during the annual Christmas fruit sales campaign.

With the focus on learning basic skills, the language arts and business education departments are zeroing in on the familiar "return to the basics" philosophy. Offering three new courses in writing and adopting an innovative spelling program, the language arts department has already made great strides in this direction. Enrollment remained stable over last year with some 1,500 students registered for language arts courses each term. Numerous awards and honors came to Mr. Smrha's publications staffs for their fine work on the newspaper and yearbook and to Mrs. Wenzel's forensics squad. Then there's business education with its goal to prepare students for the job world. Many electives in business education provide a large variety from which students may select courses ranging from typing and shorthand to more advanced office education, distributive education, data processing, or accounting. More students took advantage of these electives in 1976-77 than they have in previous years, noted Mrs. Miriam Shipman, department chairperson. Michele Shaffer, senior, was elected to the position of office education treasurer. Michele is the first student in the school's history to be elected to a state office, noted Mrs. Mary Harker, Office Education co-ordinator.

Searching through magazines, speech students gather information for their next assignment.

Yearbook adviser Mr. Smrha patiently explains the principles of layout design to junior Scott Smith.

Listening intently, senior Kathy Herber takes dictation in Mrs. Harker's Office Education class.

Awaiting final instructions from Miss Bomkamp, senior Sue Jorgensen counts her keypunch cards.

Performing one of the required duties of a teacher, Mrs. Wenzel and Mrs. Shackford record their daily attendance.

Nurse Donna Bales talks with senior Janet Gott about the problems she will face when her cast is removed.

School cooks Claire Russell and Viola Patten serve meals to some 900 hungry students each day.

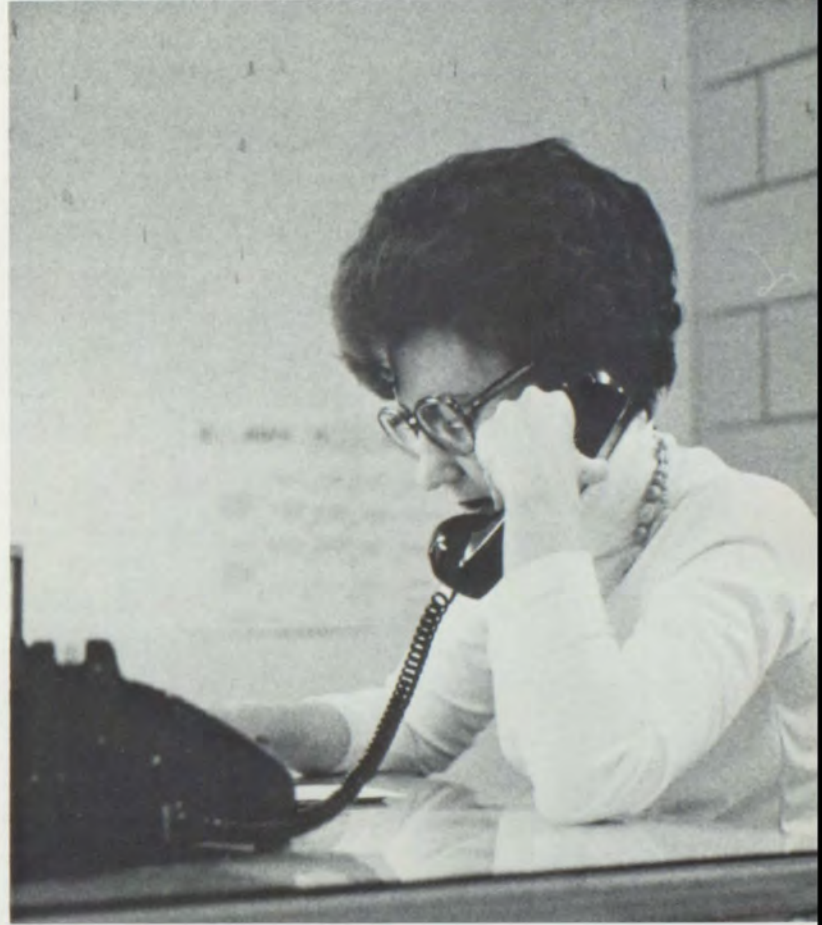

Main office secretaries perform a variety of duties to insure that the school is run efficiently.

Custodian Dave Pisha cleans up following the last lunch shift of the day.

The more strict attendance policy keeps Mrs. Mickey Buchanan busy phoning parents.

Halls kept clean, aches and pains remedied, hunger satisfied, and forms accurately completed each day are the accomplishments of the custodians, school nurse, cooks, and secretaries. Each day these people of vital importance carry out their work unappreciated and unnoticed by students for the most part. Everything is neat and orderly in the school after the last shift of custodians cleans up those litter filled floors and corridors. Mrs. Bales, the school nurse, cures those headaches or colds caused from that test last hour or that late night at your favorite hangout. Meanwhile, the cooking staff fixes a nutritious, yet low-priced meal for fifty cents a day for over 900 hungry students and teachers. A smoothly running office is attributed to the secretaries as they work diligently on those tedious and time-consuming tasks.

'DEE-FENSE!' was the frequent cry heard around the Mississippi Valley Conference when the 1976 J-Hawks took to the field. From the beginning of the 1976 grid campaign, the defense led the J-Hawks to victories over their first four opponents. But the fifth week brought a heartbreaking loss at the hands of Washington, 7-0. The J-Hawks then bounced back to post victories over their next three opponents and vaulted into a conference title with a thrilling 10-6 conquest over powerful Dubuque Hempstead. Success was also enjoyed by the sophomore and JV squads. The sophomore team rambed over its first eight foes which led to a showdown with unbeaten Dubuque Hempstead. The teams were deadlocked and the result was a 7-7 tie and a share of the MVC title.

During the playoff victory against the Warriors, senior cornerback Sean Shanahan snares a key interception.

Mississippi Valley standout Bob Tiedtke buries a Washington runner with the help of his teammates.

In an attempt to break away from two Wash tacklers, sophomore running back Dean Johnson turns on the speed.

History was made as the J-Hawk gridders took to the field against Washington for the second time during the season. After the first unsuccessful encounter with the east-siders, the J-Hawks claimed that they would be victorious if given another chance. Both teams qualified for the state class 4A playoffs and the two teams met for the second time. The J-Hawk prophets were correct as the team was victorious in a rugged 10-7 battle. The triumph gave them the right to face Davenport Central in the class 4A semifinals. However, Central proved to be too strong as the Blue Devils demolished the J-Hawk 37-14, thus crushing the dreams of a state championship. Although they weren't number one in the state, the gridders brought back the Jefferson tradition of excellence. The season was best summed up by senior co-captain Mike Carson, "It was a great honor for all of us to become the third best team in the state."

Tight end Dave Koolbeck reaches in vain for a pass in the regular season loss to Washington.

All-Stater Randy Shaver tackles a Central player after he intercepts a Dave Wise pass.

J-Hawk domination occurred as the season drew to a close. The J-Hawks sported three all-stars with seniors Mike Carson and Jeff Shaw making third team, and Randy Shaver making the elite first team. The J-Hawks also dominated the all-Mississippi Valley conference team by landing seven players on the first team. They included seniors Dale Frank, Dave Wise, Chuck Elias, Bob Tiedtke, Shaver, Carson, and Shaw. All-Metro honors went to seniors Dave Heaton, Shaver, Shaw, Carson, Wise, Elias, Tiedtke, Frank, and junior Ed Uthoff. At the awards banquet the team named as co-captains Carson and Wise, who was also voted the most valuable team member.

With hard running and determination, junior standout Ron Rooney pierces the Iowa City West defense.

Sophomore Valley co-champions move out opponents in the victory over Kennedy.

Senior halfback Randy Bouzek follows fullback Ron Rooney through a stingy Wash defense.

Stealing a Bettendorf aerial, senior safety Ron Rooks helps secure the Jeff victory, 16-8.

Sophomore running back Tony Brooks goes in for another touchdown in the 67-0 romp of Iowa City West.

State competitor Wendy Stoeker gracefully executes a difficult dive.

Exhaustion is apparent on the faces of sophomore Marie Kabelitz and freshman Carrie Eggers as each nears the finish line.

Six school records were re-written during the course of the 1976 girls swimming campaign that saw the tankers finish with a 5-7 dual meet record. Junior Jody Molitor, voted most valuable swimmer by her teammates, set marks in the 100-, 200-, and 500-yard freestyle and joined freshmen Cindy Dvorak, voted hardest worker; June Dvorak, sophomore; and Sue Petrzalek, junior; to lower the existing 400-yard freestyle relay record. Pegi Peterson, junior, set new marks in the 100-yard backstroke and the 100-yard butterfly. The team also selected junior Becky Zacek as the most improved swimmer.

Smiles of success beamed on the faces of both cross country coaches when they were asked about their respective past seasons. Boys coach Bob Noonan, whose team finished 8th in the Mississippi Valley Conference, stated, "This was a good season. We had super efforts from the young men." The male harriers were led by outstanding juniors Willie Jackson and Alex Riddles, who, along with a fine sophomore group, will provide the potential for next year's squad to have, what Coach Noonan predicts, will be the "finest season of cross country in three years." The future is also bright on the girls side as well, as they were led this season by Julie Nowlan and Nancy Munson. Nowlan finished 21st in the state cross country meet, while the team copped 14th.

Lack of popularity and interest brought about a new ruling this year, by the Iowa High School Athletic Association, that there will be no more official boys gymnastics state tournaments. Competition will still continue next year, but at the end of the season an unofficial invitational will be held to determine a state winner. The boys gymnastics team finished with a second place in this year's state meet, and first at the Urbandale Invitational. Second in state was a great accomplishment for this team since standout co-captain Mark Johnson was out for most of the season with a shoulder injury. Mark secured first place in the side horse and attained second place in the vaulting routine. Seizing a third place in the all around contest was co-captain Jeff Smejkal.

Placing third in the all-around competition at the state meet, junior Jeff Smejkal shakes hands with his opponent.

Determination grips the faces of seniors Mark Johnson and Tim Jones as they perform their routines on the side horse.

Senior Terry Fitzgerald skillfully performs his routine on the rings.

Excitement glittered all around for the 1976 girls volleyball team after posting a winning record of 21-9-2. Hoping to take the girls team to state for the first time since the program started three years ago, Coach John Weld and his team moved on to substate competition. This was not to be, however, as the girls were defeated by a stronger Iowa City High team. Finishing fourth in the Valley and second and third at the Kennedy and Dubuque Walhert Invitationals, Coach Weld summed up his feelings on the season's outcome. "The girls on this year's team compiled a record of which they can be proud." Awards presented at the banquet went to co-captains Judy Siemering and Jan Goodman. Teresa Langguth capped most valuable player for the second year in a row, while also capturing the varsity serving champion title. Ann Stolba was cited as most improved and Polly Hildebrand was named outstanding sophomore on the varsity squad.

In tense tournament action, senior Teresa Langguth dinks the ball over the hands of the opponent.

With a look of determination, senior Anne Stolba awaits the opponent's next move.

Sophomore standout Polly Hildebrand hammers a spike toward Bettendorf opponents during the MVC tournaments in the J-Hawk gym.

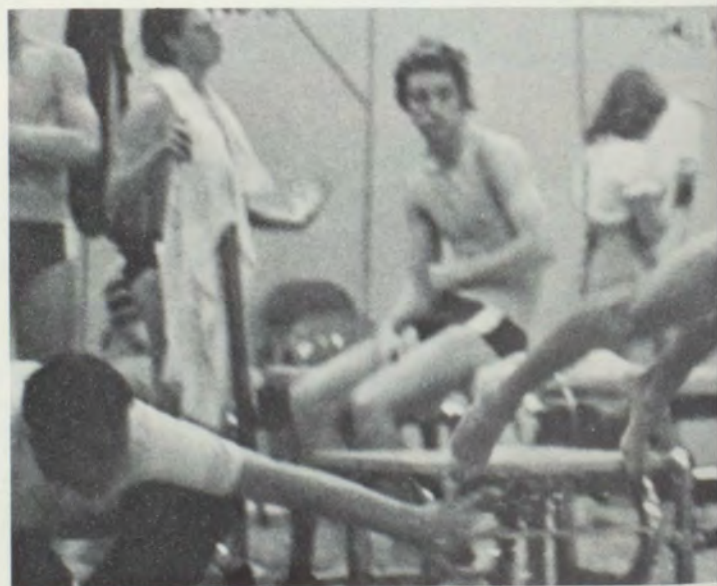

State ranked Beth Matejcek attempts to set the ball for another ace spike.

With stop watch in hand, Coach Jim Taylor informs senior Mike DeHaan of his finishing time.

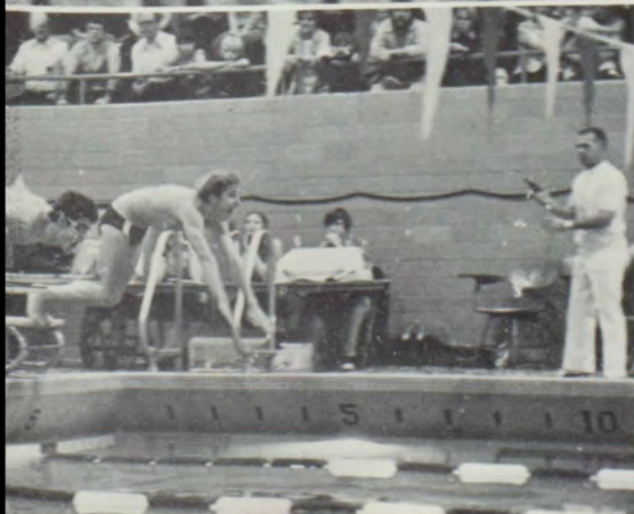

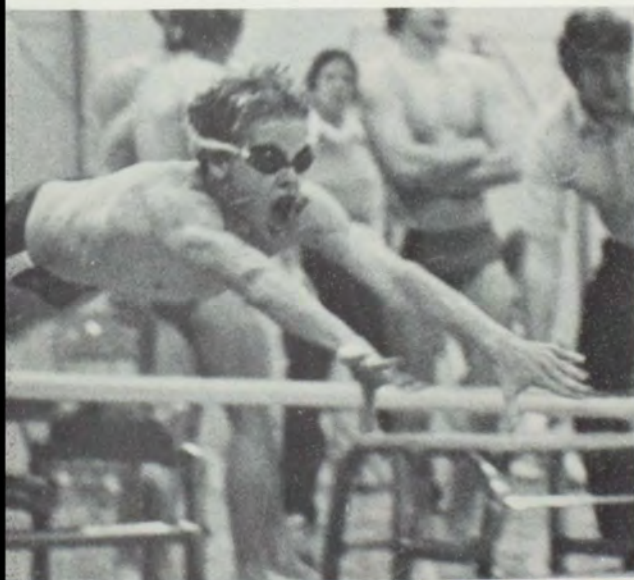

Senior Rick Eggers shows near perfect form that made him the team's leading diver.

With overall better talent available, and by having several hard working individuals, the boys swimming team enjoyed its most successful season in 13 years. Finishing with a dual record of 11-5, the tankers took fourth place in the very tough MVC, and captured second in district competition. At the state meet, the tankers finished tenth, this being their best showing in ten years. Setting new records this year were senior Mike DeHaan and junior Jay Arntzen. DeHaan set two new marks in the 50- and 100-freestyle events and Arntzen in the 200- and 500-freestyle. DeHaan was also voted most valuable swimmer, along with being named team captain, and junior Jeff Nechanicky was tagged as being the most improved swimmer.

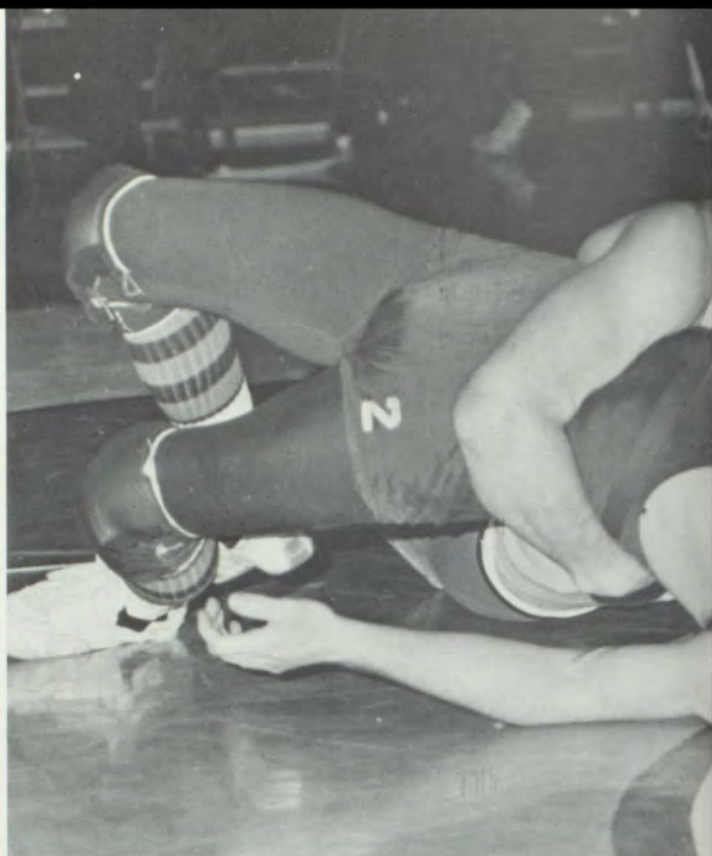

BOYS SWIMMING Front row: Chris Sliger, Jamie Arntzen, (mascot), Randy Sconyers. Second row: Dave Brouard, Tim Ilten, Jack Meier, Jeff Crandall, Scott Turkel, Mike Burnside, Phil Wisely, Brad Crandall, Jeff Slocum, Scott Leiding. Third row: Coach Doug DeSmidt, John Becker, Lee Novak, Mike Jenson, Terry Holub, Steve Murray, Mike DeHaan, Jay Arntzen, Brian Reeves, Jamie Hobson, Rick Sasek, Steve Tanner, Ed Simon, Dave Dankert. Back row: Coach Les Santee, Eric Petersen, Loren Becker, Stu Nechanicky, Randy Olson, Keith West, Greg Lien, Jeff Nechanicky, Brian Steffen, Paul Robinson, Brian Holmes, Rick Hobson, Brian Janey, Rick Eggers, Coach Jim Taylor.

To help improve his time, sophomore Steve Murray sacrifices his hair in preparation for the state meet.

Junior Jay Arntzen proves that good starts are necessary to obtain an early lead.

Unbelievable is the word that best describes Jefferson's fourth place finish at the state wrestling meet in Des Moines. With only three J-Hawks advancing from a tough district field and qualifying for the state final, the chances of finishing in the top ten were slight. But with fine performances by Bob Gallagher (fifth at 105) and Dave Edmunds (fourth at 155), teamed with a state championship by Jerry Johnson at 112, the J-Hawk grapplers, despite a 6-5 dual meet record, the worst in the school's history, finished an unbelievable fourth in the state. Jerry avenged an earlier loss to Jeff Knight of Clinton with a 3-2 decision in the finals to claim the coveted state championship. Jerry summed up the season, "We were too much of an up and down team. We just couldn't get a consistent effort going."

Senior Ab Igram spins out of his opponent's grasp during the dual loss to Prairie.

With a fierce look of determination, junior Jay Knox tries to get out of his aggressor's hold.

Senior Jerry Johnson displays his aggressive style that earned him a state championship.

Awaiting an aggressive move from his opponent, senior Tim Jones stands ready for a takedown.

Although the varsity wrestlers didn't enjoy the success of past teams, the season did not go without its highlights. Victories over Kennedy (35-13), class 1A champion Lisbon, and a near upset victory over Mississippi Valley Conference champs Bettendorf were the bright spots of the dual meet campaign. Many spectacular individual performers were turned in by the grapplers including Bob Gallagher's upset win over Bob Burns in the Washington meet and Dave Edmunds pinning a Bettendorf opponent at the state meet, thus avenging an earlier loss. And, of course, Jerry Johnson's championship match. The JV and sophomore squads sported identical 10-1 records with both losses at the hands of Bettendorf. Perry Harris (16-0) and Randy Dostal (15-2) provided the sparks for the sophomore matmen.

Hoping for a takedown, junior Jerry Jordan makes a grab for his opponent.

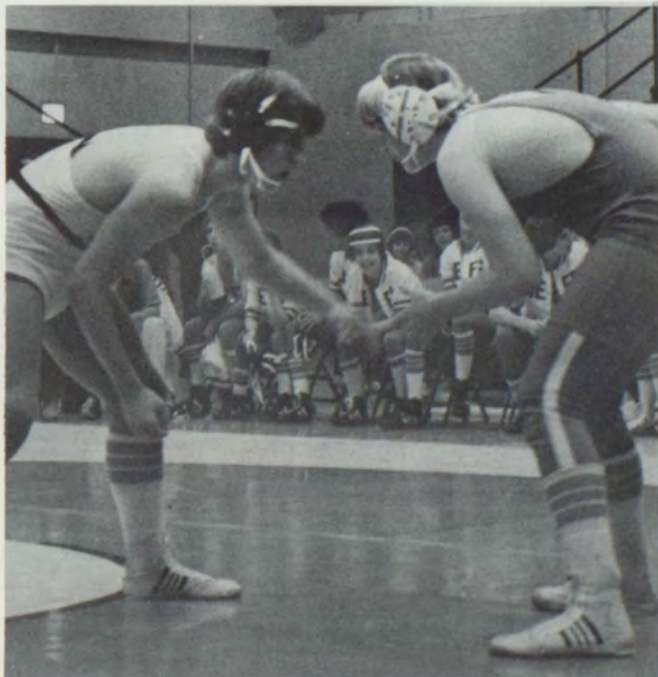

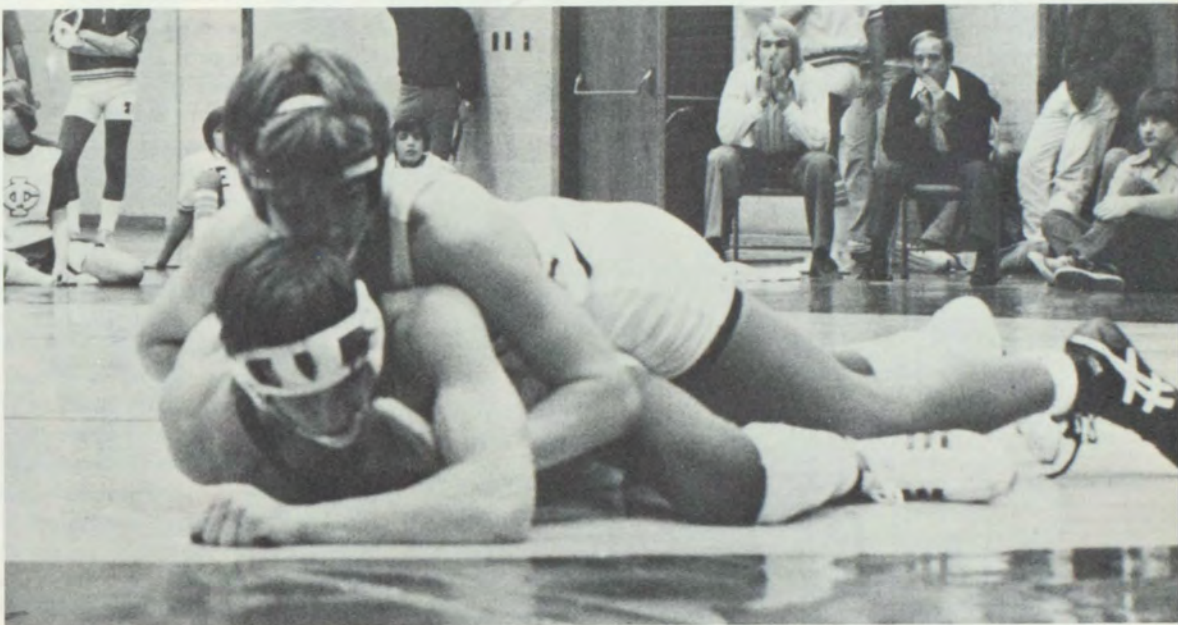

Two decades of J-Hawk wrestling have passed and the school claims three state championships, ended in the runner-up position three times, and finished among the top ten teams sixteen years. In twenty years, the varsity matmen have compiled a 201-39-5 dual meet record that cannot be matched. The JV record is 186-31-2 while sophomore teams are 114-13-4 after 14 years. The varsity grapplers have been crowned conference champion nine times and runner up seven times, along with achieving seven district titles and eight runner-up trophies. The J-Hawks can truly claim superiority on the mat. Seniors Jerry Johnson and Bob Gallagher were named co-captains for the 1977 wrestling squad. Jerry, Jeff's fifteenth state champion, was also named most valuable and takedown champion. Dave Edmunds was voted most improved and Rick Beachler received the hustler award. The outstanding sophomore wrestler award was presented to Perry Harris.

To help relieve the tension before the upcoming meet, varsity wrestlers gather to tell a few good jokes.

Participating in the Kennedy quad, senior Rick Beachler dominates his Little Hawk opponent.

Gazing into the eyes of his rival, sophomore Trevor Tharp prepares to make his next move.

State competitor Dave Edmunds unleashes his aggression toward his rival.

Attempting to add two points on the board, senior Robin Smittkamp makes a driving layup against a Regis opponent.

Goals are made to be broken and that's just what this year's girls basketball team has accomplished. Starting off with one of the many team goals predicted to be attained, the roundballers captured a respectable third in the Metro Tournaments. When regular season action began, the girls religiously attended the long, hard practices in order to make this their best season yet. Playing a teeter-tottering season, the female cagers triumphantly broke another of their team goals by putting their wins in double figures with a season of 11-13. The second of the three goals was so close yet so far away for these eager players; a season of .500 which was touched, but never attained. A highlight of the year was the team's overtime win of 72-69 over Regis. Complimenting this overtime victory was the most sought after dream in the history of basketball here at Jeff to beat LaSalle. That dream came true as the J-Hawks put an end to LaSalle's season with a 58-52 victory during first round action of sectionals.

Win, place, show are three familiar expressions this year's female cagers, both sophomore and varsity, achieved. The sophs learned a valuable lesson early—what it's like to participate in a high school sport. They learned the importance of winning, the difficulty of placing in a tournament, and showing themselves they had the ability to participate on the high school level. Sure they found it tough, but it's all worth it in the end, because at the annual banquet, sophomores Cindy Wemndt and Lori Lewis were chosen honorary co-captains. Cindy was also chosen most outstanding offensive player and Annette Feaker was chosen outstanding defensive player. Outstanding would also describe the varsity girls who surpassed their third team goal; to win in the sectionals, place higher than their third place of last year which they did with a second, and to show themselves that winning is possible with the right mental attitude. Personal goals may have been broken when seniors Robin Smittkamp and Wendy Baird were chosen captains and senior Teresa Langguth and junior Tracy Trosky were named most outstanding offensive and defensive players.

With a simple flick of the wrist, sophomore defensive player Lee Ann Duffield fires the ball to an offensive teammate.

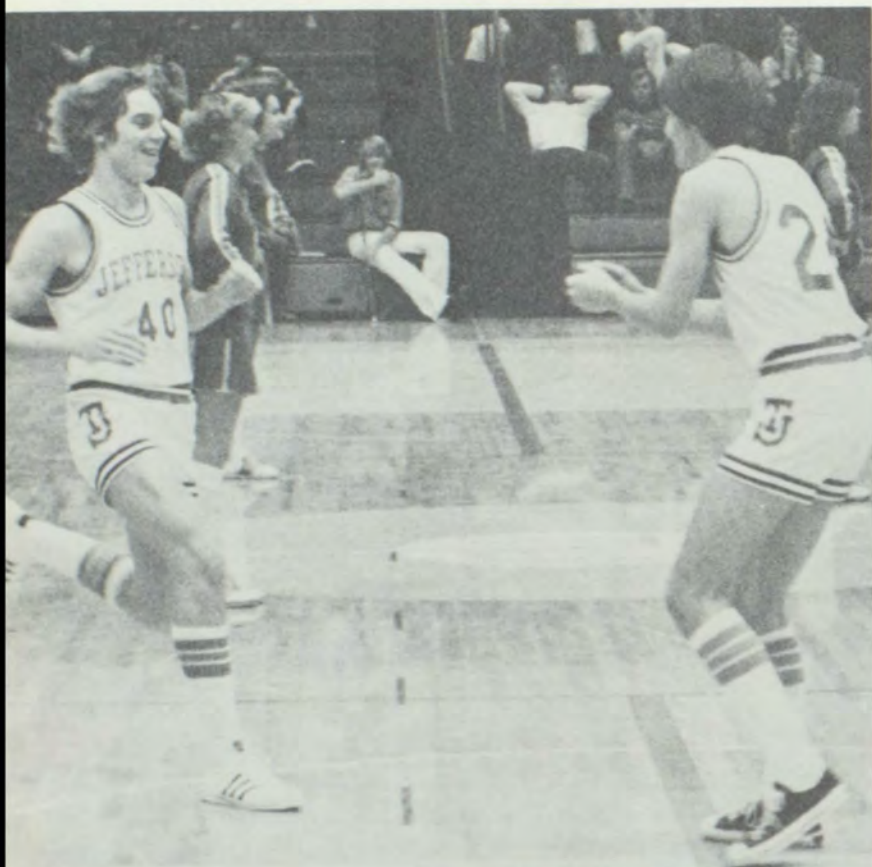

During a time out, the varsity defense gets some helpful advise from Coach Campbell.

Eyeing another important rebound, junior Ed Uthoff and senior Dave Koolbeck move for position to block out their opponents from Bettendorf.

Depth is the word that best describes the 1977 version of the J-Hawk boys varsity basketball team. The cagers boasted nine to ten players who could play without hurting the team's performance. As Coach Colin Williams described the squad, "If one of the top eight or nine was out, it made us a weaker team." But even with its depth, the team didn't play up to its full potential. After a horrid 1-6 start before Christmas break, the team regrouped to capture 7 victories against 4 defeats in the remainder of the regular season. Highlights of the season included victories over the team that finished second in the state tournament, Dubuque Senior. The sophomore team began the year by thrashing Burlington and showed promise for a good year. But lack of height proved to be its downfall as the team finished the season with a 6-12 record.

Guard Mike Kenney uses a pick by Doug Barnes to drive around his opponent in a victory against Dubuque Senior.

Senior forward Ted Boyer leaps high in an unsuccessful attempt to block a Warrior opponent's shot.

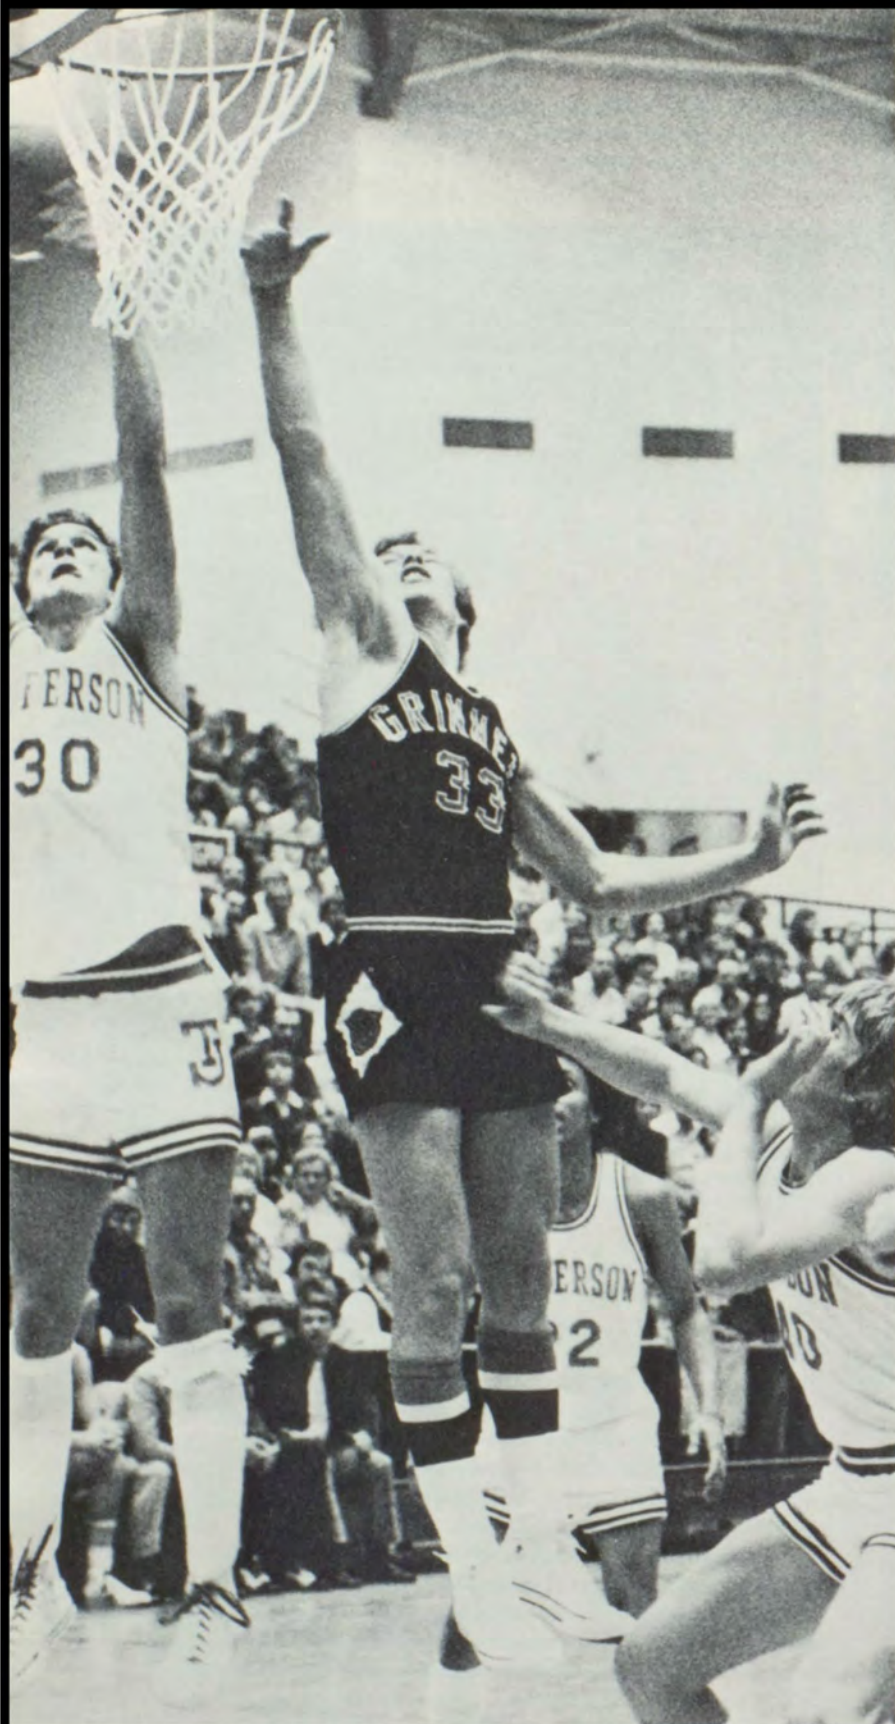

Sophomore center Rick Zahn jumps high attempting to tip the ball to onlooking teammates.

Junior post man Mark Witting tries to outmaneuver a Dubuque opponent in a thrilling early season victory.

Junior center Ed Uthoff and senior forwards Doug Barnes and Dave Koolbeck show looks of disgust as a call goes against them at Marshalltown.

'If we can get by Marshalltown, we should be playing in Des Moines on March 16." These feelings were stated by the varsity coaching staff. Most fans agreed, but after a fairly disappointing regular season even the most loyal J-Hawk fans weren't counting on anything great happening for the cagers in district competition. But the team was confident and Coach Williams echoed their feelings, "We will be prepared." And prepared they were as they travelled down to the Roundhouse to play the highly rated Marshalltown Bobcats on their home floor. The J-Hawks not only beat the Bobcats but won very convincingly, 77-67. Everyone was packing up and getting ready for a trip to Des Moines. The highflying J-Hawks then faced the Grinnell Tigers in second round competition. And, as in the regular season, the team suffered from a lack of consistency and were shot down by a lesser Grinnell team, 75-66, crushing their hopes to reach the state tournament in Des Moines.

Senior forward Ted Boyer leaps high to snare a rebound in tournament play with Grinnell.

Most valuable player Mike Kenney finds himself open for a shot in the midst of four Iowa City West Trojans.

Senior Doug Barnes demonstrates his offensive ability both inside and outside as he scores over two opponents.

Highlighting the post season honors was Mike Kenney, who was elected co-captain before the season began, led the team in quarters played (80), free throws made (54), free throw percentage (.783), and assists (123). He also broke the career assist record previously held by Larry Lawrence with 187. At the end of the year awards banquet, Kenney was elected most valuable player. Other awards went to Doug Barnes, best defensive player and co-captain, and Ed Uthoff was elected most improved player. The sophomore team was led by leading scorer and most valuable player Tim Schneekloth. Other awards were captured by Al Bruns, most improved player, and Rick Zahn, most hustle in practice. In a surprise move, Coach Williams resigned his varsity post at the season's end.

Concentration marks the face of sophomore Scott Ewert as he contemplates a crucial free throw.

With a determined look, senior Kim Weber follows through on her flying eagle.

Quality but not quantity was the keynote for the small but talented 1977 girls gymnastics team. Sporting a nucleus of four returning letter winners and five other underclassmen, the nimble nine boasted a 10-4 final record and a 5th place finish in the Mississippi Valley Conference. "The squad of '77 was smaller compared to past years, because the trampoline is no longer used in competition. For this reason some of the girls just didn't go out, because that was their special event," commented Coach Tom Novak. Despite their limited numbers, the girls posted dual meet victories over Regis, Marion, Linn-Mar, Prairie, Clear Creek, and Tipton but three of their four losses came at the hands of cross-town rival Kennedy. The girls started the season with only four letter winners including seniors Kim Weber and Paula Ament, junior Staci Pazdernik, and sophomore Michele Oslac, but finished with four more girls earning letters and valuable experience for next year's team.

Sophomore standout Michelle Oslac executes a leap as one of her moves on the balance beam.

Striding for a high mark on the beam, junior Staci Pazdernik displays her gracefulness and poise.

After winning the conference high jump, junior Randy Overturf leaps for joy.

With consistent scoring by an excellent senior class, the J-Hawk cinder season turned out to be a fine one. The trackers went through the spring without losing a dual meet and showed well at both the MVC indoor (4th) and Fairfield Relays (2nd). The team's most consistent scoring came once again from its mile relay, as the quartet of Randy Bouzek, Greg Clauson, Ed Kotaska, and Randy Shaver ran 3:24.3 and finished fifth at the Drake Relays. Kevin Tomasek, who tied the school record in the pole vault with a leap of fourteen feet, and Mike Carson, shot-put and high hurdles, also contributed to the team totals. But the seniors weren't the only scorers as juniors Randy Overturf (high jump) and Gregg Trosky (relays) came through with some needed punch. When the state meet rolled around two individuals, Tomasek (pole vault) and Shaver (open 440), qualified for the state meet.

After all the long hours of practice, team members are captured in the heat of their specialties. Renee Moody, Robyn Steinburg, and Dee Rexroat display different moves from start to finish.

Boasting the first undefeated season in dual meets, and depth at almost every position, the girls track team had its best season ever as they re-wrote seven school records before the season had ended. Five events qualified for state competition with sophomore Julie Nowlan at one time having the best time in the state in the 880 and the second best time in the mile. The remaining qualifiers for state, the shuttle hurdle relay, the distance medley, and senior Heidi Pusateri in the 220 hurdles, also put their names in the school record book. Heidi also set the school mark in the 100 meter hurdles as did junior Jeanne Johnson in the 440, junior Tracy Trosky in the softball throw, and the two-mile relay team. "This is the strongest team we've ever had. They are a hard working team and they have a lot of team support for each other," praised Coach Larry Nolting. "Girls track had a good season and I expect a better season next year, despite no support," commented Jeanne Johnson.

Sophomore standout Julie Nowlan increases her lead as she heads into the home stretch of the 880-yard run.

During a home meet at Kingston Stadium, junior Teri Uthe concentrates as she starts her approach to throw the discus.

Mike Ilten, number two man, tees off on the first hole of another practice round.

Senior Becky Strigel looks on to see the results of her chip shot at Ellis Park.

Unexpected surprises and consistency proved to be the key to success for the boys golf team as they ended their season with a 5-1 dual mark. They also advanced into district competition where they finished fifth. Senior Randy Johnson gained the spotlight this year, being named medalist in three meets and becoming co-medalist in both the Metro and sectional tournaments. Also, steady play from two year letterman Mike Ilten and junior Jim Meyers, along with sophomore surprise Dave Rexroat, provided needed strength in post season play. All in all, Coach Colin Williams was pleased with this year's squad. "I was expecting a season around the .500 mark, so naturally I'm pleased with the outcome of our year." The female linkspersons, under first year Coach Ron Tower, achieved only moderate success finishing with a 9-7 record. Senior Sue Frazier paved the way for this year's squad and the consistent play from Kayla Klingman and Becky Strigel helped strengthen the team immensely. "I believe we did well this year," commented Coach Tower.

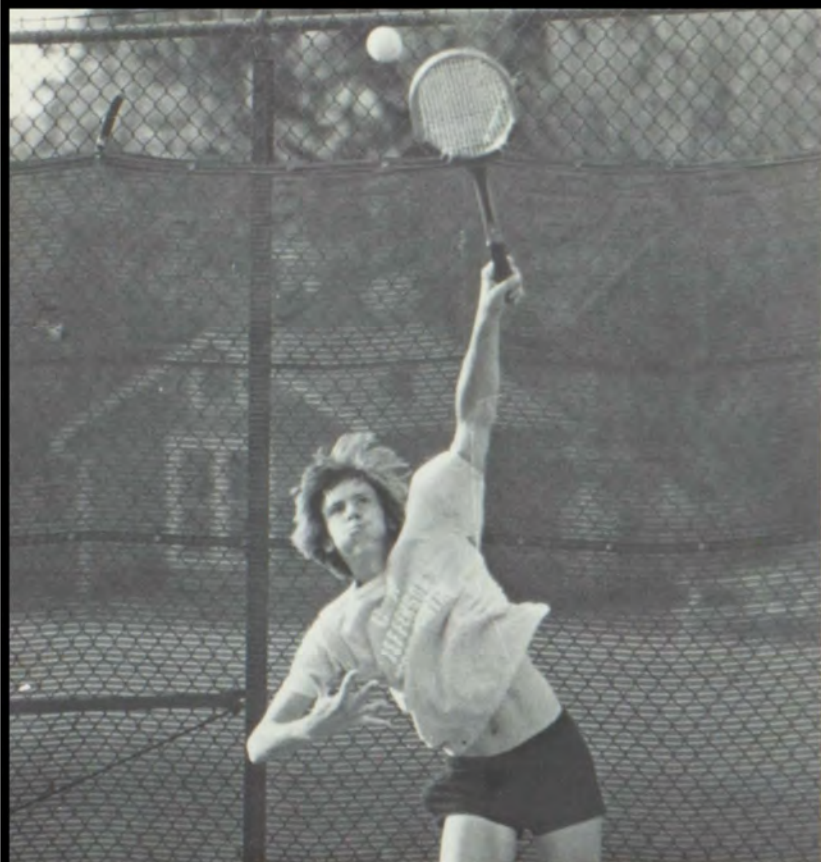

Waiting to tee off, seniors Kayla Klingman and Sue Frazier discuss their club selections.

With a look of concentration, medalist Randy Johnson lines up a birdie putt.

Entering the season with a young, untested squad, the boys tennis team improved from a 5-11 dual meet record, to a 7-5 dual record in 1977. Led by two junior-sophomore brother combinations, Mike and Tim Schneekloth and Jeff and Doug Wenzel, the male netters finished in fifth place in the Mississippi Valley Conference meet. Doug Wenzel won the number 5 singles championship and teamed with Tim Schneekloth to place second in number 2 doubles competition during conference competition. Junior Mike Schneekloth played number 1 singles, followed by senior Dave Boie, sophomores Tim Schneekloth and Doug Wenzel at third and fourth respectively, Dave Schrock, junior, at fifth singles, and senior Dave Sweet rounded out the top six positions. "Five of the top six players are underclassmen, so the future looks bright," commented Coach Ron Capps.

Netters Brad Collins and Dave Boie show contrasting styles during practice.

Gritting his teeth, sophomore Doug Wenzel reaches back for a powerful serve.

Holding down the first and third singles spots were junior Mike Schneekloth and his brother Tim.

With poise and concentration, senior Jill Hood keeps a close eye on the ball before her forehand shot.

Returning four letterwinners with valuable experience, the girls tennis team enjoyed its most productive season evidenced by its 11-2 dual meet record, the two losses being at the hands of Washington. Seniors Sue Jorgensen and Jill Hood held down the number one and two singles positions while juniors Lynn Schreder, Becky Fitzpatrick, and Cheryl Ehrenberger, along with sophomore Donna Quijano, battled for the remaining spots. The girls posted the best record in the school's 20-year history despite the low finish in the Mississippi Valley Conference Tournament. Best records include Sue Jorgensen at 12-4 and Lynn Schreder at 11-6. The number three doubles team consisting of Cheryl Ehrenberger and Donna Quijano also finished high with a 10-4 record.

Connecting with the ball, junior Becky Fitzpatrick fires another ace to her opponent.

Catcher Steve Wieland displays his hitting technique during the 13-3 victory over Williamsburg.

Relaxing on the bench between innings, players joke around while Mike Azinger awaits another turn at bat.

With only one letterwinner leading the 1977 version of the J-Hawk varsity baseball team, inexperience hurt the squad and caused several close defeats early in the season. Senior Dave Wise, the lone letterwinner, continued his all-state winning ways from his junior year. The pitching chores were handled by Wise, and seniors Mike Azinger, Tim Wilford, and Steve Lillard. Coach Vern Bredeson relied heavily on upperclassmen to provide the backbone for his team. As the season wore on, the quality of play improved, causing a satisfied feeling among teammates. With the spring season shortened, the team had to play six games at times in one week, which was an obvious disadvantage. New dugouts were built for the varsity diamond and were painted a dark green which brightened up the field. The dugouts also added an air of professionalism, according to Mr. Bredeson.

With the rising of the curtain before "Rags to Riches" until the finale of "Mack and Mabel", fine arts students were faced with the task of upholding their No. 1 tradition of producing near-professional plays and concerts. Whether they were painting flats until the midnight hour, practicing a difficult number for the upcoming band concert, or striking a set after the show's finale, these performers soon found that perfection takes stamina to achieve. From Orchestra to Concert Choir, students who desired an outlet to express their individuality found it waiting for them in the fine arts department.

To escape wicked Betty Stark's whip, Anne Christensen hides behind Luann Astor.

'Rags to Riches', a musical melodrama, was the Children's Theatre production that played primarily to packed audiences of elementary and junior high students in October. The play featured an introduction by the ever popular Playtime Poppy who was portrayed alternately by seniors Steve Van Steenhuyse and Mike Coombs. Depicting the familiar theme of good triumphing over evil, the show's main characters were Ragged Dick (Tom Gorsuch) and a match boy (Ann Christensen). These two set out to escape the clutches of the crafty Mickey Maguire (Rick Dawson) and wicked Mother Watson (Betty Stark) and eventually find help from the kind Mr. Grayson (Steve Campbell) and beautiful Ida Grayson (Barb Kepler). Other characters included in the show were Mrs. Flannigan (Luann Astor) and the policeman (Kurt Diers). Alan Henkel and Judy Carbaugh sang and danced in their popular roles as masters of ceremonies.

Officer Kurt Diers returns Steve Campbell's stolen money while holding the scoundrel, Rick Dawson, at bay.

With Christmas approaching, shoppers pause on a street corner to carol.

Dancers Alan Henkel and Judy Carbaugh signal the audience to cheer for their hero, Tom Gorsuch.

Junior Mike King serves tea and crumpets to seniors Barb Kepler and Tom Gorsuch.

After a successful show, Playtime Poppy signs autographs and chats with his eager fans.

Melanie Baughman reacts in disbelief to Steve Van Steenhuyse's incriminating remark.

Fulfilling a dream, Judy Carbaugh performs "Fan the Flame."

Much to his dismay, Steve realizes that his nagging wife, Suzie Gaumon, is the belly dancer in his playboy dream.

Even while facing execution in this dream sequence, Steve is able to strike this courageous pose.

Walter's nagging wife drives him to a bar where he meets a girl who is so charming he plans to run away with her. No, this is not a soap opera plot, but rather the amusing story line behind the fall play, "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty." This musical comedy, based on the classic story by James Thurber, was set in present day times and featured a fantasy world dreamer, Walter Mitty (Steve VanSteenhuysen), who hoped someday he would become rich and famous. The bar girl (Judy Carbaugh) convinces Walter he should leave his wife Agnes (Suzie Gaumon) when they meet Fred (Al Henkel), an old friend of Walter's who is everything Walter ever dreamed of becoming. However, Walter decides to stay with his wife because of his love for his daughter, Pinina (Ann Christensen), who is the only person close to him. Other leading characters in the show included Irving, a health nut (Tom Gorsuch); Harry, the bartender (Joe Sherman); and a bar girl (Joni Nechanicky).

"Hello, I Love You, Good Bye" sings playboy Al Henkel as Joe Sherman listens for helpful advice.

Ron Hruby listens while his father, Arbe Bareis, criticizes Tina Mollenhauer as a choice for his wife.

Megan registers a look of disbelief over Ron's dancing style in "The Clumsy Waltz."

Satiristically twisting around the idea behind the incidents in the story of Cinderella and making her three sisters portray heroines was the masterplot of this year's mixed chorus winter musical entitled, "The Truth About Cinderella." Heading the cast as Cinderella, the Prince, the King, and the Queen were Megan Ward, Ron Hruby, Arbe Bareis, and Vickie Isard respectively. Suzie Gaumon, senior, acted as the sole student director for this musical. She took charge of all of the planning and handled many of the rehearsals during Mr. Geuder's absence in February. This musical was staged only one time this year instead of the traditional two times because of scheduling conflicts. Drops, which were designed, painted, and set in place by members of the chorus, were used for the background scenery in the 60-member musical. Mr. Allan Koepke, vocal music director, was the piano accompanist for the musical, which had a good audience turnout.

Chorus members anxiously await the start of the ball in order to find out who will become the prince's wife.

At Steve VanSteenhuyse and Jayne Hogan's wedding, herald Tom Gorsuch announces the upcoming palace ball.

Fairy Godmothers Maureen Monahan and Brenda Vander Weil confront Megan Ward with the virtues of good and evil.

Debby Joyner, Julie Kehm, Shirley Davis, and Lori Kaiser ask host Mike King to "spend a little time with me."

From the chaos of WW II rose an institution that provided a place for the weary soldier to forget his troubles, relax, sing, or find love. This institution became known as the Stage Door Canteen, which was revived by Thespian Troupe 561 for use as this year's Chili Dinner Theatre. Seniors Steve Campbell and Melanie Baughman directed the student written show. Four one-half hour performances presented old 40's favorites including the Andrews Sisters, Jerry Lewis, and the Buffalo Bills. Basing the script on these characters, the show included jokes, dances, and audience sing-alongs. The cast felt Stage Door Canteen was a success, financially as well as educationally. This year's Chili Dinner Theatre drew one of the biggest crowds in the last three years. Steve Campbell commented, "Stage Door Canteen taught the troupe how to put on a successful show without any adult supervision. Everyone knew what was expected of them and did their best."

Members of the Cedar Rapids Concert Chorale look on in amazement as Suzie Gaumon reaches a high note during their chicken number.

The Dimpled Darlings, Megan Ward, Kim Cross, Luann Astor, and Lori Fowler, strike a pose at the end of "Clover."

The Andrew sisters, Joan Pelisek, Cindi Lanz, and Dee Rexroat, belt out "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy."

Kim Cross helps weary soldier Gregg Penn to forget about the hardships of war.

All the men clamor to get a better view of Janice Jacobs.

Steve Campbell argues with Steve Van Steenhuyse over the amount of dower to accompany his daughter.

Todd Abney explains to zannies Tom Gorsuch and Rick Dawson what ails their masters.

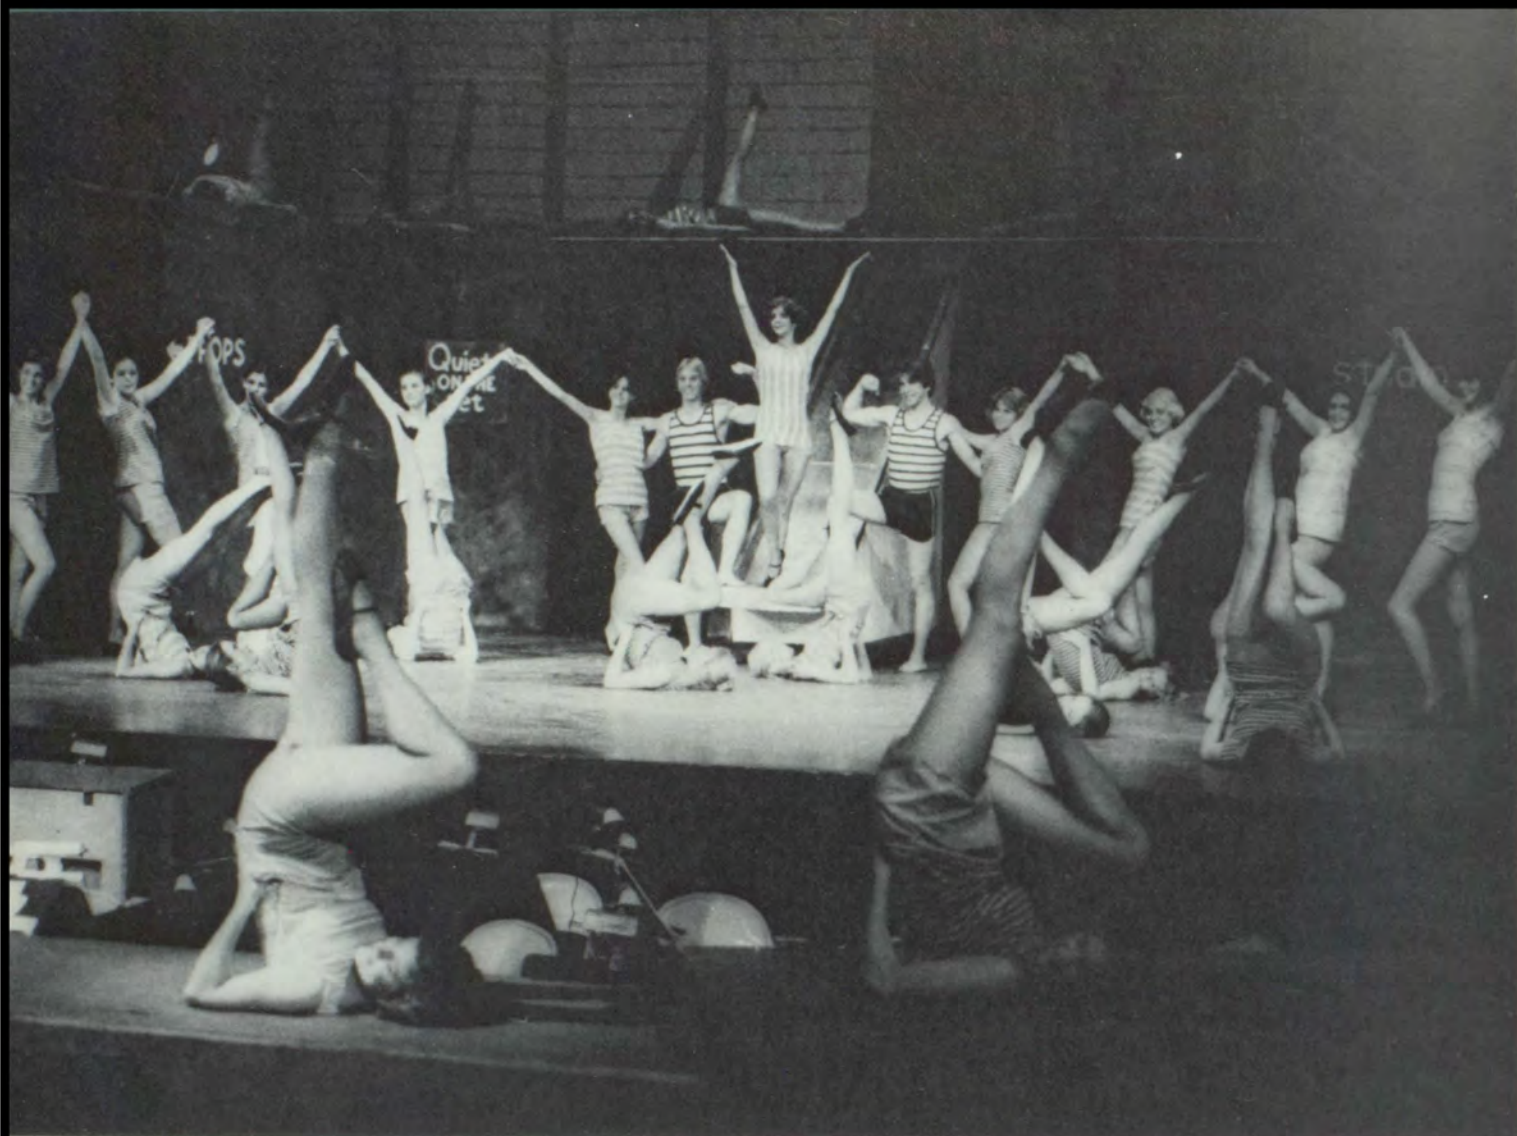

Slapstick comedy and a set that projected over five rows of seats highlighted this year's winter play, "A Gap In Generations." Written in the style of comedia del arte, it featured a company of roving actors who proceed to put on a show for the citizens of Bologna, Italy. Introducing scenes were the Maestro (Mike King) and his wife (Betty Stark). The plot revolves around old men desiring to be young, and young men desiring the power of their fathers. The old men, Pantalone and Tofano, played by Steve Van Steenhuyse and Steve Campbell, were unusual in that they wore masks along with Dr. Graziano (Todd Abney) to keep in the comedia style. The young lovers, Lelio (Kurt Diers) and Isabella (Barb Kepler), and Flavio (Joe Sherman) and Vittoria (Janice Jacobs), become entangled in a hilarious love scene when the two girls, dressed alike, get switched at a masked ball in the garden.

Suzie Gaumon reads a passage to Barb Kepler from a book on love.

Being introduced to the audience are young lovers Janice Jacobs and Joe Sherman.

Slapstick comedy was the highlight of the spring musical, "Mack and Mabel." Based on the life of silent movie director Mack Sennett and his leading lady Mabel Normand, the show featured bathing beauties, Keystone Kops, and pie throwing. The pie in the face publicity stunt saw Mayor Canney, Safety Commissioner Colton, and Police Chief Clift all getting hit with pies. Selected Jefferson faculty members and the two Cedar Rapids television crews were also "pied." Sennett (Steve VanSteenhuysen) found Mabel (Judy Carbough) while filming a scene with his two present stars, Ford (Walter Furman) and Polly (Joni Nechanicky). Mabel walks in with a sandwich ordered for Polly and a fight ensues to try to get rid of her, and she's discovered. The movie company expands to Hollywood with producer Kessel's (Mike Coombs) money and a crew consisting of Joe Sherman, Al Henkel, and Becky Readnour.

Mack Sennett (Steve Van Steenhuyse) reminisces about Mabel Normand, the girl he loves.

Keystone Studio's production of "Hundreds of Girls" featured the Sennett bathing beauties.

Mabel looks on as Richard (Joe Sherman) concentrates on finishing a new script with her as leading lady.

Mike Campbell as Charlie Chaplin expresses his feeling toward getting a pie in the face.

Jon Oyler and company sing a welcome home to Mable (Judy Carbaugh).

Pep band members provided music as well as excitement at fall pep assemblies.

The Symphonic band's medley of all-time favorites set a serious mood during the Christmas Concert.

Trombone players Todd Allison, Chuck Traylor, and Wayne Bulen follow their music closely.

Music plays an important part in everybody's life, but for some it means more than just listening to their favorite tunes. As early as 7:30 a.m., the sounds of music could be heard as the stage band practiced for upcoming performances or staged impromptu concerts on the porch. The combined concert and symphonic bands participated in the All-City Music Festival, staged a concert for the student body, performed at various junior high schools, and highlighted their year with a four day trip to Chicago. Many individuals took honors at the State Solo and Ensemble Music Contest. Probably the most heard band was the pep band, which added life to the otherwise nondescript pep assemblies, and helped fight the half-time blahs at home football and basketball games. They also postponed the beginning of classes by parading through the halls after fall pep assemblies. Junior Pam McKenzie commented, "The bands have not been quite up to par this year, but with a little extra effort they could be greatly improved."

In the stands, band members express varied reactions during the Jeff-Wash game.

Senior Debbie Nost prepares to lead the way down Third Avenue as Jeff's 1977 band festival queen.

Stepping high, baton twirlers prepare to lead the band in the festival parade.

Junior Wendy West tunes up before marching in the Eastern Iowa Band Festival.

Performing for an audience was a major goal of the J-Hawk marching band this year. Lead by senior drum major David Ellis, the band presented six half-time shows at football games. The marching J-Hawks were also entered in the marching contest at Tama, receiving a division III rating. Along with marching at football games the band also marched in the University of Iowa Homecoming parade. This was the first time in eleven years. During the spring the band also marched in the 31st Annual Eastern Iowa Band Festival. Representing Jefferson this year as band queen was senior Debbie Nost. After marching season was over, marching band split into the symphonic and concert bands. In February, the band sponsored the annual band carnival. The carnival consisted of several different games and activities. The Taft, Roosevelt, and Wilson Junior High bands performed in the gym along with Jefferson bands. The proceeds from the carnival were applied toward new uniforms.

Color guard members lead the band off the field after half-time of the Jeff-Kennedy game.

String members of the orchestra got the student body in the Christmas mood by playing carols in the foyer.

Rick Anderson waits for Jeff Wenzel to unload his suitcase, after the weekend trip to Chicago.

During the Hilltop Singers Christmas party, members watch Anita Lentz open her gift.

Two of the quieter, less known groups at Jefferson are the orchestra and Hilltop Singers. The orchestra performed in many concerts including a fall concert, a Christmas concert featuring chamber music, and a spring festival entitled "Music A La Mode". The orchestra also participated in the Mississippi Valley Orchestra Festival under the direction of Mr. John Hoffman. They also combined with the band and spent a memorable weekend in Chicago. The other group that is rarely heard of is the Hilltop Singers. After many long hours of practice, they performed in the Christmas Concert along with the vocal groups. This year Hilltop came up with a first at Jeff. They held their spring concert outdoors under the arcade along with the mixed chorus. But it was not all work for the vocalists. After a long year at school they packed up and took off for St. Louis, Missouri, in June.

The cello section concentrates on their entrance to a difficult piece during the fall concert.

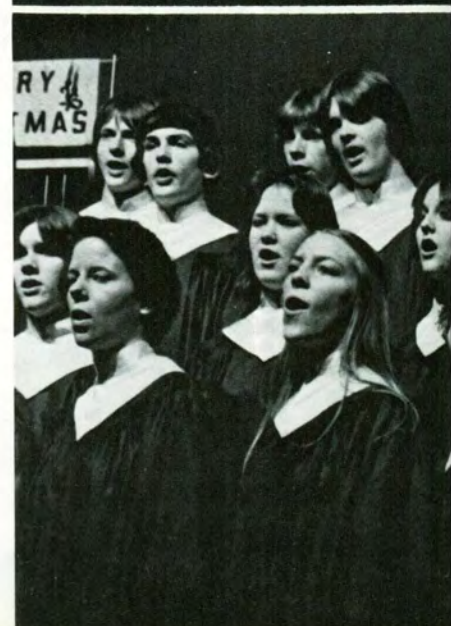

Hilltop members practice "Every Little Lamb Needs A Shepherd" for their spring concert.

Judy Carbaugh puts genuine feelings into her "Silent Night" solo.

Pondering over the problem of loading 93 suitcases for the east coast tour are Mike Coombs and Ken Scott.

Concert Choir members, directed by Mr. Allen Koepke, give a variety of concerts during the year.

Anticipation became a reality as the Concert Choir and West Side Delegation members started for their ten day tour of the east coast. Departing March 31 they gave concerts in Chicago, Detroit, Boston, and in Syracuse, New York. For a change of pace, members sometimes stayed in host's homes instead of church basements or in hotels. Besides making new friends they also made a name for the Jefferson Concert Choir by giving excellent performances. They finally started their vacation when they reached Boston. Members walked the Freedom Trail in the pouring rain and dined at a restaurant where they divided their time between delicious food and the view of Boston. Then on to New York City where they saw the productions "A Chorus Line" and "Fiddler on the Roof". They also enjoyed a free day of shopping and sight seeing. Tired and sore they boarded the buses for home.

Anxiously waiting to board the bus for the spring tour, Jody Doyle and Brenda Hummell find a comfortable spot.

Mike Bamsey and Todd Allison take pictures of the Chicago skyline while sight seeing.

In order to please a wide variety of audiences, West Side members must perfect a two part show.

'Give my regards to Broadway" re-sounded through the West Side Delegation as members saluted the songs and shows made popular on the Broadway stage. In addition to a taped orchestration background, this year a new feature was included. The use of props such as hats and parasols for a segment of "My Fair Lady", and tambourines in their closing number from "Fiddler On The Roof" added color, new choreography, and new problems. But late night rehearsals finally paid off as they played to enthusiastic audiences. The instrumentalists and technicians provided excitement with live music and a new lighting system to set the mood for various songs. This enthusiasm that was generated by the group can best be summed up in a statement from "Fiddler"—TO LIFE!

"Shout it down" sing Janice Jacobs and Dave Ellis during "Ode to Joy."

"Yeeeow" echoes through the audience as members strike their final pose following the "Oklahoma" medley.

During one of the many fall rehearsals, Sue Jorgensen and Mark Ockenfels concentrate on their choreography.

Instrumentalists perform "McArthur Park" between halves while members take a breather.

Classes

After their first, year at Jefferson was finally behind them, anxious sophomores were one step closer to the No. 1 spot of being seniors. All of the hassles and headaches that they had faced throughout the year would finally be directed toward the incoming classes. Juniors, with only one year remaining, were undecided if they were ready to make the jump to the head of the class. The realization that their high school years were rapidly flying by sparked mixed reactions from the underclassmen. Although there were many who were happy to have one more year completed, there were always those who didn't want to be reminded that their time as J-Hawks was limited.

SOPHS Class of '79

Ah . . . I've finally made it to high school! For many sophomores it seemed like a long boring summer, for others they were satisfied to romp in the warm August sun. But, in no time at all they snuggled into Jefferson's everyday life. For the sophomore football team it meant retaining the MVC championship, while the other fall teams also captured hard earned wins. Frustrations surfaced each registration day when sophomores were forced to settle for left-overs since they were always the last group to sign-up for classes. In the winter they found the temperatures inside just as cold as those outside. But, the coldness didn't keep those loyal sophomores from supporting the J-Hawks. It was in the early spring when they began to realize that they were going to be juniors next year and that they did play a vital part in showing "How The West Was #1."

Fired-up sophs do their part in arousing school spirit at one of the fall pep assemblies.

Recalling that first year at

Jeff as sophomores, and looking forward to those final senior activities, many juniors went through those ho-hum times of being just an in-between. Most class activities revolved around the 50-member junior senate, with president Lynn Schreder and vice-president Sue Burk guiding this group of involved students. They sponsored three successful mixers, two film festivals for the grade school children, and a Tupperware party. Other fund-raising projects included candy, button, and bake sales. The money raised will help pay for their senior prom and traditional class gift. "There are about fifteen people who seem to carry the load for the rest of the class; I think they should be commended," commented Mr. Ron Capps, class adviser. Finishing that middle year experience will lead to that much dreamed of senior year.

Juniors fire-up during a fall pep assembly in an attempt to win the coveted spirit stick.

Seniors

"We're No. 1! We're No. 1!" While looking back on their three years at Jefferson, all seniors remember this chant ringing through the stands at the first football game when they were sophomores. Although this wasn't always a reality, it was our constant goal to prove that the Class of '77 was the best. When graduation finally arrived, we realized that we were only a typical class, one that didn't do any more than any other graduating class. Upholding the tradition that "The West is No. 1" would now be the responsibility of the underclassmen. This dream that we had carried with us since we were sophomores was to be left behind with our friends and memories.

It's hard to believe that after 12 years of schooling the class of '77 is moving in separate directions. But as we leave, we'll always remember and cherish our three years as J-Hawks. No doubt we'll remember the good times as well as the bad. Last goodbyes were said as many friends parted who will probably never see each other again. And when graduation night finally came, all of us were in awe. We all had to realize that we were no longer runny-nosed kids living in an adult world. Now we were adults and expected to act as such. The restrictions were gone, and we were free to go where we pleased, whenever we pleased. The future became a cloudy, dark object that few were sure about. And no matter how fond the memories of the past seemed, we knew we must accept whatever the future may hold for us. And as we left, we realized that we all shared a unique experience. An experience that will never ever happen again.

'Friends '77'

Sue Jorgensen expresses her excitement to Brad Whiteman upon hearing her name announced as the winner of the treasured guest book.

From dancing to chatting, couples spent a memorable evening at the senior prom held at the Sheraton Inn.

Beautiful weather and a new location helped to make this year's prom one of the best. Instead of the IBEW Hall, which in year's past had housed the annual event, the Sheraton Inn was chosen by Senior Senate members. "The atmosphere was what made the evening for me," expressed senior Connie Neal. This included pictures which were taken near a marble bench surrounded by scenic palm trees. Because Sheraton employees did the decorating themselves with fountains and European pictures, seniors no longer had to come out and do it themselves. This eliminated the hassel that most other senior classes had to go through. The package deal also included punch, which was made and served by Sheraton Inn employees. The opinions were varied on "Source", the band chosen for the evening's dancing. Even so, everything seemed to come together for seniors that night. The theme "Friends" was a reality, meaning more at that time than ever before to the 100 couples in attendance.

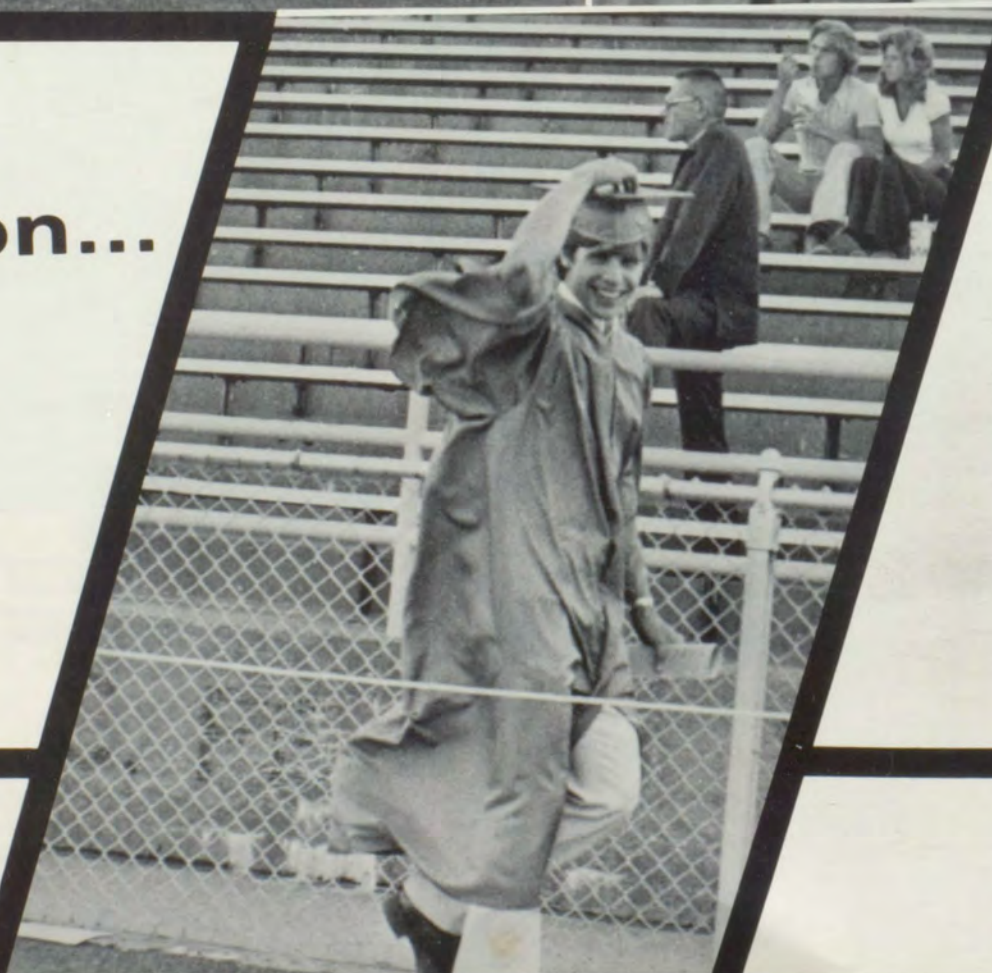

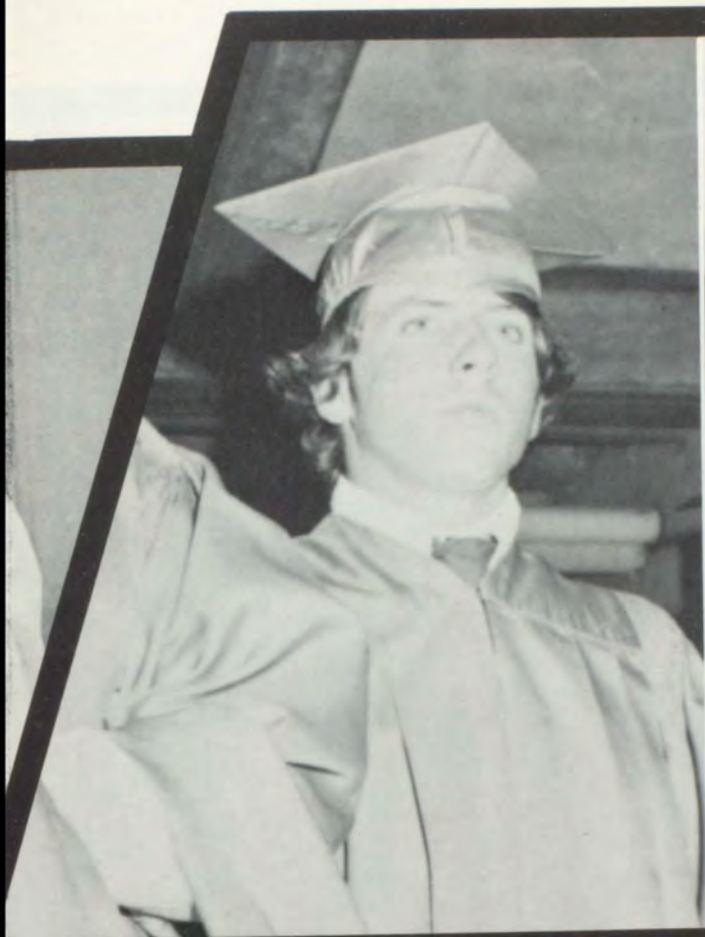

Fresh flowers provide a spring touch to all tables as couples gather to talk during the band's break.

Taking advantage of the punch, Rick Cole cools off after a fast dance.

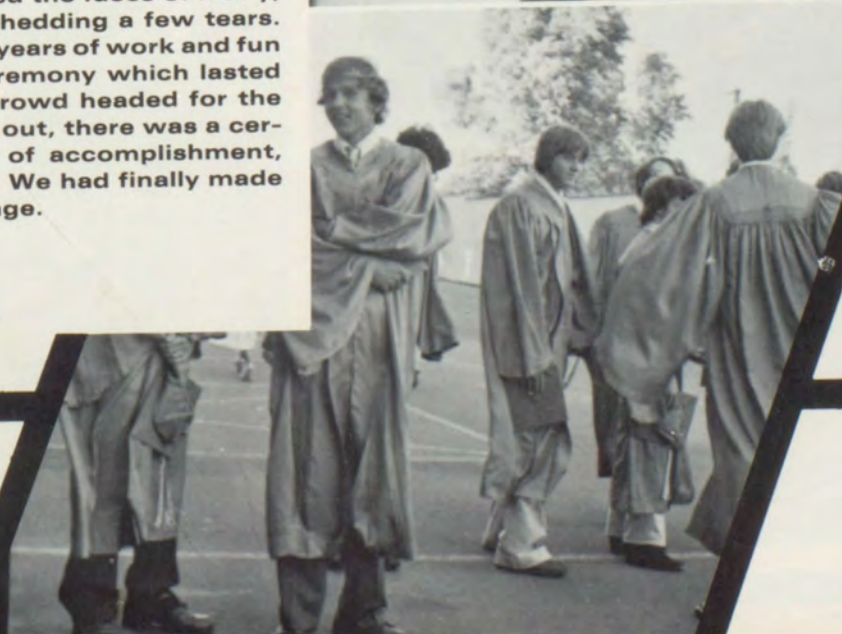

Graduation...

It was the end, yet only the beginning. For many graduation meant finally being out on their own, for others it meant college. It all began as sophomores, entering Jefferson for the very first time. Scared, excited, and feeling all grown up was what high school meant. When we were juniors, we pushed around the sophs and anticipated the becoming of seniors. And then there we were. Some 470 seniors marching toward the platform on that windy May evening. As the sun set, so did many memories. The football games, the endless rehearsals for plays, skipping classes, homework, and now graduation. As we walked from the platform, diplomas in hand, a silent smile or sigh of relief crossed the faces of many, while others were caught shedding a few tears. We had made it! Long, hard years of work and fun were all completed in a ceremony which lasted just over an hour. As the crowd headed for the exit gates and we marched out, there was a certain satisfaction, a feeling of accomplishment, that each of us held within. We had finally made it, we had finally come of age.

Just Seniors . . .

Awaiting...

While most students were anticipating their long awaited and much needed summer vacations, a few loyal, sentimental J-Hawks were seen shedding tears as we said our good-byes at the year's end. When the last day of classes finally rolled around we realized that, although nine months is a long time, the year had gone by quicker than we ever thought possible. Memories of the first football game, the Homecoming dance, and the hassles of fall term registration were still fresh in our minds. One consolation was that with the cooperation of all J-Hawks we were able to unite our talents to prove that the year really was a successful one. Our athletes, who started off the year by finishing second in the girls volleyball districts, then finishing the highest ever in boys swimming, besides setting numerous track records, were a major part of our success. "Mack and Mabel", the spring musical, drew a full house for all five of its performances. After witnessing these numerous triumphs, we could now walk away from Jefferson with our heads held high, proud that we had proven to all that Jefferson is definitely No. 1.

Memories...

times of the past, enjoying the present, and looking forward to the future, most students found that they had acquired many fond memories of their years at Jefferson. Sophomores won't forget the time they bought elevator tickets, just as few juniors will forget how slow their year-in-waiting passed as they stood by to move into the No. 1 spot. Seniors were often caught running around in circles during May as they rushed to complete assignments and finish all last minute graduation details. Many of them received numerous awards and honors for their achievements. Mark Logan and Paula Ament were designated as valedictorians, while Nancy Gardner was the salutatorian. Randy Shaver and Mike DeHaan were named male co-Athletes of the Year, and Teresa Langguth was recognized as the top female in this category. No one let the memories they had gathered during the year slip from their minds.

Knowing that I graduate in a week, I look back on my three years at Jefferson with mixed emotions. When I was a sophomore I participated in the sports end as well as the fine arts. One day a friend of mine persuaded me to put in an application to be on the yearbook staff. Knowing nothing about it, I applied. I was put into a class of seniors and I felt out of place so I took up photography. The photographers were always busy and I started to really get involved. When my senior year rolled around I applied to be the editor-in-chief of my 1977 STATESMAN. To my surprise, I made it. What a glory, what honor, or so I thought. After the work started to pile up I had my second thoughts. But after our proofs came back I saw how much all of our hard work had really paid off. Because of Mary Quijano and Betty Stark, our senior section was remodeled, for the better. The photography staff started off slow and ended up with a year that no other staff could outdo. When we had artwork to be done Brooke Kepros showed her talent by designing the cover, end sheets, and the artwork for the sports scoreboards. Having her mind stuck in the hundreds of pages of the index, Nola Schroeder did a great job. Then there was Sharon Tiernan with her pencil and paper ready for any job that was asked. The work led the staff to endless hours at Leonardo's and Oscar's. Little gatherings like this kept the staff close and helped to turn out one of the best books in the country. Again, thanks Mr. Smrha for your understanding and helpfulness and to the entire staff for a job well done. We've proved again, the West really is #1 — — — Todd Polehna
