

New decade brings many J-Hawk firsts

S dents grumbled when Jefferson opened its doors, earlier than usual, Thursday. August 23. Little did anybody know that 1980 would bring many more "firsts" to Jefferson.

For the first time, sophomores were not allowed to park in the parking lots, the volleyball team earned third place at state, and a spirited pep assembly was held by many students, without permission from the administration.

For sophomores, 1980 proved to be a trying one, especially on initiation and registration days.

For juniors, 1980 brought lots of homework and sleepless nights.
For seniors, 1980 was spent going to football and basketball games, rock concerts, graduation, parties, and signing senior pictures.

Yes, in 1980, there was a lot to look back upon, but even more to look forward to.

As the fall term ended and winter emerged, it was a time both for looking back and for looking ahead. Football and the caravans, fiery pep assemblies, and spirited fans which accompanied it were all a thing of the past. Homecoming was now history, and the volleyball team's trip to state was already tucked away deep in the minds of those who went.

All of these events were not forgotten, but instead. gave everyone many fond memories to look back upon.

Winter brought Friday night basketball games and wrestling meets which gave students something to do during the cold nights. And even though school spirit usually drops during the winter months, in 1980 school spirit retained the height it had attained during the fall.

Dances also broke the monotony of the long winter. and a welcome winter vacation combined with all of these things to prove that there was still a lot to look forward to in the months ahead.

Timespass, J-Hawksmoveon

S only sunny weather and blue times they had shared together. skies, but also anticipation. An- Times which would never again ticipation of the soon approach- be quite the same, for never ing summer, of no longer being again would there be a year exa lowly sophomore, of moving up to a prestigious senior, and even of finally being out in the "real" world.
Only a short amount of time remained in the school year of 1980. And as this realization was made, students and teachactly like 1980.
But the many memories which 1980 brought gave everyone a lot to look back on, and the new horizons ahead gave even more to look forward to as students anticipated summer vacation.

Students S

 tudent life-just what was it like at Jefferson? While each person had his or her own way of making the most of that precious free time, several events brought students together and created many memorable occasions.The end of August also brought the end of summer fun. All those days on the beaches of McBride, and nights around the beverage container at Sandy Beach, finally came to a halt. Sleeping in late and just plain taking it easy were also brought to an abrupt end.

The return to classes in the fall also brought a return of several social events which served to bring many students together. Football games were the "place to be" on Friday nights, and the excitement of Homecoming caught most of the students in its grip. Pep assemblies also spiced up the everyday routine of classes. The Goon Squad made its presence known. and several skits added variety to the assemblies. Spirit days gave students a chance to rally behind their teams as J-Hawk enthusiam hit many people.
especially the new sophomores.
Winter saw a gradual decrease in school spirit. but for those students who continued to support their school. they had frequent opportunities at basketball games and wrestling meets. Mixers gave students an added opportunity to socialize. However, most students had a lot of practice and became pretty good at creating their own fun.

Spring fever hit hard, and with such activities as WPA week, prom. and graduation. students saw the year come quickly to an end.

Student life seems to be what high school is all about. Sophomores began to experience what high school was really like, and juniors enjoyed their middle year while looking ahead to the time they would rule the school. For the seniors, it was a special year, a chance to demonstrate their authority and make the most of their last year of high school. But for every student. there was a lot to look back on and more to look forward to.

Warm breezes create fun

Long awaited and gone too fast are phrases that describe those glorious spring and summer months. As the sun shined down warm and the days grew longer, every J-Hawk knew it was time to head outside.

Fun in the sun could be found at lunchtime, after school, and sometimes during class, as skipping became more and more of a temptation.
On the first nice days of spring. Ellis, Jones, and other area parks were crowded by people looking for fun. ready to abandon all cares of school and work.

After school was out, some students experienced working full time hours for the first time on their summer jobs. It was time for graduates to arrange their lives, and make definite plans for the future.

Friends kept in touch, though out of school, and had good times in the hot, lazy days, and the warm, dreamy nights.

Not only did students hit the great out-of-doors, but it became more common to head out of town. Lake McBride was popular for catching the rays, but any sunny spot would do.

Students enjoy the warm weather as they relax outside during the noon break.

Sandy Beach was frequented on the weekends by many party-goers who carried on under starry skies until morning.
Other summertime activities included softball and baseball games, camping out, hot games of Frisbee, and, of course, the drive-in.
Whatever J-Hawks did during those warm months of ' 80 , they were constantly building memories. Memories of carefree days when there was all the time in the world to build futures, while anticipating what would come next. Remaining summers were numbered, and the precious few left were well spent.

The arrival of spring with its warmer temperatures gives rise to one of Michelle Hilton's favorite pasttimes-playing tennis.

Done in the spirit of fun, senior boys leave their mark on a sophomore in their spare time.

Seniors Lori Henkel and Chris Baker take a break from a summer journalism workshop at the University of lowa to play a fast game of backgammon.

Senior Jayne Etchingham and her date clown around for the camera while Sharon Waybill, Neil Frank, and Joni Carson move to the beat.

While taking a break on the sidelines, friends Margaret Hoy, Kristi Lighty, Wynetta Ballew, and Kim Smejkal watch the others dance.

Jam out and boogie down, dancin' fever is all around

his year school mixers proved to be the most popular spots on week-ends. Practically everyone found this to be a relaxing and fun way to get together with friends and possibly get the chance to dance with that "special" guy or gal. Mixers were most common after basketball games or wrestling meets, which helped boost attendance. Students were quite surprised at the number of dances held this year. Every group got their chance to sponsor a dance. All of the dances were discos, with the exception of Homecoming. W.P.A., and prom. DJ's from various radio stations supplied the music for these discos. Even a Jeff student, senior Rich Loeffler, got the chance to perform as the DJ for the mixer sponsored by Student Council.

Smiles say it all

s summer ended and students returned to school, many expressions could be found. These expressions ranged from surprise and boredom to anticipation as another school year began. Smiles were easy to be found as new friends were made and old acquaintances were reunited.
But quickly students were forced to realize that the 1979$\mathbf{8 0}$ school year would contain lots of hard work as well as fun. Of course, frowns and disappointment were to be found when things didn't work out just as planned.

Seniors were smiling as they counted the days until they could finally graduate and advance on, as sophomores and juniors were anxious to step up a grade when school reopened in the fall.

As the year came to a close, everyone had to stop and pause to smile as they not only remembered how much they had to look back on, but how much more they could look forward to in the months ahead.

From smiles to tears, these J-Hawks express their emotions in various ways. They are: (1) Craig Bendixsen. Dick Mulholland. (2) Kirk Campbell. (3) Jenny Upah, Eric Lofdahl. (4) Jim Taylor. (5) Jay Young. (6) Diann Henry. (7) Sue Vanek. (8) Patti Pealer. (9) Sue Luenberger, Ken Carlstedt, Cindy Postel. Tammy White, Marilyn Vest. Terri White, Wendy Hamilton. (10) Kim Smejkal. Tim Swore. ## Celebration sparks varying emotions omecoming 1979 came early this year when, on October 6, 25 senior girls were announced as queen candidates. As each girl was escorted to her seat by a senior football player, she received a long stemmed red rose. traditional to Homecomings in the past. Tears of joy and hugs of congratulations overflowed as each of the girls' names were announced.

Student Council again sponsored a bonfire, reminiscent of the 50 's. And even though October 19 was a chilly night, many loyal J-Hawks, including cheerleaders, coaches, athletes, spectators, and a newly formed pom-pon squad, showed up to boost school spirit for the Homecoming game against Ottumwa. The football team went on to win the game against the Bulldogs by a shutout score of 15-0.

Also sponsored by the Student Council was a Homecoming raffle, but as in past years, the game ball was not the prize. This year, to help boost enthusiasm in the project, a stereo was raffled off.

The Homecoming dance was held on October 21, with the theme of "I'll Never Love This Way Again.'

Excitement radiates from the face of Teresa Munn as she is escorted down the aisle by Jeff Wilson.

Excitement soars higher at half-time festivities

The Homecoming coronation was not characterized by the shining Corvettes which had been the practice in past years. Instead, because of reconstruction of the track at Kingston Stadium, the ten finalists were escorted to their places at center field on a white carpet rolled out especially for the occasion.

Student Council discussed several ways of escorting the 10 finalists to center field, including golf carts and a hand held chair, but walking on a white carpet was finally decided upon because of its simplicity. And, according to finalist Carrie Eggers, "Everything was very well organized and went fine."
As started last year, besides having an escort from each of the ten boys' sports. excluding football, there was also an escort representing fine arts.

Tension built as senior Vive Spanos was announced as Jefferson's 23rd Homecoming queen by the emcee. Mr. Robert Geuder. Last year's queen. Debbie Manthei, performed the crowning.

Although many people were disappointed that Corvettes could not be used this year, the problem was resolved and Homecoming again held its usual rosy glow of excitement.

Bonfire inspires spirit; assemblies ignite crowd

0ne of the best places to show support for a J-Hawk athletic team was the ever popular pep assembly. While some students looked at pep assemblies as a chance to miss class. others got very involved trying to show their class was the most spirited during spirit yells.
Some unusual events seen at pep assemblies included a skit poking fun at Homecoming, a cheer by male rahrahs, and visits by the coneheads, gorillas, and a mysterious pumpkin head. Also, the pom pon girls did several ## routines.

However, not all pep assemblies were the same. At the assembly for the Homecoming game, seniors were criticized for being too rowdy so they turned their backs on the rest of the crowd. Also, when an assembly wasn't scheduled for the football play-off game against Wash, many students decided to hold their own. Senior Vicki Loerch said, "As far as the authority goes, if the kids decide to rebel, no one can stop them."

Seniors protest against certain faculty members who claim they're too noisy by turning their backs to the rest of the student body.

Changes create new look

Ihe cafeteria wasn't found with the same old look when students returned to school in August. Approximately 40 tables were purchased by the administration over the summer. Although the tables changed the look of the cafeteria, some students complained that there wasn't enough room to walk around anymore. Senior Lori Vecerka said, "It's hard to get through them, but they're nice because you can put your books in the middle.
Other changes were made in the cafeteria, most of which were intended to benefit the students. A vending machine containing assorted juices was added as a continued emphasis was put upon nutrition. Also, a chef's salad was offered for the same price as a regular lunch. This salad, which students had talked about in previous years, proved popular. One change that didn't benefit the students was the increase in the price of a lunch. from fifty cents to fifty-five cents.
No matter what changed in the cafeteria, many things remained the same. The lunchroom still provided friends with a place to catch up on the latest gossip. Also, it remained a popular sales spot, as $t$-shirts, calendars, buttons, and many other items were sold by various groups during each half-hour "chow-down" period.

Two high spirited Jeff fans, sophomores Dean Miller and John Moses, show their spirit in an unusual way at a football game.

From pep assemblies to eating lunch with friends, students find various ways to break the monotony of attending classes.

Fans enjoy events

"H

ey. where's everybody going?"

"To the football game at Kingston; we play tonight!"
Wherever there are J-Hawks, there's fans!
In the fall it was the frequent football games, where the screaming fans' support took the team all the way to sectional competition. Bonfires also brought out the J-Hawks as they shouted their teams on to victory.

With the coming of winter and colder weather the activities were moved into the gym with the start of the J-Hawk basketball seasons. The gym was soon crowded with action packed games and the fans loved it. Record crowds appeared for the girls' games as they produced their finest season ever. Wrestling, swimming, and gymnastics also brought out the J-Hawk crowd.
"I like going to sporting events because it's a way to participate and represent our school without being direetly involved," stated sophomore Julie Schreder.

Wilbert watches parking lots fill as drivers park variety of vehicles

A variety of cars fill the parking lots daily, making it a hectic place both in the morning and after school.

W

 hether one drove to school in a Z28, '64 Volkswagon, or a Yamahopper, every vehicle in the Jefferson parking lot had one thing in common. It was "something to get'cha around." Quite a few J-Hawks did "get around" to parking in the lots as over 440 vehicles filled them every day.This year, for the first time in Jefferson's history, sophomores were not allowed to use the parking lots, in order to provide more parking in the lots and less on the streets. However, upperclassmen were a little upset when they found the supposedly more spacious parking lots surprisingly full when they arrived at 9:20 a.m.
Under the constant, careful surveillance of Mr. Wilbert Beckman, the two parking lots at Jeff provided J-Hawks with a place to keep their vehicles while they put in a day at school. Enduring rain, snow, and the cold, cold winters of lowa. Wilbert always made sure things were okay in the parking lot. Things usually were okay, except for such unpleasant incidents as stolen gas caps, slit tires, and other nice surprises to find at the end of the day.

This was Wilbert's sixth year of monitoring the parking lots. After retiring from the position of captain at the Cedar Rapids Fire Department, Wilbert came to Jefferson. He really enjoys his job, and finds it "a lot of laughs."

Now that the year is over, underclassmen can look forward to hunting for a parking place, buying parking stickers. and chatting with Wilbert while seniors can look back at these aspects of their years at Jefferson.

Crowd spirit leads squads to triumph

W hat does supporting your athletic teams, expressing yourself in pep assemblies, and standing for the fight song all have in common? J-Hawk spirit is your answer. Spirit was everywhere J-Hawks were in ' 80 !

Pep assemblies were a major outlet for J-Hawk spirit as each grade attempted to prove they had the most enthusiasm. Whenever the support of J-Hawks was needed for an event. however. the classes pulled together as J. Hawks to out yell the rival.

The familiar first notes of the fight song played by the band always brought the fans to their feet to clap and sing along. Crowded bleachers. coaches pep talks, and student body support boosted athletic teams to the heights of their goals.
Many groups and clubs around Jefferson helped with J-Hawk spirit. Student Council produced a supreme effort as they developed many skits and assembled spirit weeks to add to the overall enthusiasm of the school. Hat gangs and the Goon Squad were also formed.

Cheerleaders and pom pon girls express their true J.Hawk spirit: (1) Barb Nechanicky. Diann Henry. Paula Steele. Carrie Thomas. Chris Bender. (2) Pom pon girls. (3) Tracy Briney. Melody Lodge. (4) Sue Henkel. Chrys Rinderknecht. Kathy Delong. (5) Sara Gillund. (6) Football cheerleaders.

Bringing home the bacon

A o keep it many cases a job was the only answer . unfortunately.
With the opening of the Westdale Mall. getting a job wasn't as hard as it once was. But sometimes keeping that job was a little tougher. Junior Michelle Carter explained, "There are a lot of other things I'd rather do than work, but all those other things cost money.'

Some students benefited from the work experience program. Through the program students are able to receive school credit hours and get paid at the same time. For some it even meant gaining experience in a field they wanted to enter after graduation.

A few students found that working not only supplied that extra income, but it was also a way of keeping busy.

Even with the shrinking dollar, and the rising cost of entertainment, many students managed to work and still enjoy life on what they made at their jobs.

Junior Dan Haight pulls in a few extra bucks during the pre-Christmas rush by working at Chess King.

These events include a movie early in the week. grubby day. button day, dress-up day, and hat day. On Tuesday night. ## Girls ask favorite guys

I seemed to many of those attending this year's WPA dance that there was a renewed interest in this activity. There were more people at the dance than in past years, and an attendance record was set at the movie, "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band."

The spotlight was on the three kings. Damon Hardiman. Scott McEowen, and Tariq Baloch. Damon was not able to be at the crowning because of a track meet. His absence did not dampen the spirits of the crowd. however, and the climax of the evening retained enough excitement for the rest of the evening's enjoyment.

The sophomores got a taste of something truly unique that occurs annually here at Jefferson, and the juniors are almost old hands at this by now, especially with Scott McEowen making his second appearance as king.

Many fond memories were brought back for the seniors with Tariq's crowning for the third year in a row. and this year's WPA created even more moments to look back on in the years to come for those who were involved. As for the underclassmen, they have a tradition to uphold and look forward to.

The hostages in Iran prompted what seemed to be a welling tide of patriotism as the nation rallied around President Jimmy Carter.
lowa City drew nation wide attention as the lowa Civil Rights Commission found the city guilty of sex discrimination in its suspension of Linda Eaton for breast feeding her child in the fire house.

Finally, tens of thousands of Cubans found refuge in the state of Florida, much to some taxpayers' dismay, as Castro loosened his iron grip.

Prom adds excitement to senior year

As seniors are looking ahead and planning their futures, they're also looking back on their past school days. Memories are now becoming very precious to the seniors as the end of the year draws to a close.

As graduation got closer, every day there were fewer activities left for the seniors to look forward to, but the most important was senior prom. The prom marked the last time before graduation for the seniors to get together.

The prom will long be remembered in its pastel setting at the Sheraton. The band 'Cocoa' was well received by everyone. The theme was Longer by Dan Fogelburg. Approximately 320 people attended this year's senior prom.
Candids and posed photos were taken at the dance as a remembrance. Silk flowers of yellow, peach, and pale green decorated the tables and also served as keepsakes. The dance will long be remembered, as well as the post prom parties which lasted into the early morning hours, as a special event in their senior year.

Hitting the books  Here at Jefferson, there are a va-  sist of only the usual basics, such as riety of classes offered to the students. They are given the right to choose their own classes within limits. Requirements had to be fulfilled, and this year started a new trend for more requirements. Sophomores had to think about the extra 2.5 credits in social studies. There have also been suggestions made to go back to the basics. For instance, science classes concentrated more on the fundamentals this year.

No matter what classes you had. there was always that good ol homework. Somethimes it even meant staying home on the week-ends to get Monday's assignments done so you could pass the class. Seniors were trying to accumulate enough credits to graduate so they could receive their diplomas, while juniors were trying their best to catch up. Sophomores had to put forth the effort to make a dent into their many requirements. Many students felt it was hard to keep up their grades, and earn credits, but in the end it would be all worthwhile.

The classes at Jefferson didn't con-math. language arts, science, and social studies. Students did have a chance to take electives too. A variety of classes were offered so whatever one's interests were, there was a class awaiting them. They were given the chance to pick a class of their likingmusic, art, cooking, sewing, or one of the many others that were offered. Many students enjoyed these electives to break up the monotony of the day.
Electives didn't seem to be the same day after day. Students were given the chance to create masterpieces in art. or whip up a "chic" garment in sewing. In a foreign language a person could learn about a new culture and language, and maybe even try some European cooking. In these classes. they could use their creativity and be their own person.

After attending classes for a whole year, there are many memories to look back upon, whether it be knowledge that you gained or those precious moments with friends. These memories help prepare you for future events.

Making some plans

P reparing for the future is a challenge every high school student must work toward. Whether post high school plans included college, trade school, or a job, Jefferson offered a wide variety of courses to meet the needs of each individual in the student body.
For the college-bound student, ASP, chemistry, and physics were popular classes designed to prepare students for their continuation of education after high school.
Special trade skills, such as carpentry, electronics, and mechanics were just a few of the courses that were available for students interested in skilled craftmanship.
Classes were also offered to teach those students who wished to enter into the working world immediately after graduation. Some of these classes were shorthand, typing. and accounting. Record keeping was a popular elective for sophomores and juniors.
No matter what sort of educational opportunities the students needed. Jefferson's curriculum made it possible for everyone to adequately prepare themselves for the future.

Of the many courses offered to students in gym class, senior Dave Hewitt finds weight lifting is among his favorites.

Preparing the gym for the Homecoming assembly is just one important task undertaken in Student Council by senior Mary Beck.

Hitting the books becomes a routine

AIthough the curriculum did offer a large number of electives, every student had to take several required classes. These courses accumulated 97.5 credit hours toward graduation. As the school year progressed, many of the sophomores found themselves taking a variety of required classes such as People, Man, and Point in language arts, geometry, biology, and of course, gym.

One popular class that every student has taken, even though it isn't a required class, is drivers ed. For many students, this class was fundamental for future living.

Even as a senior, students were required to take American Government before they could graduate. Seniors in this course during the spring term were sure to work hard.

No matter what type of required class that students had, there was always the assurance of homework, and there seemed to be an abundance of it this year. Why? It seems that many teachers were going back to the traditional "nose in the book" teaching. This becomes especially hard during the spring term when it starts to get warm outside and students get impatient for that last day of school. In the case of seniors, it's the thought of graduation.

I

T.o meet the requirements for graduation from Jefferson High School, a student must earn a minimum of 202.5 credit hours. Some 107.5 hours are obtained from the required classes, while the remaining 95 hours are reached through the elective courses.

In Language Arts, 30 hours of work are required. Tenth graders must enroll in the required courses for grade 10 , while juniors and seniors have the choice of selecting one 5 hour class in each of these three catagories: literature, written communications, and either written or oral communications, to complete their requirement.

For math and science, 15 credit hours are the requirement. Five out of the 15 hours of science is to be taken in Fundamentals of Science.

All students must take 2.5 hours in P.E. each enrolled term. The only options are to waiver P.E. during one sport season, or have a medical excuse. Either way, a person must substitute the 2.5 hours in another course.

In addition, 15 hours in American Studies, 5 hours in Government, and the last 5 hours may be selected from the prescribed list for a total of $\mathbf{2 5}$ hours of Social Studies required to graduate.

In developing your educational plans, keep those two purposes in mind: to meet these requirements and to achieve the highest knowledge in each class to help you deal with later life, noted Mr. Joe Keeling, counselor.

Homework holds priority  A  t Jefferson, the choosing of classes is fairly liberal. There were those required classes, but for electives there were several from which to choose. Some subjects offered were art, music, and foreign languages.

If a person was a talented singer, he could get involved with either Hillop Singers, Mixed Chorus, Concert Choir, or Westside Delegation. If one liked instruments, there was always orchestra or band.
Classes were made available to students who liked art. There was a wide variety of these classes offered this year, including painting, crafts, and drawing.

If one wanted to learn another language, there were plenty of opportunities. French, Spanish, and German were offered. Besides learning the basics, a new culture was put before you and art, music, and cooking were touched upon.

Even though gym classes are mandatory, they could be considered electives. One could exercise and participate in a variety of sports, such as volleyball, softball, and tennis.

All of these classes helped change the course of the day. They helped break the monotony and gave students the chance to do something they really enjoyed.

Electives help students  On August 23, over 1,600 students returned to Jefferson to get back to the same old grind. But as the year progressed and days and weeks passed, it became apparent that maybe this year wouldn't be the same as all the others. For many changes were to take place during the course of the year.

The final tests started the year before reappeared again to haunt the last week of every term. And unlike the year before, the tests were given with regularity and with more indepth questions.
Two days in the fall, winter, and spring were again devoted to the registration process. But because of many reasons, this system of registration was threatened by a change to registration through a computer.

Other changes proposed to the high schools by the Board of Education included the implementation of an honors program, returning to a semester system, an increase in social studies requirements, continuation of a competency test, increasing the maximum load per term to 30 credits, and eliminating the pass/fail grade option for all required classes excluding gym.

Although it was true that not all of these changes affected the students immediately, there were still many opinions voiced concerning each of the proposed changes.

Many students felt that courses had been strengthened and more of a challenge presented. For many students this meant extra time devoted to homework and less time for other outside activities. Seniors found themselves presented with a do or die situation of pass the course or do not plan to graduate.

The last day of school finally arrived and excited students left the halls of Jefferson with pleasant thought of summer racing through their minds. Thoughts of the past school year still lingered in their minds though, and dwelling on these thoughts they realized that they really did have a lot to look back upon and even more to look forward to.

Staff includes 82 H

 Tave you ever wondered just how many individuals it takes to provide a sound educational program for 1.700 students?While the four administrators keep the school running smoothly, a total of eighty-two teachers are needed to provide each student with the necessary educational skills.

Seven teacher associates and five secretaries in the offices help complete the necessary paper work that goes along with running a school effectively. The school nurse treats any student who becomes ill during the course of the day.
The school security guard handles student parking problems, while three media workers help students collect information in the IMC, and five counselors assist students individually.

Jeff instructors grieve loss of fellow teachers

At the outset of the school year. Jefferson High suffered two great losses with the deaths of Mrs. Janice Wilson and Mr. Adalberto Rodriguez.

Mrs. Wilson was a learning disabilities teacher here at Jefferson. Many of the students at Jeff didn't have her but the students who did know her and had her as an instructor will always remember Mrs. Wilson as a special lady. Mrs. Wilson died on August 2. 1979, as a result of burns she received in an automobile accident in Montreal, Canada, earlier in the summer.

Mrs. Janice Wilson, learning disabilities teacher. died on August 2. 1979, as a result of burns she received in an automobile accident.

Mr. Rodriguez was the Spanish teacher here at Jeff for the last 12 years. He was a favorite teacher of many students at Jeff. Most of the students did not know that Mr. Rod wasn't always a teacher. He was, at one time, a lawyer and he was the coach at the 1960 Summer Olympics in Rome. His students will probably remember the outings to Papa Juan's and his crazy jokes when they look back on the time they spent with him. He was a happy man with a positive attitude, something for all of us to aim for in our own lives. Mr. Rodriguez died October 7, 1979.

Mrs. Wilson and Mr. Rodriguez will be remembered by all. We extend our sympathy to their familes and friends.

Mr. Rodriguez's love for travel included a trip with his wife to Lucerne. Switzerland, in the summer of 1979.

Visiting Las Vegas in August 1978. Mrs. Wilson enjoyed the opportunity to combine shopping with sight-seeing.

Practice pays off

There were many triumphs throughout the 1980 sports season. The fall campaigns were headed by the success of both the football and volleyball teams.

The football team earned its third trip to state playoffs in nine seasons with an upset victory over eventual state champion Dubuque Hempstead. 17-14, in overtime of the last regular season game. But in the first round of the state playoffs, the J-Hawks suffered their second loss to cross-town rival Washington. 14-6.

The volleyball team had its best season ever highlighted by qualifying for state play for their first time ever. They won their first game in the tournament 2-0 over Carroll Kuemper and won three more games before being defeated by cross-town rival Kennedy in the semi-finals, 2-1. They came back to win their consolation game over Bettendorf, 2-1, to finish third.

The girls' basketball team finished with a mark of $17-5$ which was also their most successful season ever. Their season was sparked by a $54-50$ victory over Kennedy during the regular season before losing to the Cougars in the sectional finals.

The boys' basketball team did even better as they had a mark of $15-5$ with two victories over Kennedy before losing a heartbreaker, 38-34; to lowa City West in the district championship game.

The girls' track team seemed to be the most dominant figure. They, as many J-Hawk teams of 1980, also had their best teams ever. The girls' had high hopes of conference and state champions.

But the boys' track team was close behind with many returned lettermen and a host of good sprinters. They also eyed a conference championship.

Both summer baseball and softball teams were expected to do well. The softball team was given the highest expectations as it returned a strong line-up and excellent pitching staff.

The boys' basketball team might not have had the experience but made up for it with its hard playing desire.

All in all, the J-Hawk athletes could be proud of their accomplishments.

The team, excelling in bumping, setting, and spiking, was led by head coach John Weld and assistants Jim Cox and Char Regenold. There were many goals achieved as the girls had their best year ever and made a name for themselves as a powerhouse in lowa girls' volleyball.

With eight graduating varsity members, next year's team has a lot to live up to. Hopefully they will be able to carry on the winning tradition.

Team breaks three goals

cCoach John Weld felt only one significant change would differ from last year and it was apparent. The girls worked their way to the state tournament which earned them an impressive third place trophy.

Led by junior Tina Steffen, the team worked hard to pull off the most successful season ever experienced. "The greatest assomplishment." stated senior Lori Matejcek, "was to break our three goals: The victory over Kennedy, the first time to defeat a Dubuque school, and the greatest, to go to state.'

The whole team was credited for the success, while a few received greater honors. Tina Steffen was named first team All-Conference. All-tournament. and All-State, and senior Angie Rajtora received first team All-Conference honors.

Faulty ceiling problem doesn't hinder swimmers

AIthough hindered by the problem of a deteriorating pool roof, the girls' team completed its best season in the team's history. The school board closed the pool when it was determined unsafe, forcing the team to swim at many locations, from private pools to the city's public pools.

Despite this major problem, many records were broken. Freshman Nancy Carlstedt set three individual records, then combined with seniors Cindy Dvorak and Teresa Munn, and junior Julie Arntzen, to set a new record in the 400 freestyle relay.

Nancy Carlstedt was given the most valuable swimmer award; other awards were given to sophomore Chris Sharp. the most improved swimmer; and Cindy Dvorak, the hardest worker.
"Workouts were a big hassle, but they did help bring us together," commented co-captain Teresa Munn. Afternoon workouts were held at many different times. Some workouts were held at 3:30 p.m. while others were held as late as 7:30 p.m.

The team compiled a 6-6 dual meet record, and a 24th place state finish.

Running towards victory

Successful seasons were achieved by both the girls' and boys' cross country teams as the girls' team qualified for state once more and the boys' team boasted its best record ever.

Coach Larry Nolting welcomed back four letter winners, including twins Jan and Jean Sedlacek, LeaAnn Johnson, and Angie Werden.

Led by Captain LeaAnn Johnson. the girls finished 6-1 in dual meet competition, 2nd in districts, and accomplished a 5 th place finish in the state meet. A first was achieved by varsity runner Jean Sedlacek as she was the first female J-Hawk to break twelve minutes for the 2 mile run. Dedication and enthusiasm were shared among teammates as sophomore Mary Nowlan stated, "Never have I worked so hard in a sport and had so much fun while doing it!"

Scott Peterman turned in the best time for the boys $(10: 37)$ as they finished $3-3$ in dual meets. The captain award was given to Lee Vannoy, as they finished 6th place at the district meet and 8th place in conference action.

Varsity runners included Lee and Lynn Vannoy, Scott Peterman, Chris Nelson. Andy Wisely, Gordon Fuller, and alternate Tim Titus.

Fans were an essential part of the cross country season this year. Even though watching a 2 mile race can also get tiring for the spectators as they run from spot to spot to see the race, there were many loyal fans who you could expect to see at every meet. This kind of support encouraged the teams to a fine season.

Spirit, smiles, and pep keep cheerleaders going

This year's fall cheerleaders tried something new. During the summer. all three varsity squads went to cheerleading camp which was held in Ames from July 31 to August 3. To earn their way to cheerleading camp. the girls participated in fund raising projects such as selling candy bars and washing cars.

While at camp, the football squad received an excellent rating. while the girls' swimming and volleyball squads received superior ratings. All three squads earned a spirit stick for their spirit and enthusiasm displayed throughout the week.

Pep assemblies provided students with a variety of entertainment. from the suitcase race to the mysterious pumpkin head, to the unforgetable competition yell. In the fall there is a lot of spirit and pep, but in the winter this usually fades quite rapidly.

The winter cheerleaders cheered on winning teams. The most successful was the wrestling team, which sent three wrestlers to state. From the last squads to cheer in the 70's to the first squads to cheer in the 80's, spirit and pep always prevailed among the cheerleaders.

The J-Hawks three state qualifiers are shown during their long road to the state meet. They are Mike Johnson. Joe Hill, and Dean Miller.

Wrestlers make progress by edging Wash, Kennedy

Ihe J-Hawk matmen picked up where they left off last year and continued to improve under second year head coach Tim Fowler and his assistants. Mr. Jim Cox and Mr. Mike Gallager.

The J-Hawks finished second in the Valley at $6-6$ by improving on last year's record as they beat both cross town rivals Washington and Kennedy. Last year the matmen dropped both meets by close decisions.

As the J-Hawk underclassmen plan for the future, it looks great. The three 1980 state tourney qualifiers are all underclassmen and will return next year. They are sophomores Joe Hill and Dean Miller, and junior Mike Johnson, who placed fifth at the 1980 state tourney.
Others who will play an important part next year are sophomores John Strausser, Chris Chicchelly, and juniors Chris Visek, Mark Potter, Ron Curfman, Chuck Madison, Ron Moody, Jeff Roman, Scott Staton, and Mark DeHaan.

Looking at the past, the last time the J-Hawks had three returning state qualifiers was in the early 70 's. This was when Jefferson was the dominant wrestling power in the state, as all JHawk fans will certainly remember.

Straining to put in another two points, senior Angie Rajtora gives her all.

Juniors Tina Steffen and Jan Sedlacek give 100 per cent to tack two more victories on to their record.

Girls beat Kennedy for the first time

capping the season, several J-Hawks were named to the allconference team. Junior Tina Steffen captured first team honors. while senior Julie Boardman was voted to the second team. Senior Lisa Wesbrook and junior Sue Overmann earned honorable mention positions.

The team MVP award went to Tina Steffen and most improved player award was bestowed upon Julie Boardman. Lisa Wesbrook received the attitude award while the hustle award was shared by juniors Jan Sedlacek and Sandy Munson. Tina Steffen and Linda Fowler were named the co-captains for next year.

Girl cagers record best season ever

he Jeff girls' basketball team made a lot of improvement under the guidance of second year coach Larry Niemeyer. The team posted a 17-5 record which is the best yet compiled in the eight year history of the program.

Junior forward Tina Steffen, who averaged 32 points per game, led the varsity unit along with senior guards Lisa Wesbrook and Julie Boardman.

The season featured many highlights for the varsity team. Beating cross-town rival Kennedy for the first time by a score of 54-50, playing a game at the Five Seasons Center, and finishing second in the MVC title race with a record of 8-2 were the key points of the season.

Even though the sophomore record may not have been very impressive, many sophomores gained valuable varsity playing experience in preparation for next year.

Many long hours of work and dedication were put in by both players and coaches to enable the team to enjoy its overall successful season.

Dribblers dunk it for good seasons

W/ ith this year's cagers having four returning lettermen, the squad looked forward to having one of its finest seasons under third-year coach Glenn Smith, and assistants Ron Capps and Ken Anderson.

The hustling squad worked primarily on fundamentals and conditioning. Coach Smith emphasized that this year's team would primarily be a running team with the experience in the starting lineup.
This strategy proved to be a most successful move. The squad started out with a $3-4$ record and fans were already giving up on the J-Hawks when suddenly lightning struck. With the team still scrapping and hustling, it managed to put together its talents and went on to compile an eleven game winning streak.

On a serious note, sadness struck many Jefferson fans and alumni this year with the sudden death of former All-State center Larry Baker, who guided the J-Hawks to their first state championship in 1967.

Basketball action

This year's roundballers enioyed one of their most successful seasons in the school's history. The varsity squad posted an impressive $10-4$ record, good enough for a third place finish in the Mississippi Valley Conference.

The team's only defeats were against two highly rated teams-Dubuque Wahlert twice, and from cross town rival Washington twice. The fifth loss came shockingly to an lowa City West team in the district finals, 38-34.

The squad experienced the thrill of playing in the new downtown Five Seasons Civic Center for the first time when they faced the Washington Warriors, in the second game of a double header.

The team finished with a respectable 15-5 overall record, their best finish since the 1967 basketball team that captured the state championship.

Post-season awards went to seniors Brad Peters and John "Red" Kenney, who earned second team MVC honors. Also, junior Marck Lee and senior Wayne Rust received honorable mention.

Young, yet willing, swimmers try hard

Even though the final record indicates a 6-9 season, Coach Taylor's tankers actually achieved much more than most people realize. The two major factors that affected this year's team were the inexperience and injuries to the team's 38 members.

The main problem concerning this year's team was their lack of experience. Coach Taylor stated that 20 of the 38 members were first year swimmers. This is a good sign for the future of the swim team because an increase in numbers will benefit the team as a whole.

The other factor affecting the team's overall performance was injuries. The team was plagued by injuries right from the start of the season. Only one of the nine seniors made it through the season uninjured and healthy. Although many of the swimmers were sick or injured during the season, they always showed up to encourage the rest of the team.

There was only one record broken during the season and that was by a diver, Toby Petersen. Toby set a new mark of 378.10 for 11 dives. Toby, also, went on to state.

This season was beneficial for the team as a whole. The many trials they faced were, at first, difficult to surpass, but in the end the tankers were by far a better team.

The girls had an impressive season. breaking their team record four consecutive times, and ended up with a 148.05 team score. In past years, Jefferson's team record reached the 170 's but that was when trampoline was included when compiling the team scoring. Trampoline has since been banned beacuse its insurance risk is too high.

While the girls had four returning letter winners, the boys had three. Returning for the girls were seniors Diana Hahn, Teresa Crawford, junior Tina Tibben, and sophomore Lisa Kaschmitter. Boys who returned were senior Jeff Hunt, and juniors Mike Johnson and Reid Boyer.

The boys' team consisted of three seniors, five juniors, four sophomores, and one freshman. "We may have had a young team but we have a lot of potential to help lead us to a winning season." commented Coach Fowler.
This potential led the boys to a fifth place finish in the state invitational meet.

or the fifth year Mr. Ron Capps headed the boys' tennis team which compiled a successful season record.

The season began with returning letterwinners in seniors Cory Wise and Rex Traylor, and juniors Steve Jorgensen, Dan Haight, and Phil Graham.

The varsity was dominated by underclassmen, with sophomore John Stillions in the number one position. John not only was the first sophomore to head the varsity in at least the last five years, but also qualified for state tennis singles.

For most of the season, juniors Dan Haight and Phil Graham played the second and third position, while sophomore Dan David held fourth. The fifth and sixth positions were occupied by seniors Rex Traylor and Cory Wise.

The team did do well at the Mississippi Valley Conference tournament with Rex Traylor receiving a first place in the number five singles. Phil Graham won the second spot for the third place singles, while the second spot for the number six singles was captured by Cory $W$ ise. Steve Jorgensen and Rex Traylor were the only doubles team to place.

Even though the season was hampered by many of the members being involved in other activities, the team finished successful.

Netters gain experience

This year's girls' tennis team, led by number one player Terri Ellertson and seniors Michelle Hilton and Connie Daugherty, proved that experience can come from underclassmen too as the other three varsity spots were fought for by junior Tina Odekirk and sophomores Lisa Kashmitter. Chrys Rinderknecht, and Joy Ament.

Under coach Jim Lockett and an assistant coach from Taft. Amy Brenneman, the girl netters compiled a record of 8 wins and 6 losses. Court time at the Memorial courts was hard to come by, as the Roosevelt Junior High boys' tennis team shared them along with the J-Hawk boys' team. No need to worry next year as new courts are in the process of being built behind the industrial arts wing at Jefferson.

All tennis players will surely remember the special times that were shared in future years. Distinctive memories were the traditional amusing trips to McDonald's. Coach Lockett's unforgetable hello smile, sophomore initiation, and special nicknames like J.J., Chuck, Matyk, Roo, Bernie, Eesay, and Lisa Loopner.

Losing only two varsity positions next year, the girls' team can look forward to one of its best seasons ever. Experience will be a definite factor in making it another successful season for Coach Lockett and his girls' team.

 $s$ soon as spring hit the air, the boys' and girls' golf team dug out their golf clubs and started practicing their game, hoping for an improved 1980 season.The boys' golf team, which was coached by Mr. Glenn Smith, was a young squad with only one senior, Brett Kelsey. Juniors Tim Minard and Dean Sass and sophomores Jim Wise and Frank Hansen also provided team leadership. The guys played in eight meets, including one triangular and one quadrangular.

The girls' golf team, under the direction of coach Ron Tower, was also very young with one senior, Tammy Riley. With help from letterwinners Tammy Riley and junior Lori Florence, the girls displayed a lot of improvement over last year's team. Juniors Cindy Egger and Teri Rust helped to round out the 1980 team. While the boys' golf team played in only eight meets, the girls played in 16.

Since both teams were small, team fellowship was very high. Also, both teams started in April, by practicing on their home fairway at Ellis Park, and ended their seasons in late May. Next year, both should be just as good as this year's team, if not better.

Boys' track season dashes to victory

The boys' track team got off to a strong start at the beginning of the season under the guidance of coach Ron Schirm. The team became the 1980 Metro Indoor Champs and also placed in the top ten at the Drake Relays in Des Moines. The men also had an upper division finish at the conference meet.

Two new school records were set this year. In the $4 \times 800$ meter relay Gordon Fuller. Chris Nelson, Lee Vannoy and Lynn Vannoy set a time of 8:02.06 which also qualified them for state. "I feel that these guys are capable of being state champs as well as Jeff Boyd in the 400 meter low hurdles." expressed Coach Schirm. Jeff Boyd set a new school record of 54.7 in the 400 meter low hurdles.

Several other J-Hawks qualified for state at the district competition. Those qualifying were: Jeff Boyd in the high and low hurdles: Scott Kelley in the high jump: Chuck Tomasek in the long jump and the pole vault: and Steve Harkness. Craig Hartman, Larry Lehman, and Jeff Meyers in the $4 \times 100$ meter relay.

Coach Schirm felt that a special mention should be made honoring Dave Hewitt who ran as a state contender last year in the $4 \times 100$ and the $4 \times 200$ meter relays, ut was unable to continue after sustaining an injury earlier this season.

Seniors Jeff Boyd. Jeff Meyers, and Steve Harkness show looks of determination as they head for another J-Hawk victory in their respective events.

Teamwork pays off; old records fall

"T he thrill of victory" was experienced by many girls this year as the track team had a highly successful season. Going undefeated in dual meet competition and winning the Lionette, Benton Community, and Kennedy Invitationals, the girls broke and rebroke 10 school records.
Senior Angie Rajtora broke school records in the discus and the softball throw while fellow weightman Tammy Seltretch shattered the record for the shot put. Rajtora and the 10 Flight Shuttle Hurdle relay team consisting of Sally Matejcek, Mary Thompson. Sue Overmann, and DD Westbrook captured district and Mississippi Valley Conference titles as they set school records in the events.
Sue Overmann also broke the 400 meter hurdle record. The 100 meter dash and the 400 meter dash were both broken by sophomore Angie Werdon as she also broke the long jump record. The 440 meter relay team, made up of Nancy Wells, Julie Smith. Angie Werden, and Sue Overmann, also broke a school record at the Drake Relays.
The girls qualified 13 events for state as they finished second in their district. The discus, along with the softball, throw, high jump, and the long jump, all qualified as did the running events including the 100 meter hurdles, 400 meter hurdles, 400 meter dash, and the 1500 meter run. Relays qualifying included the Shuttle Hurdle relay team, the $4 \times 400$ meter relay, the Sprint Medley, 2-mile, and Distance Medley relays.

Teamwork paid off for the J-Hawks as many close meets were won with team depth.

$\mathbf{W}_{\text {ith only }}$ two returning lettermen Craig Bruce and Ty Van Horbeck, the upcoming baseball season looked all but promising for the inexperienced J-Hawks. But under third year coaches Joe Kenney and Mark Tschopp, a lot of hard work and determination set the young team's conflicts behind.

This would be the last year of organized spring baseball, unless the board of education reversed its decision in favor of extending the track season. This would mean that both track people and baseball personal interested in both sports would have the chance to compete in both programs. It would also mean that it would cut down about $10-12$ baseball contests, but still have a summer program of about 25 games.

The season opener began with a double header against Regis. The first game came out a success as the Jefferson team handed the Royals a $7-6$ setback. But the opposition came back in the second contest by the same score, 7-6. Regis, by the way, had game experience by winning 2 of 4 games before meeting Jeff.

As the season progressed, the $J$ Hawks 3-5 record was a bit depressing. But with many juniors and seniors picking up experience, the season went on with improvement produced in each game.
The team's goals were to win the Metro tournament and win the Mississippi Valley Conference. These goals seemed too much to ask for, but with a few breaks, more experience, and a little hustle, they could surprise a lot of people who hadn't given them much support.

Squad strives for state

With the beginning of a new season, the girls' softball team got off sporting a new look. For the first time ever, ninth grade girls were allowed to participate on the high school team. A total of $\mathbf{5 4}$ girls started out the season led by second year coach Larry Niemeyer and his first year assistant. Mr. Mark Stewart.

A hectic schedule kept the girls busy playing the regular season games, in addition to participating in seven tournaments. The tournaments included the Jack North Tourney held June 18-21, the Metro Tourney on June 13-14, Clear Creek Tournament held July 2-4, and the Ottumwa Classic on July 11-12. The girls also hosted three tournaments on May 2931, June 27-28, and the Jefferson Classic held June 7.

This year a new look was added to the program as a new softball diamond was built with all the accommodations including lights and scoreboard.

The girls welcomed back eight returning letterwinners in seniors Barb Ridder, Michelle Hilton, and co-captains Angie Rajtora and Lori Matejcek. Also, juniors Jan Sedlacek, Tina Steffen, Tamy Seltrecht, and Amy Monk.

Steffen, Rajtora and Monk, who are returning all-Metro members, led the team, as well as Jan Sedlacek, an AllValley pick.

Before the season started, Coach Niemeyer explained that improvement would be needed in the hitting area.

With the season behind them, the girls will have a lot to look back on.

J-Hawks help out teams toward their victories

0n the sports scene, teams proved once again J-Hawks are No.I. But athletes alone don't deserve all the credit. Recognition should also go to the managers, coaches, fans, and all the other people who contributed their time and effort to the teams.

Special recognition should go to Mike Dochterman, who received a scholarship to the University of Iowa, because of his outstanding work as a manager. During football season, the coaches and trainers worked diligently taping, preparing the players for action, and keeping their spirits "high".

Thanks should go to the timers, mat maids, stats people, and other unrecognized individuals for dedicating their time and efforts to help their favorite teams. Recognition should also be given to the fans who encouraged the teams to victories.

When speaking of the girls' volleyball team, Kristi Lightly, senior, stated, "It really helped to have people cheering for us at state."

Helping an injured Mike Sutliff off the field is only one of the duties performed by manager Gary Buck and trainer Doug Landuyt.

Aim at perfection

$F$or the last time the lights came down on many Jefferson senior performers as all the vocal groups performed on May 23 at the spring concert.
The fine arts year opened in the theater with the fall play. Stage Door. The cast was large but worked well together for a fine performance.
As the leaves began to turn the West Side Delegation went into full swing. Departing from the traditional blue and white outfits, and adding a dynamic set. helped the group to a state championship in March.
With football season well underway. the division I rated marching band entertained fans with its exciting halftime shows. The band also raised enough money to purchase new uniforms.

Tales from Harlequin enhanced children and adults alike when it was put on for children's theatre. Right after children's theatre, performers went to work on the winter play. Dinny and the Witches, proving they were flexible, as both plots were very opposite.

The Christmas season kept all groups in the fine arts area busy. With performances and parties, even the questions of whether Christmas should be celebrated in the public schools didn't dampen their spirits.

As spring neared many of the groups became apprehensive about touring, which was easy to understand when Concert Choir and West Side Delegation found out they were going to New York. The Hilltop Singers also enjoyed touring St. Louis, while the band went to Kansas City. Minnesota was the state for this year's Thespian trip in March.

Concert Choir and orchestra worked together for the success of the spring musical. Oklahomal, making it the last major production of the year.
Probably the biggest triumph of the year for the fine arts was that every musical group that competed in a state contest. either won a state championship. or received a division I rating.

Jefferson performers will certainly have a lot to look back on. But if "all the world's a stage." they'll have even more to look forward to.

Hours of practice pay off for bands

The Jefferson marching band, led by majorette Jeanne Scholl and drum major Al Johnson. practice one of their many formations on the lower field.

Whether it be playing in the gym, or getting ready to march on the field, the bands always support the teams in their own special way.

hree new additions to the band included Mr. Earle Dickenson, band director, Jeanne Scholl, drum majorette, and pom pon girls. The J-Hawks pep and marching bands had a lot to look back upon as they recalled some of their more memorable times. Whether it be practicing on the lower field or supporting the teams, the bands always seemed to come through. The many hours of practice seemed to pay off as they took to the field five different times to entertain the audience during home football games.
In October, the J-Hawk band loaded the buses and headed to Jesup to participate in the division 3A marching contest where they received a number one rating. A couple of weeks later the band marched in the lowa Homecoming parade and received another number one rating.
At the end of the season the band performed in a band extravaganza, allowing the audience one last chance to see and hear the marching band play tunes it did during the football season.
Sophomores and juniors in band have a lot to look forward to as they strive to uphold this year's fine performance record.

Band has new look in '80

As the fall term came to a close, the J-Hawk band had to start all over again as they moved indoors to concentrate on new music for the concert season ahead.

With the talk of new uniforms coming in the spring it meant a lot of hard work and a vast number of money raising activities. The main money raising event was of course the band carnival, which took place on February 16. With the three junior highs bands playing along with the Jefferson concert and jazz bands, there was entertainment for everyone. For the younger set there were games and pie throws with our own faculty members serving as targets.
When asked how the carnival went. Mr. Dickinson replied, "Quite well, we made about as much money as last year but I wish we could have done a little better."

Then on February 23, the All-City Music Festival was held here at Jefferson for the first time.

As March rolled around it was time to think about city and state individual and group contests. With this came many hours of practicing individually and with respective groups. When Saturday. March 8, came and went, many students accomplished something they didn't think possible. With a total of 65 entries. Jeff had over $60 \%$ with number one ratings. Winding out the year was the band's trip to Kansas City where they received a number I rating.

West Side attains number one rating

 the 1980 edition of the West Side Delegation showed ambition and vitality like never before. Taking first place at the all-state swing choir competition, and gaining numerous standing ovations, showed the truly outstanding professionalism of this year's show choir.West Side's program began with "Listen to the Music," and was followed by numbers ranging from "I Got Rhythm.' a tap routine, to "Tomorrow," performed with sign mime. Instrumentalists also helped out by playing the "Theme from S.W.A.T." as part of their instrumental break.

To top off the year, the W.S.D. toured with the Concert Choir to New York City, stopping to perform in Oil City and Erie, Pennsylvania, along the way. Hard work and dedication certainly paid off by the amount of spirit and enthusiasm evidenced by the audience throughout the year.

concerts certainly weren't the only events keeping this year's edition of the Concert Choir busy, as the choir was involved in various new and exciting activities. To kick off the year, the Concert Choir and West Side Delegation went on their first annual fall retreat, which was held at a camp near Walker. Hoping to develop a sense of purpose and unity, the choir returned from the retreat with anticipation for the coming year's events.

As the year progressed, an activity called open mike took the last ten minutes of Friday choir periods. Open mike gave the students the opportunity to voice their opinions freely about any subject of their choice, without being overly derogatory or critical of any one person. Almost every open Touring to Chicago. Pennsylvania, Ohio, and New York was truly the highlight of the year for most choir members. The Statue of Liberty, Greenwich Village. St. Patrick's Cathedral, and other sights exposed the choir to the many cultures of New York.

Receiving a division I rating at the state music contest proved the amount of talent and musical ability shown by the choir throughout the year.

Singers plan trip

his year the Hilltop Singers took their annual spring tour to St. Louis, Missouri, from April 24 to April 27.

While staying in St. Louis they gave a concert at Busch School. The program included several contemporary songs such as "Don't Cry Out Loud". "How I Wish I Knew", "Scarbourough Fair", and other pop and religious songs. The Hilltop Singers also sang at a church service. There they sang "Lift Thine Eyes", "Come Holy Light Divine", along with "See the World Through Children's Eyes" and "I'll Be Your Candle on the Water".

The singers also were able to visit many of St. Louis' attractions. They spent a whole day at Six Flags Over MidAmerica. An afternoon and evening was filled by visiting the St. Louis $z 00$ and shopping at St. Louis' largest shopping center. The Northwest Plaza. They also saw two stage productions. One was the musical A Chorus Line and the other was a melodrama on the Golden Rod Showboat called The Swashbuckler.

Besides the concerts on tour, they also sang in the winter and outdoor spring concerts. The group was led by the choir council consisting of Sandy Hall, president; Linda Vyskocil, vice-president: Tracy Briney, secretary; and Becky Doerhmann, treasurer.

From dancers to midgets, sophomores reveal their talent during variety show

Sitting on Grandma's feather bed. Mary Thompson. Mary Conger. Chris Landis, and Becky Rhodes wave to the audience at the end of their act.

Along with the usual fall, winter, and spring concerts. the mixed chorus highlighted its performing year with the traditional mixed chorus variety show.

Sophomore Rick Isard, master of ceremonies, entertained the audience with jokes and tricks. The variety show opened with the Vigor-Less Tones barbershop quartet, singing "My Wild Irish Rose." Sophomore Cheryl Brodt soloed on "One Tin Solider", preceeding the Jamin' Jammies who performed to "Grandma's Feather Bed."

There were a variety of acts including dancing, piano solos, and skits. This combination kept the audience well entertained. For the closing number, the members of the mixed chorus assembled on stage and performed three final songs.

Mr. Allen Koepke, director of mixed chorus and concert choir, explained, "The show was entirely up to the kids. If it was good, they got credit for it; if it was bad, they had to live with it.'
"We put a lot of work into the show and we're glad it turned out as well as it did," stated Sue Henkel, mixed chorus member. Upcoming mixed chorus groups will have a tough time matching the $1979-80$ variety show.

Sarah Sargent, Linda Still, and Jolene Foss control the top half of "The Multiple Midgets". while Julie Speer. Mary Conger, and Sue Henkel control the bottom half.

As the girls waited and hoped for that one big break that would assure them stardom, many things happened in their lives.

Delise Miskimen, who portrayed Terry Randall. gave up the temptation of Hollywood and movies to stay faithful to the stage.

A shy Kaye Hamilton (Annette Dion) became dissatisfied with her life and killed herself.

magine yourself in a small town in Italy during the sixteenth century. There is a poor boy. Harlequin, played by Cal Edgeton. His dream is to one day become an actor.

This plot is carried out by a cast of fourteen actors in the play "The Adventures of Harlequin." which was presented in February for the benefit of younger children. Play Time Poppy and Captain Gardner also made appearances to remind the kids of safety hints.

The story begins one day when a band of traveling actors, Tim Wendt, Delise Miskimen, Mike Wieland, and Steve Jorgensen, comes to town. They are looking for an actor to join their band and decide to hold tryouts. In this contest, Cal must go up against Mayor Doug Tompkin's son, Dan Patton. It is decided that Doug will be the judge unfortunately.

Both boys tryout for the part and Cal is far better than Dan, so Cal receives the part and his childhood dream finally becomes a reality.

Juniors Mike Wieland and Steve Jorgensen have a disagreement over who is more important. a doctor or a knight in shining armor.

Doug Tompkins shows his son. Dan Patton, the fancy material to be used in making his costume for the play tryouts.

Scott Koepke, junior, reveals to the audience the details which tie the play together.

With arms widespread, junior Steve Jorgensen vividly portrays his part as Capitano.

Dinny gets his wishes

Dinny and the Witches was not the average winter play done at Jefferson. The major reason this play is different is that it had basically a serious and deep plot.

The play centered on three witches, Zhnobia, junior Karen Hartwig: Ulga, senior Anna Symonette; and Louella, junior Delise Miskimen. These witches owned the book of life and death, and when it was a person's turn to die, the witches were to see the death through.

The witches thought the next person to die was Dinny Jones, senior Doug Hladek. What the witches didn't know was that Dinny's time was not up yet, and as hard as they tried he escaped death.
As the play continued. Dinny got hold of a page in the book of life and death, causing the witches to lose their powers to him. Dinny suddenly had the world at his feet, but found it's not all it's cracked up to be. The witches later found they had made a mistake, and Dinny's fate was life.

Doug Hladek, senior, portrays the character of Dinny Jones well as he gazes thoughtfully into the distance.

Realistic portrayals of witches are revealed as juniors Delise Miskimen and Karen Hartwig strike a familiar pose.

Cast members Anna Symonette, Karen Hartwig. and Delise Miskimen successfully express the comical characters they portrayed in the play.

As the witches look on. Doug Hladek desperate-

Sandy Jacobs and Diane Hladek use seduction as a tool for evil, with Doug Hladek falling to their temptation.

Performing the number. "Everythings up to Date in Kansas City", dancers dazzled the audience with their high-stepping routines.

With a look of anger. Nick Dellos shines his gun under Scott Koepke's watchful eye.

‘Oklahoma’ entertains capacity audiences

Ihe coming of spring means many different things to different people, but for Concert Choir students, it meant spending a great deal of time on this year's spring musical, "Oklahoma."
The leads began rehearsal on a small scale before he choir's New York tour, and upon returning home, they were left with only a month to perfect the show. Every member of choir took part, whether it was as part of the chorus, dancing, or in a lead role.

The leads included Julie Yost as Laurie, Scott Koepke as Curly, Doug Hladek as Ali Hakim, Neil Frank as Will Parker, Sandy Jacobs as Ado Annie, Doug Tompkins as Andrew Carnes, Nick Dellos as Judd, Donna Carpenter as Aunt Eller, and Danielle Shaw as Gertie.

There was also a troupe of dancers who performed difficult routines to songs such as "The Farmer and the Cowman." They were under the direction of Miss Kathleen McNamara.

Dramatists

J efferson performers had another profitable year. A highlight for the speech students was receiving a division one rating which qualified them for state competition. Their acts varied from solo mime, duet acting, a Readers Theatre group, to a one act play.

The Jefferson scene shop also had a lot to be proud of after taking honors at being named the best and safest in the city.

The Thespians held their traditional Christmas party, and in February took a trip to Minnesota. They also sponsored a spring mixer in March.

Writers work hard to meet deadlines

 M any students were caught up in the excitement and hard work of the publishing world as they worked on either the Outlook or Offhand staffs.Outlook, the student All-American newspaper, was published once a month under the leadership of editor-in-chief April Carter, senior. Thirty staff members worked long hours as they dug up interesting and sometimes controversial story ideas, interviewed various people, and pasted up their pages. Although the work was often hard, staff members looked to distribution day when the whole school could see the final product.
Offhand, which consisted of a small staff of less than ten students, published a literary magazine filled with poems, short stories, non-fiction pieces, artwork, and photography, all done by students. This magazine, which had an increase of twenty-five pages from the previous year, provided a showcase for students' literary talents.

High GPA's pay off

0n April 29, 69 students were inducted into National Honor Society, receiving the recognition they deserved for outstanding scholastic achievement. To be admitted into the society, these 32 seniors and 27 juniors had to display qualities of leadership, character, scholarship, and service.

A high grade point average and class rank were also necessary as only the top 15 per cent of the senior class, and the top $81 / 2$ percent of the junior class, were considered for membership in the society.

If the student fell within these percentages, he was given an application form and the offer to become a member.

After the applications were all returned, a list of the students being considered was distributed to the faculty, who responded with their feelings about each of the students they had been associated with during the year.

Two meetings, attended by a committee consisting of eleven teachers and one counselor, were then held. This committee discussed each of the applicants and voted as a committee on whether to admit the students into the Honor Society.

The committee them completed its decisions, and the students were informed of their acceptance, causing a deep sense of pride to flow within each of their hearts.

S

 Council, helped by offcers Sharon Waybill, president: Della Rank, vice-president; Denise Hermanstorfer, secretary; Bill Harvey. treasurer: and adviser Walt Hartman, sponsored several activities throughout the year.Included in these activities were many precedented in years before, but new activities were also added.
In the fall. Homecoming was a major project, as Student Council organized two assemblies, the crowning at Kingston Stadium, and the Homecoming dance. Although there were many changes in the week, it was still a success.

Also sponsored by Student Council was WPA Week which was held on April 14 through 18. The Council had hoped to hold the event several weeks earlier but was unable to schedule a date. But despite this, the event was still a success as a record breaking crowd watched the movie "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band" and over 400 students attended the dance.

Other activities sponsored by the Council include carnation and donut sales, and $\mathbf{t}$-shirt sales for Beat Kennedy and Beat Washington weeks.

During the winter term, the Council also organized a Valentine's Dance which filled the cafeteria with the voice of senior Richard Loeffler who served as disc jockey.

Three Senates work hard for additions to school

new twist was added to the sophomore senate, as it was made up of more than just class officers. They were led by President Craig Astor. Sophomore Vice-President Carla Gunn added, "At times it seemed as if only a few people were involved, but when it came time to sell MEM's, everyone was supportive."
Junior senate, small but mighty, sold sour balls, keychains, and sponsored a car wash to attain its selling goal. Senate Vice-President Jan Sedlacek stated. "The turn out this year has been somewhat of a disappointment, but the kids who did come to the meetings were most cooperative.'
Senior senate, guided by Denise Hermanstorfer, did a variety of activities to complete their senior year. By selling Reeses', T-shirts designed by senior Kent Hartwig, and sponsoring a mixer, they accomplished something no other class had equaled. Marcia Bachman, treasurer, summed it up by saying, "We had to work hard to earn money, but we made more than any other class.'

Classes brighten futures

co-op education was quite popular during the '79-80 school year as distributive education and trade $\varepsilon$ industry attracted many students to their programs.

Both groups had many fund raisers, from selling donuts and mittens to sponsoring mixers. The proceeds from distributive education sales went toward sending members to Des Moines to participate in state competition.

With the money they earned from sponsoring a mixer, trade & industry students gave a contribution to Camp Courageous to buy sleeping bags.

Both distributive education and trade & industry students attended classes daily where they learned the skills necessary for use at their job training stations.
Their instructors, Mr. Kent LaVelle and Mr. Robert Vrbicek, would then meet with their students' employers to evaluate each worker's progress and general performance.
To round out an active year, trade $\delta$ industry students were treated to a banquet on May 8 where certificates were received and awards presented to outstanding individuals.

Mlany students acquire helpful business skills by taking Office Education or Data Processing.

With the help of Mr. Niemeyer and Miss Bomkamp in the business department, students are able to learn through programs that are similar to training on a job.

These classes include challenging assignments that require a lot of patience and hard work. The reward for those long, hard hours in class isn't just the 5.0 credits you received for the class, but also the fact that when you go to fill out an application at some big business and the application reads, list your qualifications and areas of experience, you can list numerous skills for which you do have experience.

These work experience classes are designed primarily for non-college bound students. However, college bound students will have a terrific advantage over others who are headed in the business field, and who haven't had the benefit of being in one of these programs.

There are many well paid jobs in the business field that require different skills such as typing, shorthand, dictaphone, or keypunching and most often employers require that workers have experience in these areas.

Both OE and DP are designed so that students can take the office class program at school in the morning, and in the afternoon, these students have jobs at the different businesses in town that provide on-the-job training.

These classes give students unlimited opportunities in the business field. noted Mr. Niemeyer, OE Co-ordinator.

Students help out

contributing time to do extra things for the school seems to be very important to some groups. Pep Club, lab assistants, and office assistants are three groups of people who "put in a little extra time" in order to keep our school pepped up and in good running order.

Wendy Hamilton, fall Pep Club president, stated, "We had a lot of fun this year and I was glad to be a part of it. I'd like to encourage everyone, guys and girls alike, to join next year because it's an experience they will never forget." This fall's Pep Club tried to promote all fall sports for both boys and girls. However, they were not totally successful because there were not enough members for the number of athletes.

Lab assistants carry out various jobs in the science department. Some of their responsibilities are to water the plants in the greenhouse and help the teachers correct papers.

Meanwhile, office assistants run passes and do various other tasks for the secretaries. One of their special duties is showing new students around the school.

Thanks to these assistants who contribute their time, the school is able to provide extra services to the 1.400 students.

Mat Maids, Timers help out athletes

chool spirit was a familiar sight around Jefferson this past year. Arousing much of this spirit were the Mat Maids and Timers, two groups who spent much time on their own working for the wrestlers and swimmers respectively.
The Timers, including both boys and girls, are students who were interested in helping out at swim meets.

During both the boys' and girls' swim season, fans see the Timers listening to the start of the race with time clocks around their necks.
A variety of jobs are done by this club to help out the coaches. The most important jobs they do are to time at the home swim meets and announce individual events.
This year's group of Mat Maids consisted of ten girls who enjoyed wrestling and wanted to help by assisting the coaches and teams.

The primary activities of the Mat Maids included organizing and publishing the wrestling programs, making signs, score keeping, selling programs, and supporting the J-Hawk wrestling program in general.

Each group is considered a great asset by the athletes they represent, noted Mr. George Hidinger, athletic director.

Students help IMC

This year's media assistant staff was kept busy with many jobs that needed to be done throughout the school day. Shelving and checking out books, filing magazines, and filling out overdue book notices were among the many tasks that had to be completed daily.

Mrs. Baird, IMC department chairman, commented that the work of the library staff would be an impossible one without the aid of the students.
On the other side, the audio visual helpers had other specialized duties to perform. Processing films, making transparencies and photo copies, moving equipment, and doing the laminating were the major tasks done by these students.

At night. AV helpers could be seen in the Kingston press box or in the gym video taping for the benefit of the sports teams.

On days when the work was slow, students spent their time doing their homework or reading a newly arrived book.

Sophomore senate works hard on money raising activities  D  edication was a word that described the class of 1982. The election of class officers Craig Astor, president; Carla Gunn, vice president; Kurt Miskimen, treasurer; and Lori Sonka, secretary: proved to be a boost to sophomore senate's ability to work hard and raise money for the prom.

"A lot of kids came to the meetings, even though they were after school," stated Carla Gunn. "Everyone was attentive and helpful: I think we did a pretty good job."

Senate members weren't the only sophomores who worked hard. Athletes like Dean Miller in wrestling. Angie Werden in cross country, and Lisa Kaschmitter in gymnastics showed their dedication by performing well to support their team's success. Fine Arts was also an area where sophomores could excel as evidenced by their participation in West Side Delegation.

One last hardworking student worth mentioning from the class of ' 82 was Lorie Bateman. She was chosen out of the 548 members in her class as the Most Outstanding Sophomore in a contest.
As always, sophomores faced initiations, getting hassled by upperclassmen, and the like, but soon they'll be juniors.

Lorie wins O'Brien award

Among the variety of activities that keep sophomore Lorie Bateman busy is her active involvement in $4-\mathrm{H}$. where she has held key positions and won several awards.
Leadership is a quality of which sophomore Lorie Bateman has an overwhelming amount. This is the reason she was selected to represent her class as the Hugh O'Brien Scholarship winner of 1980.

The scholarship involved a trip to Des Moines where a seminar was held to honor all of the sophomore scholarship winners. Two delegates from this seminar were then sent to Los Angelos where they represented the state of lowa in a nationwide seminar.

Lorie has also been an active member of $4-\mathrm{H}$. "I have been in $4-\mathrm{H}$ for seven years and have served as president, vicepresident, secretary, treasurer, and historian." commented Lorie. She also added that she has won awards in seven different areas of achievement.

Lorie also demonstrated her leadership while serving on the Student Council.

Sports

Kelly Hite enjoys moto cross racing

W hat is so unusual about a bicycle moto cross racer who is rated number one in three states, and placed sixth in the world championships? Nothing, except this particular BMX racer is a fifteen year old girl!

Kelly Hite, sophomore, has been racing for two years under the sponsorship of Team Kar City. When she first started, there weren't enough girls interested in the sport for her to compete against, so she had to race with the boys. What was their attitude? "Well, at first they'd see me coming and think, 'oh no, we have to race a girl.' But then I got to know them real well, and I think they started to admire me."

Kelly doesn't have to race with boys anymore and, after competing in the world championships in Indianapolis, she came home rated number six in the Senior Powderpuff division. This is impressive, but, "My main goal is to be the No.l Powderpuff in the world." explained Kelly.

Kelly will continue to compete in this male-dominated sport because, as she explained. "I like BMX because it is an individual effort; there's no team pressure. If you louse it up. it's your own fault."

Racing for only two years, Kelly Hite has already earned a number six ranking in the Senior Powderpuff division of the world championships. Her goal is to become the best female racer in the world.

John is national champ
Tension fills the air, the crowd becomes quiet, and a Jefferson student begins psyching himself up for a victory. The sport is table tennis, and the student is sophomore standout John Stillions. John has been busily making his name known in world wide competition since the age of seven. Now at fifteen. John has captured three national table tennis titles-one singles and two doubles, with the help of his doubles partner. Eric Boggan of New York.

Table tennis has definitely made John's life an exciting one. Traveling is an important part of his life, as he has been in most all of the states, visited both coasts several times, toured Sweden, and played at Ceasar's Palace in Las Vegas every winter since he started playing.

Although he turned professional, John likes to play for the fun of it.

During international competition in Sweden, John Stillions concentrates on a possible ace serve.

Hobby earns money besides being fun

J
John Forrest is not only an athlete, participating in football and basketball, but he also has a very interesting hobby. John is a trapper who sells the furs for profit.

About five years ago, John started trapping and he's done it ever since. Around his family's farm he has been able to trap raccoon, fox, mink, and muskrat. The pelts have been worth between $$ 5$ and $$ 50$ each.

John admits it's a lot of work getting up and checking the traps every morning, but he enjoys the hobby and said he'd do it even if he didn't get paid. By combining the outdoors with his love to hunt, John has chosen a hobby that has been quite profitable.

In addition to his active participation in athletics. John Forrest traps raccoon, fox, mink, and muskrat for profit. His hobby requires a lot of hours, but John says he enjoys it.

We're looking back

In August, as the summer vacation finally came to a close and another year of school got under way, there was one group of people who were especially excited. For although they - had enjoyed the summer, this year was to be a special one for them. For these people it was their last year of attending high school.
It was a year in which they were the leaders-with full authority over juniors and sophomores. No longer were they part of the underclassmen crowd. It was a year for going to school late and getting out early while most sophomores and juniors spent longer hours in the classroom.

It was a time for thinking about the future. For, whether one planned to marry. go to college, or get a full-time job. plans still had to be made to assure success.
Colleges had to be explored, applications filled out, and most importantly, money had to be obtained to pay tuition. This often included the added responsibility of securing a job.

It was a year for special occasions and the storing of memories. With thoughts of winning spirit sticks. Friday night parties, graduation, and prom all remaining vividly within their hearts and minds. these people built memories which would be cherished for years to come.

After nine months of school had passed and these people had finally received their diplomas, they realized that their three years at Jefferson had finally come to a close.

It was a happy year. For it was the last year they would ever have to spend their days confined to a classroom and their nights hitting the books. It was also a sad year, because it was the end of a thirteen year tradition. For many people it would be the last time they would see many of the friends they had become so close to and spent so much time with. But whatever their emotions, they still had a lot to look back upon and even more to look forward to . . . for they were the seniors.

Talent earns money

The dream of a lifetime came true this year for two talented senior athletes. Many athletes who consider continuing their sports career in college often fantasize of receiving a four year scholarship to a prestigious university. For seniors Angie Rajtora and Craig Hartman, their dreams came true.

Angie, an all-around athlete, has earned a free ride to Creighton University located in Omaha, Nebraska. Angie, who co-captained the volleyball team as a junior and cocaptained the girls' basketball and softball teams as a senior, received a softball scholarship valued at approximately $$ 25,000$. The Creighton softball coach first encountered Angie during her junior year at a tournament in Clear Creek. She is very much looking forward to the change. Angie plans on studying elementary education at Creighton.

This year's football team produced another scholarship recipient in senior quarterback Craig Hartman. Craig received a four year scholarship to the University of lowa in lowa City. Craig will be switching from quarterback to the defensive backfield at lowa. Craig, who helped lead the football team to the playoffs, has been playing organized football since fifth grade. Although uncertain of what he'd like to do, he may study business.

Hachey boxes to titles in free time  Drew Hachey, who has been boxing for many years and has won several titles, has been interested in boxing since he was a kid. He and his brother John used to box each other just for fun. They began to get really serious about it and finally talked their dad into letting them start boxing.Their dad got in touch with the Cedar Rapids Boxing Club and Drew has been boxing ever since. He practices regularly at the National Guard Armory in Cedar Rapids as he has been for the past ten years.

When Drew was 13 and 14 he won the Junior Olympics. This sent him on to regionals where he also took first place both years. Drew won the Golden Gloves competition at the age of 17.

Drew and his brother John won the AAU tournament the same year. "The AAU is an Olympic type tournament where there are international coaches watching you. I'd rather compete in the AAU because it is more prestigious and has more class competition." explained Drew. Drew takes his boxing very seriously and when asked about a career he simply stated, "I plan to pursue boxing later on in my life."

Drew Hachey concentrates as he fights for the Cedar Rapids Boxing Club during a match at the Coliseum.

Horses are her future  A.me of hobby, favorite pasttime, or a way of trying to make that spare time more interesting and enjoyable. For senior Julie Yost, horses are the answer.Julie first became interested in horses as a small child. Since that time, she has participated in various horse shows and has taken private riding lessons. "During lessons we practice trotting without stirrups, posting. cantering, dresságe movements, jumping. lunging, and correct form," stated Julie. "A horse learns by repeating and repeating. You train a horse by reward and punishment."

In the future, Julie plans to attend either the Potomac Horse Center in Maryland or the Morvan Park International Equestrian Institute in Virginia. After finishing her schooling, she plans to return to lowa to train horses and teach lessons.

Eventually, she would like to teach the handicapped to ride horses. According to Julie, this would give them a sense of accomplishment. "By being able to ride, it would give legs to those who can't walk on their own."

Cliffs supply test

The art of repelling is practiced by two seniors. Doug Zimmerman and Mark Walkner. For those unfamiliar with the sport, repelling is when someone goes down the side of a cliff, or anything with a 90 degree angle, with a rope.

Doug has been repelling for three years. "I got interested in repelling from Scouts and my older brother," commented Doug. The highest Doug has ever repelled from is 200 feet.

Mark became interested in repelling when he saw Doug doing it, and decided to give it a try. Mark's been repelling for about one year, and has repelled from as high as 500 feet.

Both Doug and Mark travel to Palisades park to go repelling. They agree that the best time for this sport is during the spring and fall.

Andy plays many tunes

Many people play a musical instrument, but not very many individuals play ten instruments.

Senior Andy Sargent started playing saxophone in fifth grade. As he recalled, he had a broken case that had to be held together with a belt. Also, he carried a bottle of glue to fix three pads that always seemed to fall out of his saxophone during concerts.

Since then. Andy has come a long way. He now plays flute, oboe, bassoon, bass clarinet, and is working on the acoustic guitar, as well as playing the five different types of saxophones. He has approximately $$ 2,000$ invested in musical instruments, and will have $$ 10,000$ spent by the end of next year.

Andy's future in music is uncertain. although he explained, "I don't like electronic music-I want to stay with acoustic. I'd like to organize a Chris-tianity-oriented band and play jazz. Music is my way of serving God." Andy added he'd like to perform in clubs in outer space, if space travel becomes possible.

Andy Sargent joins marching band members as they practice a half-time performance for an upcoming football game.

The long awaited moment finally arrives as each graduate crosses the stage to receive their diploma on Monday, June 2.

After long time we finally did it

Thirteen long years of education came to an end during the brief graduation ceremony, which was held Monday. June 2, in the Five Seasons Center. Some 482 seniors became adults in the eyes of the world after receiving their diplomas during Jefferson's 23 rd graduation ceremony.
Speakers for this event included valedictorians Mark Hanisch, Wayne Rust, and Cindy Schneidt. Cedar Rapids school superintendant Dr. Marvin Maire and school board president Mr. Bob Weinhart were also included on the program.
"Set your sights far beyond what you have seen" was the theme for the class, and the graduation song was entitled "Put a Mountain Before Me," with lyrics by Mrs. Kay Koepke and music by Mr. Allen Koepke, vocal music director.
"Yes, I see that mountain, it's not too big for me. Up l'll rise to the very top, that's where I plan to be!"
Graduation was one of the most important nights of a senior's life, as it marked a major turning point for all.

Remembering good times that we'll never forget

 on in 1980 as we proved J-Hawks could welcome a new decade like nobody else-with style and spirit.Style is a word that needs no explanation when you have J-Hawks around. Whether it's giving a speech in class or accepting a date to the prom. J-Hawks did it with style.

Spirit is the thing J-Hawks will never run out of. Pep assemblies were a major outlet for school spirit but the spirit didn't stop there. Crowds could usually be found at all the major sporting events and spirit flowed to other school-sponsored events such as mixers and drama productions.
Sports proved to be successful in 1980 as the J-Hawks showed their spirit and style in winning ways. The boys' sophomore football team captured the MVC title and the girls' volleyball team finished third in state. Both the girls' basketball and track team had winning seasons as they defeated crosstown rival Kennedy for the first time in many years.
With such a successful start in the 80's. J-Hawks are looking forward to even better things in the years ahead.

 many friends and events to reminisce about. Fun times during and after school will always remain in one's mind. Events that were especially memorable, such as Homecoming and WPA week, will never be forgotten.Spirit week continued to grow popular throughout the school year. These designated weeks were intended to build spirit and enthusiasm before an important athletic event. Each day during the special week was set aside as a day to do specific things. Hat day, grub day, dress-up day, and many others were most successful.

Growing up meant being able to let go of the past and look toward the future. There was a lot to look forward to in the upcoming years. For some, there were more years of school, either high school or college. Others had to face the harsh reality of having to find a job and go to work everyday.

As the years pass, new friends will be made and new life styles will form. But the precious memories that one holds from high school days will last for a long. long time while thumbing through this yearbook.

Thanks for the memories

hope you will enjoy our 1980 yearbook as much as we did putting it together for you. It took many hours of hard work and dedication to compile this book of memories. I can sincerely say, the memories outweigh the frustrating hours we spent in the publications office.

I owe many thanks to all the staff members and section editors. Special thanks to photographers Jay Young. Chris Baker, Jeff Visek, and Kevin Vial for their photos which are an essential part of the yearbook. Thanks to section editors Bridget Casey. Barb Ridder, and Sue Vanek for their endless hours after school. And thanks to Kent Hartwig for his creative artwork throughout this yearbook.
"Thanks" seems like an inappropriate word to express my gratitude to Mr. Ron Smrha. But I must thank him for the knowledge he taught me, for pushing me harder every moment. for expecting mountains instead of mole hills, and especially for the laughs. This past year will be hard to forget because I know that there is a lot to look back on but even more to look forward to in the years ahead.
